Annual Scout Exposition Has New Twist For 1987

A new twist has been added to the annual Voyageur Trails District Scout exposition which will be held Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Thief River Falls national guard armory and the Thief River Falls tourist park.

In addition to the usual scout exposition, a weekend camporee for the boy scouts will be held in the tourist park where troops from throughout the district will be camping from Friday night to Sunday afternoon. Cub scouts will have their display booths inside the armory and the boy scouts will have their display and demonstrations at their campsites in the park. The general public is reminded to dress accordingly.

Cost to see the exposition is $2 per adult with children admitted free when accompanied by an adult. Tickets have been sold by scouts and are still available at the door.

According to Art Heinze, general chairman for the exposition, its purpose is to give scouts and cubs an opportunity to demonstrate their learned scouting skills to the public and show what scouting is all about. This year's theme is "Don't Miss the Scouting Adventure," a theme that blends itself well to the outdoor boy scout displays, Heinze said.

All the cub scout packs and boy scout troops from Thief River Falls as well as from Crookston, Warren, Plummer, Grygla, Twin Valley, St. Hilaire, Greenbush and Warroad will be participating in the show. In addition to local district packs and troops, scouts from Winnipeg will again be participating in the show to add an international flavor to the exposition.

Forty cub scouts from Winnipeg will be staying with host scout families for the weekend. Host families are to pick up their Canadian cub scout at 9 p.m. Friday at United Methodist church. There will be an informal scoial gathering at 9:30 p.m. Friday at United Methodist church fireside room for local scout leaders, interested parents of scouts, former scout leaders and guest Canadian scout leaders. There will be an international scout fellowship dinner at 7 p.m. Saturday at United Methodist church for all local scout leaders and friends of scouting. Cost will be $4 per person.

Assisting general chairman Heinze with the exposition are the following scouters: Jim Fisher and Jim Giles, spring camporee co-chairmen; Myron Barnes, district scout executive from Grand Forks scout office; Roger Golby, ticket sales and audit; Allen Rux, physical arrangements; Whitey Olson and Elody Olson, judging; Sharon Johnson and Louise McLean, Bjorkman's Scout supply booth; Sam Giles and Bonnie VanSchaick, and Mike Fisher, OA and concessions.

Assisting with Winnipeg Scout exchange is Sue Sculthorp in charge of billeting; Val Larson, Friday night social; Rocky Wilson, international fellowship dinner; and Deb Fulton, Sunday night supper. Assisting as pack liaison persons are Sharri Knutson from Pack 199, Karen Hanson from Pack 57 and Allen Rux from Pack 59.

The district scout exposition is sponsored by Northern Lights council of the Boy Scouts of America, in the interest of better scouting. Northern Lights council, which supplies the scouting program to communities in Voyageur Trails district, is supported by United Ways and sustaining membership enrollments from the participating communities.

Malcolm Stucy Honored As Treasurer 36 Years

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Malcolm Stucy of rural Oklee received another plaque for his wall Tuesday morning when members of the township board paid a surprise visit to the Stucy farm home half a mile east of the River Valley bridge in eastern Pennington county. The plaque recognizes "Mac's" 36 years as treasurer of Deer Park township from 1950 to 1986.

Joining in making the presentation were Juell Chervestad, clerk of the board; Arden Lundeen, Stucy's successor as treasurer; Orlan Stolaas and Darrow Lundeen, supervisors. Unable to attend was Monte Haugen, a new member of the board of supervisors.

Stucy is the first to admit that serving as township treasurer isn't exactly a full-time job. The township handles only a few thousand dollars each year, received primarily from a two-mill tax levy on property in the township and an allocation from the state of Minnesota. Most years the dollar volume handled is between $6,000 and $7,000.

There aren't a lot of expenses for the township and most of the annual budget goes for road maintenance and related items. But it takes a certain amount of bookkeeping to keep the records straight, pay the bills on time and make sure the township stays solvent. Mac has done all of these with sincerity and dedication.

"We've even got a few thousand dollars earning interest," he said. "You like to have a reserve fund in case something major comes along and you need some extra money."

Handling other people's money has been Mac's lot for half a century. When his father Otto died, Malcolm was encouraged to take his father's office as treasurer of School District 47. He served in that office from 1937 until the district consolidated with Goodridge. It was about that time that he was elected Deer Park township treasurer.

ANOTHER SERVICE AWARD was received by the Malcolm Stucys of rural Oklee Tuesday when the Deer Park township board presented Malcolm with a plaque for 36 years of service as township treasurer. Other plaques pictured are for Valley Farmer and Homemaker through the Red River Valley winter shows and the Pennington county 4-H hall of fame. Mrs. Opal Stucy provided most of the effort for the latter award through her adult leadership in the county 4-H club program. Malcolm served as treasurer of Deer Park township from 1950 until this year when he declined reelection and was succeeded by Arden Lundeen.

Orville Ellingson Receives Community Pride Award

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Orville Ellingson's dreams generally come complete with blueprints and on Tuesday the chamber of commerce in Thief River Falls recognized his dedication to making sure those dreams become reality.

The Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, represented by Dave Strong, president, presented Ellingson with the community pride award on behalf of the chamber of commerce and the community.

Ellingson has been involved with many different projects but he is most known for work on the Friendship Gardens in Thief River Falls. That project was completed in 1963 and serves as a reminder of the friendship between the United States and Canada. Last summer, the park was rededicated.

Now Ellingson has taken on a new project. Like the Friendship gardens it will celebrate friendship and peace. Orville has taken a quiet approach to the entire project by not making a lot of noise about it. He does not want any credit for the project, he just wants the community to participate in the project and feel proud of its accomplishment.

Ellingson envisions his new project as a reminder of the friendship between Indians and the City of Thief River Falls. The Indian Interpretive center, as he calls his new project, will also remind the community of its heritage.

The center will be located next to the Indian statue near the Eighth street bridge in Thief River Falls. Ellingson said the statue will be renamed this summer to Chief Red Robe, which he says is the proper translation of his Indian name. The site was chosen because it was the original campground of the Indians who gave Thief River Falls its name.

The site has seen some recent development and figures to become an even more popular stop for tourists and visitors once the envisioned 30 by 64 foot building is completed. Last fall the Jaycees built a covered picnic site there and soon a fishing pier will be located there.

Ellingson said the idea for an Indian interpretive center came to him last February. The idea continued to grow and soon he completed a very elaborate and detailed model of the center. Orville said when an idea comes to him it comes complete — blueprints and all.

Ellingson seems to fit into the small group of people found in any community which subscribes to the notion that if your heart is in your dreams no request is too extreme. In a three-and-one-half week period he completed a model so detailed that it includes logs in a stone fireplace, a curved wooden table with the Indian's symbol of peace placed on the wall closest to it, a totem pole and an image of an Indian in full headdress hangs in a small frame above the fireplace. The stones used to create the image were so small, Ellingson had to use tweezers to place them in the proper place.

He said he has learned from experience that a better plan and presentation helps others envision a completed project. He said he has also learned from experience that it is necessary to draw upon the skills and resources in a community. It makes people feel proud of their contribution, he said.

Ellingson said he has shown his model to several people and groups in Thief River Falls and has worked closely with his good friend Dan Needham. He has also shown the project to Melodie Winans, Indian stud-

ORVILLE ELLINGSON received the community pride award Tuesday from Thief River Falls chamber of commerce President Dave Strong. Ellingson, who came up with the idea for the Friendship Gardens, has now come up with plans for an Indian Interpretive center. Orville is the first person to receive the community pride award, which was made in conjunction with a statewide chamber of commerce celebration.

Weekend Auto Show To Headline USA-1

Headlined by the appearance of USA-1, a monster four-wheel-drive, car-crushing truck, the eighth annual North Country auto show will be conducted Saturday and Sunday at the sports arena and curling club on the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls.

Doors will open at 10 a.m. both days with closing time set for 8 p.m. Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday. An awards program will be conducted at 4 p.m. Sunday in the sports arena at which people's choice, participants' choice and other special awards in addition to trophies in at least 15 divisions will be presented.

For a number of reasons, entries in the show will be somewhat reduced this year but there will be enough new and different entries and exhibits to make attendance well worthwhile, according to show officials. From 60 to 75 entries are expected, about half of which have not been shown in Thief River Falls previously.

Several sprint cars from Grand Forks, ND, are expected to be shown as well as interesting puller trucks and cars from the Lucken family at Winger. The Luckens compete on a national circuit. Among cars returning will be a 1957 Chevrolet which is heavily chromed and rated among the top 10 cars in Canadian street rod circles. Entries will be accepted up to show time. Entry fee is $10.

The USA-1 vehicle and related exhibits, videos and materials will be headquartered in the curling club building. The truck is owned and promoted by Everett Jasmer, formerly of Thief River Falls, and will be used in car-crushing demonstrations at 2 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday. USA-1 is 11 feet high, 11 feet wide and powered by a 540-inch engine modified to produce more than 1,000 horsepower. (See photo on front page of today's second section.)

Admission to the show is $3.50 for adults, $1.50 for children ages six through 12 or $8 per family. Car cruises are being planned for today and Thursday in Thief River Falls to assist in promoting the show. They are open to all special interest vehicles.

Water Retention Project On Reservation Okayed

Preliminary funding assistance approval was given on proposed flood water retention projects in Norman county and the Red Lake Indian reservation at a meeting of the Lower Red River watershed management board (LRRWMB) in Crookston April 16.

Member watershed district managers from the eight watershed districts that make up the LRRWMB first heard a request from the Wild Rice watershed district for funding help with a proposed water retention project in Sundal township of Norman county. Main purpose of the project is to provide water detention and erosion and sediment control. A secondary function of the project would be to provide increased wildlife habitat in the project area.

Early project design proved too costly and has since been revised. The plan now calls for the placement of three storage reservoirs on the 150-acre project site which would provide 418 acre feet of flood water storage. The upper two reservoirs will have permanent water conservation pools, while the lower reservoir will function as a dry dam only.

Benefiting area of the project will extend downstream along the lower reaches of Norman County Ditch 45 and the district's Olson-Agassiz retention project. Both are being damaged from erosion and sedimentation and the new project is designed to provide relief from continuing deterioration.

Estimated cost of the project is $274,000. LRRWMB chairman Don Ogaard, representing the Wild Rice watershed district, presented a resolution requesting funding assistance for 32.7 per cent of project cost or $102,410. The LRRWMB moved on step one and two approval.

The Red Lake watershed district also submitted a request for step one approval of a proposed water retention project called Good Lake, located on the Red Lake Indian reservation. Manager Arnold Person of the Red Lake district told the board that the district is working with the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians to develop a mutually beneficial, multi-purpose project on reservation land. The tribe created the project as an impoundment for wildlife which could also serve as a water supply for wild rice irrigation. The district was approached by tribal representatives to consider assisting with the project in view of its flood control potential.

At this time, the Red Lake district is proposing to aid the tribe with financial and limited technical assistance to widen and build the existing dike to uniform elevation. This is expected to cost about $75,000 and would provide about 3,400 acre feet of spring flood water storage and 2,100 acre feet of storage during a summer flood. The state legislature has also been approached for funding assistance.

Domestic Violence In Area Noted By Consultant Novy

Statistics regarding persons coming to the Ripley Alliance shelter in Thief River Falls after suffering abusive situations were womewhat of a surprise to Barbara S. Novy of Hopkins, a consultant working with the alliance's staff and board recently on program planning.

"Domestic violence, which is a crime, has historically been seen as a private family problem," she said. "The victims of this crime suffer silently alone, afraid and ashamed to tell anyone they are being regularly assaulted in their homes by their partners.

"The statistics that I saw while working with the Ripley Alliance board of directors and staff indicate the depths and severity of domestic violence in this area," she said.

Novy pointed out that 60 per cent of the woman who used the shelter's services have had weapons used against them or been threatened with weapons, primarily guns and knives. Eighty-five per cent of the women receiving shelter have been assaulted from six to 20 times.

According to information compiled by the shelter staff, there have been 346 women and 550 children sheltered since the center began operation in March of 1980. More than 1,650 crisis calls have been answered and — since advocacy counseling has been available in 1983 — 686 women have been assisted with community advocacy. Alliance staff members note that the advocacy and persons sheltered statistics are non-duplicated.

"Physically assaulting anyone is a crime in this country," Novy emphasized. "This includes assaults on women in their homes by their partners. I would strongly encourage the community to begin to address the issue of domestic violence, support the battered women's program you have, and encourage women and children you know are being abused to seek help."

Novy served as director of the Hopkins Project, Inc., from 1979 through 1986 in administration, program implementation and design, staff supervision, budget formulation, long range planning and evaluation, fundraising and managing a $450,000 annual budget. She previously served as a crisis intervention advocate with the rape center in Hempstead, NY, in 1973-1975 and administrative assistant with the women's center in Westbury, NY, in 1975-1976.

According to Deb Modahl, director of the Ripley Alliance in Thief River Falls, the center is planning to extend its program and services to people not seeking shelter facilities. That extension will include an extensive outreach advocacy and community education program for the seven counties in Economic Development Region One.

"Also included in the plans will be a drop-in community outreach center for people seeking information on various community resources," Modahl said. "The focus of the new programming will be on education and prevention of violence and to meet the needs of people who do not want or need sheltering."

Modahl said the board, staff and volunteers are excited about the new programming and hope the community will join in the effort to stop family violence. Those who would like to become active in the support of the alliance and its programs may call 681-5557 for more information.

Ellingson Cited With Community Pride Award

ies coordinator at Northland community college, and members of the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians. All seem very excited to help with the project, Ellingson said.

In the event the project is completed it will be the location for various demonstrations and displays during the summer months when it will be open.

Ideas like this may also help others envision projects. "Maybe someone else will get started. If someone did something — any small thing — it would improve the community," Ellingson said.

For example, if children in local schools were each given a tree to plant in the parks and then encouraged to take care of that tree, we probably wouldn't have problems in the parks, Ellingson said. "Small things get better after awhile," he said, and the children would certainly respect their own projects.

Even though Ellingson is retired he doesn't stop thinking of things that he might do to help the community or his friends. Ellingson knows the meaning of retirement. "Yes," Ellingson said. "I'm a retired truck driver; but I'm not really retired, just busy."

Besides coming up with ideas for interesting projects, Ellingson spends much of his time carving figures from wood. Because of his skill, he helps out at Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls also.

Sue Lillevold, executive vice president of the chamber of commerce in Thief River Falls, said Orville is "our ambassador." He has a stack of city brochures, she said, and everywhere he goes, he hands out the brochures.

Lillevold said he has pretty good results too. His ideas seem to generate a lot of interest. She also pointed out that few people are aware of the fact that Orville also came up with the idea for the hay lift project last year.

Orville said he has always lived in Thief River Falls and just wants the other people who live here to be just as happy and proud of this community as he is.

Water Project On Reservation Gets Early Approval

this project is 45 square miles. It is located north of the Red Lake river, about one mile east of the west boundary of the reservation. It is believed that the potential for water retention at the site, with a fully developed project, could be as much as 10,000 acre feet. However, ultimate potential will be hard to assess until initial work is completed, according to engineering officials. The board gave step one approval to the project.

The group also heard a proposal from fellow board member Roger Ward, who represents the Joe River watershed district. Ward reported that the Joe River district has moved to assist the Kittson county township of St. Vincent with the purchase of right-of-way property as its share of a United States Corps of Engineers and Manitoba Provincial Engineers diking project which will give flood water protection to the towns of Noyes and Emerson.

Joe River district contributed $13,040 to the township and Ward asked that the LRRWMB share in 50 per cent of this cost. He observed that the project effort protects the local Red River Valley port of entry from flooding damage and the combined project also promotes good will and cooperation between the United States and Canada. The board moved to approve the request and appropriated $6,520 to the Joe River watershed district as the LRRWMB's share of the cost.

The board also appropriated $5,000 for repairs to the Odney Flaat dam, a West Polk soil and water conservation district dam located about 10 miles southeast of Crookston in Polk county. Mike Nienaver of the conservation district reported that this project failed a number of years ago and plans have been completed for its correction. It was noted that while the dam does not provide a great deal of flood water storage, it is essential for local protection. The Red Lake district will appropriate $5,000 for repairs and another $27,000 will come from ASCS. It is expected, that repairs will take place in June.

Dan Thul, LRRWMB coordinator, presented the board with a pay request from the Red Lake district's Moose River project in Beltrami county. The request was for $39,255 from the LRRWMB and $58,833 from the state for work completed and approved from November of 1986 through February of 1987. It was reported that over 96 per cent of the original contract work is now completed. Work on the project is expected to begin for this season in the near future and, if weather conditions allow, the project will be completed in 1987. The board approved the pay request.

The Moose River impoundment is a major project which will be operated for flood water retention on an upstream drainage area of 125.5 square miles. The project also offers wildlife enhancement and downstream flow maintenance. Located on the Moose River wildlife management area, 16 miles of dike have been constructed to provide two separately operated pools. Operation of the flood gates will provide 29,500 acre feet of controlled water storage. This equals about four inches of runoff from the entire watershed. Thul also reported that work is progressing to open up areas of this project to the public once construction is completed.

Chairman Don Ogaard reported, that he and Dan Thul had attended a number of water management meetings with valley officials sponsored by the International Coalition of Land and Water Stewardship in Red River Valley. Ogaard said that the meetings have been a good opportunity to explain the purpose and philosophy of the LRRWMB in instituting and financing flood control projects in the Minnesota Red river basin and explain the tools that are being developed in accomplishing this task.

Ogaard also reported that the flood water damage reduction program, which would supply state help in funding retention projects, and the water planning and development program, which would help fund a joint modeling effort of the Red River basin between North Dakota and Minnesota, are still alive and being studied by the Minnesota legislature.

Settlers Fair Is Topic At Marshall History Meeting

Ideas on the annual Settlers Fair were discussed when the Marshall county historical society met recently at Settlers Square in Warren. Summer hours at the museum on the Marshall county fairgrounds were set as Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. beginning June 1.

It was noted that the church in Settlers Square will need repairs from lightning damage last summer and structural deterioration, and that Cliff Hanson of Stephen had donated a water wagon for display in the museum.

Kent Broten will be in charge of flour grinding at the Old Mill state park June 7 and 9. The latter date will be a special day for senior citizens as the park is noting its 50th anniversary year.

Canadian Scouter In Remembered For Starting Exchange

When the annual Voyageur Trails district scout exposition is held in Thief River Falls Sunday, it will be without a familiar person who started the exchange of Canadian and Thief River Falls scouts a number of years ago. Walter J. Carter of 56 Norham, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, died Dec. 15, 1986, after a lengthy illness. His widow, Helen, will attend the exposition.

Bonnie Van Schaick of Thief River Falls, one of many who knew Carter well through involvement in a number of phases of the scouting program, wrote the following tribute in connection with the scout exposition being held here this week:

Services for Walter J. Carter were held Dec. 18, 1986 at Rivercrest United Church — a church that he helped build — where he was a longtime member, elder and lay leader.

Carter was born in Winnipeg Aug. 2, 1921. He received his education in Winnipeg, and after graduation from high school, he joined the Canadian Pacific Express as an office boy, later transferring to CP Freight Claims. Except for World War II service time in the Canadian Navy, he worked for the CP continually, retiring after 43 years of service.

For 30 years Walter was very active in the scouting movement. He served in many leadership positions, including cub-master of the First Rivercrest Cub pack, as district commissioner of the Seven Oaks district, and was regional Cub commissioner for Winnipeg. He especially enjoyed Cub leader training, and also loved leading Cub camp fires and sing songs.

Through his involvement with the annual scout exchange, many Thief River Falls Cubs and Scouts came to know and love this man who cared so much for them. Walter always spoke of the brotherhood between Canadian and American scouts, and their heritage of having the longest, unguarded border between countries in the world. To adults he was a friend, a fellow scouter, and a man who spoke with wit and love, as in jest he often referred to the United States and Canada as the Colonies and the Dominion.

This writer once heard, during the billeting of American Cubs, one of the finest tributes to Mr. Carter, as he was known to all boys. As local boys were introduced to their Winnipeg hosts, Mr. Carter made sure they shook hands as they said hello. As one pair of Cubs walked together after meeting, one was heard to say to the other, "He is a nice grandpa scout." His companion replied, "Yes, and I'm going to be a grandpa scout just like him when I grow up." What a legacy Walter left to so many boys on both sides of the border!

Walter is survived by his wife, Helen, who shared 43 happy years with him. He is also remembered by his two sons, Tom and Ted; his daughter, Lorraine; and his two grandchildren, Geordie and Jillian. His mother, Mrs. Harriet Gunner, in February joined him and his God, whom they loved and served. Burial was in Glen Eden Memorial Gardens.

"Well done good and faithful servant.
Come and share your master's happiness."

Two District Court Cases Heard In TRF Receive Sentencing

Two cases received sentencing in District court, division one, in Thief River Falls, during the past week.

In Minnesota vs. Floyd Olson of Red Lake Falls, Olson was sentenced to 15 months in jail, which was stayed for three years. Olson was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He is to serve six-and-one-half months in the county jail. He is to be given credit for time served. The state was represented by Attorney Dave Olin, and the defendant by Assistant Public Defender Dennis Murphy.

In Minnesota vs. David Wayne Mugaas, Thief River Falls, on a charge of gross driving while intoxicated, Mugaas plead guilty. He was sentenced to one year in the county jail and fined $1,000 plus costs of $107.50. Six months of the jail term and $400 of the fine was suspended. He was placed on probation and ordered to undergo an alcohol problem assessment. Attorney Dave Olin represented Minnesota and Assistant Public Defender Dennis Murphy represented the defendant.

CHECK OUT ANATOMICAL GIFTS IN ADVANCE
The gift of a body part or organ or even an entire body after death can be of great significance. However, it is important that potential donors and their families get specific information beforehand to avoid possible disappointment. If you contemplate such a gift, get the facts from the person or institution for which the gift is intended. Don't rely on hearsay. Remember the offer of a gift does not insure its acceptance. As your funeral director we can assist in providing information and sometimes the necessary forms which must be completed. Regardless of the kind of anatomical gift made, a funeral with the body present is possible.

A Chance To Grow Week Proclaimed By Gov. Perpich

Governors of Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin have proclaimed the week of April 26 as "A Chance to Grow for the Brain-Injured Week."

A Chance to Grow is a Midwest, parent self-help group dedicated to rehabilitating brain-injured children. In 1986 there were 1,400 volunteers who worked one or more hours a week to move children toward wellness.

Governor Perpich of Minnesota noted in his proclamation that most of those suffering brain injuries face a lifetime of medical problems associated with paralysis, allergies, speech and vision problems and memory failures and A Chance To Grow seeks healing for brain-injured individuals in the midwest, advocates the funding of central nervous system research for walking, talking and thinking, and active physical and speech therapy that can reverse many of the debilitating effects of a brain injury.

BSU To Host Annual U.S. — Canada Conference

Canadian-United States annual conference at Bemidji State University will present a series of programs April 27-29 to address the theme "Sense of Place."

The conference was initated six years ago to create a forum for the exchange of ideas and discussion of issues which are shared by the citizens of Canda and the United States.

The three-day program features 12 panels involving more than 30 Canadian and U.S experts who will discuss topics of international as well as local concern. Included on the agenda are: the natural environment, its human impact and national policy issues; the settlement and movement patterns of ethnic groups; literature and place perception; needs assessment of the elderly; and the effect of mass media on sense of place.

All sessions will be held in the Crying Wolf room of the Hobson Memorial union and are open to the public with no admission charge.

The conference begins at 1 p.m. April 27 when Bill Norton of the University of Manitoba, Fred Schroeder of Minnesota-Duluth, and Gordon Levine, also of UMD, talk about changes and contrasts in North American Landscapes and places. At 2:45 p.m., the focus shifts to interpreting "place" in ethnic settlements with Jim Richtik, University of Winnipeg, Jock Lehr, University of Winnipeg, and Holly Youngbear Tibbitts, University of Wisconsin.

Beverly Nagel will be the sole presenter for a special evening examination of "North American Gypsies and Sense of Place" at 7:30 p.m.

The April 28 schedule opens at 8:15 with research presentations by students from Bemidji State University and the University of North Dakota. Topics range from the effect of areas and isolation on native prairie flora in the Red River Valley to a paper on Northern Township on the urban-rural fringe of Bemidji. Bemidji State faculty member Kent Smith and BSU student Gladys Brown will continue with a 10:45 a.m. analysis that looks at "place" and the Indian people of North America.

Following a noon break, Pete Smith of BSU, Jim Shimmer of UND, Tavia Christianson of BSU, and Doug Munski, UND, will start a 1 p.m. consideration of place identity with past and present cultural landscapes which will be followed at 3 p.m. with a panel discussion on problems and place for the elderly in 1987.

A 7:30 p.m. program will cover a sense of place in Canadian literature with presentations by Dennis Colley of St. John's Collee in Winnipeg, Nancy Bauer of the University of New Brunswick, Donald Jewison of the University of Winnipeg, and Bill Elliott of BSU.

Geoff Scott, University of Winnipeg, will start the Wednesday calendar at 8:40 a.m. by addressing the natural environment and transborder contrasts in national interpretations while BSU faculty member Charles Parsons, Tom Rulland of the Minnesota State planning agency, and Steve Spigarelli of the BSU center for enviromental studies continue that theme with 10 a.m. panels covering a variety of topics.

Review of land and life in the valley, on the plains and on the prairie features Rosalie Weaver of BSU, Leo Fenske of Bemidji, and Virgil Benoit of UND at 1 p.m. and be followed by an investigation on the effect of mass media on Canadian's sense of place by Paul Attallah of the University of Montreal, John Dafoe of the Winnipeg Free Press, and Vern Keel of UND.

Closing out the conference is a 7:30 p.m.—public reading by Bauer, a New Brunswick author who is spending part of spring quarter as a guest writer in residence at BSU.

More information on the program is available by contacting Dr. Michael Garrett, conference director, Department of Geography, Hagg-Sauer Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601-2699 (218-755-2804).

Chemicals Must Be Reported To State Agency

According to Public Safety Commissioner Paul J. Tschida, a new federal law requires Minnesota businesses which handle certain types of hazardous materials to notify the state by May 17 of their involvement with such materials.

Under requirements of Title III of the federal superfund amendments and reauthorization act (SARA), Governor Rudy Perpich has appointed a state emergency response commission and has designated the department of public safety to aid in implementing the new law. The state commission will be a clearing-house for information on hazardous materials in state businesses and other facilities and will develop a network of local emergency planning committees in conjunction with public safety's division of emergency services. The local committees will collect and disseminate chemical hazard information, as well as develop emergency response plans to address local emergencies.

Under rules promulgated by the federal environmental protection agency, all businesses which have on hand any of 402 extremely hazardous materials in excess of specific "threshold planning quantities" as listed in the Nov. 17, 1986, Federal Register, must notify the commission of that fact. The notification must be submitted in writing before May 17.

Facilities subject to the requirements must also designate a representative to participate in the local planning process.

The information should be addressed to: Minnesota Emergency Response Commission, Room B-5 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Anyone seeking additional information regarding these requirements may call the division of emergency services at 612-296-2233. In case of any accidental release of hazardous chemicals, an emergency call should be made immediately to local 911 subsequently to the state emergency number, 612-778-0800.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

A few years ago there was a popular song with lyrics that went "just a little good news today" — well, on Saturday, April 11, there were 19 local people who tried to bring a little good news to the people of Thief River Falls. These people volunteered to ride horses 30 miles for a local charity. As you remember, this Saturday was not the best weather for riding as it was windy, cold and rainy — but ride the 30 miles they did. They collected over $570 to be donated to our local food shelf.

Your newspaper was advised of this endeavor and was asked to have someone do coverage of the event. Your reporter did come out and take pictures along the ride. He was also supposed to be at the fairgrounds at the end of the ride to take pictures of the presentation of the check — but somewhere between Plummer and the fairgrounds he lost his way — we never did see him at the end of the ride.

Your paper ran one photo with a small caption about the ride and the reason; no mention of the riders' names, ages, nor any mention of the pledges collected for the community shelf — a local charity where all the monies remain in the community.

However, in the same edition of your paper there were at least three pictures of our local politicians — and this is not even an election year.

I know that every event held in the area cannot be covered with pictures and story but I do believe this event could have been covered a little more thoroughly.

To the riders who braved the cold and wind and saddlesores — hats off to you. Your community is richer today due to your efforts, not only in the monies donated to the food shelf but also in the community spirit in which you donated yourself and your animals . . . BRAVO.

Sincerely,
-s- Ann Olson

VA Raises Its Maximum Home Loan Interest Rate

In response to mortgage market pressures, the Veterans Administration raised its maximum home loan interest rate from 8.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent, effecitve April 13.

The increase was made to bring the maximum VA approved rate closer in line with the mortgage market, which has moved up in recent weeks.

At 9.5 per cent, the latest rate is still low enough that little or no decline in the number of new and refinanced loans is expected, say VA home loan guaranty experts.

The number of home loan guaranties requested during the last six months is running at 40,000 a month.

VA loan counselors recommend veterans consider refinancing when the loan rate is two percentage points or more below the rate fixed in the existing mortgage. Because of high interest rates over the past few years, there are more than 700,000 veterans with mortgage rates of 11.5 per cent or more who thus should be considering refinancing.

In the past three years, the VA rate was lowered 15 times, from 13.5 per cent on May 8, 1984 to 8.5 per cent on January 19. The latest change is the first increase in more than two years.

Malcolm Stucy Honored For 36 Years Of Service

Mac offers a simple explanation for his decision not to accept reelection to another term as treasurer this year. "When you get to be 80," he said, "things seem a little different. That's what other people have told me, too."

Malcolm is the oldest of 11 children, eight of whom lived past infancy and only three of whom are still living. His brother Kenneth has a farm nearby and his sister Ruth is married to Roy Klove and lives at Detroit Lakes.

Otto Stucy and his wife moved to Thief River Falls from Waseca and Malcolm was born here while his father was employed at the sawmill. When the Red Lake Indian reservation area was opened for settlement, Otto and his family moved to a farm site about three miles east of the present River Valley bridge. Flooding of the Red Lake river was a frequent problem until the river channel was dredged several decades ago.

Malcolm worked on the farm for his father for wages and in 1937 purchased the farm from the heirs of Otto's estate. He built the farm up to its present 576 acres, raising crops and dairy cattle and sheep. When the barn burned in 1941 he kept the cattle in a shed for milking throughout World War II and until a new barn could be build in 1951. A new house was built two years later.

Malcolm and Opal Halvorson of Highlanding were married in 1938 at Goodridge. The Halvorson family was another pioneer family of the area. Opal's father built the first store in Goodridge and her brother Lester was the first boy born in that village.

The Stucys haven't farmed actively for about the past 18 years, renting their land to Malcolm's cousin, Edward Stucy. About 450 acres of the farm is cropland and the remainder is pasture.

In addition to his township treasurer service, Malcolm had been clerk of the board for half a dozen years. He served as secretary of the board of the River Valley store, was treasurer of the Highlanding club, served on the Pennington soil and water conservation district board for one term and on the Red Lake river drainage and conservancy district for two terms, was a trustee and treasurer of Oak Park Lutheran church and member of the Farmers Union and National Farmers organization.

Opal has served as treasurer of the Oak Park ladies aid, taught Sunday school for about eight years, was an adult leader of the Deer Park 4-H club for three years, judged fancywork at the county fair, was a member of the Deer Park garden club and president of the Goodridge band mothers organization when her children were in school.

Mac and Opal have two daughters. Nancy is married to Gene Teigland of Grygla and they live in Minneapolis where she is a registered medical technologist at Metropolitan Medical center. Faye is married to Carl Johnson, holds a PhD degree from University of the Pacific in foods and nutrition, and is an associate professor in the school of home economics at Chico State university in California. Gene and Nancy have a son and daughter and Carl and Faye have two daughters.

DEER PARK TOWN BOARD gathered at the Malcolm Stucy home east of the River Valley bridge Tuesday morning to honor "Mac" for his 36 years of service as treasurer for the township. Standing (left to right) are Juell Chervestad, clerk; Arden Lundeen, new treasurer; Orlan Stolaas and Darrow Lundeen, supervisors. Not pictured is Monte Haugen, supervisor. Stucy holds the plaque which recognizes his service as treasurer from 1950 through 1986.

FRISKY. This frisky male cat needs a friendly home. Anyone wanting to adopt this friendly cat can contact the law enforcement center animal control officer in Thief River Falls at 681-6161. The law enforcement center also reminds the public of a rabies clinic to be held behind the law enforcement center April 30 from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Dr. F.W. Hazard, veterinarian, who will be giving rabies and other shots to animals, said rabies is not particularly a problem right now. He did say, however, that it is the time of year when more animals are out, and a good time to make sure pets have received their shots. Last year, over 100 animals were vaccinated.

MN Federation Of Teachers Elect Peterson President

Sandra Petrson, a special education teacher at Armstrong high school in Robbinsdale, was elected president of the Minnesota Federation of Teachers on Saturday, April 11, during the federation's annual business convention at the Thunderbird Motel in Bloomington.

A sizeable majority of the nearly 500 delegates from throughout the state cast their ballots for Peterson, who also is president of the Robbinsdale Federation of Teachers and, until her election as MFT president, served as the secretary of the MFT executive council. She defeated incumbent Richard Mans, who served as MFT president for 10 years. Peterson was elected to a two-year term.

The new MFT president said she looks forward to working with all groups that are interested in promoting and enhancing public education. "This is a critical time in education. We must work together for the benefit of the children we teach," she said.

In addition to Peterson, other officers elected to the MFT Executive Council include newly elected vice presidents Myrna Doran, Osseo; Lois Wendt, Robbinsdale; and Virginia Gearhart, McGregor. Incumbents who were re-elected are Jean Scott Carlstrom, Mountain Iron-Buhl; JoAnn Hoeck, Willmar; Dan Mikel, South St. Paul; Gladys Westin, St. Paul; Louise Sundin, Minneapolis; and Gerald Brown, Duluth.

The 1987-88 executive council elected Bill Rasmussen, Foley, to fill the secretary's position vacated by Peterson. Kathy Hultberg, Mora, was re-elected to serve as first vice president.

Other executive council members are Jim Pearson, Minneapolis, treasurer, and vice presidents Harvey Hietala, Grand Rapids; Don Kind, Hennepin Technical Center; Marilouise Koerber, Osseo; Dale Rapp, Duluth; Helendene Shingledecker, Minneapolis Paraprofessionals; Jerry Simpson, St. Paul, and Arne Teigen, Rosemount.

The Minnesota Federation of Teachers represents about 18,000 educators — more than one-third of the public school teachers in the state. The federation is the exclusive bargaining agent in more than 70 school districts, including St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Robbinsdale, Osseo, Bloomington and Rosemount.

Planting Trees More Important Now Than In Past

"Planting trees today is even more important now than it was in 1876, when the state first celebrated Arbor day," Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Nichols said today.

"We continue this practice established in Minnesota's founding fathers through the special celebration of Arbor day. This year, schools, groups, organizations and communities throughout the state will plant trees in various ceremonies on April 24, Arbor day, and during May, Arbor Month, to encourage the widespread growth of trees and make citizens aware of their special importance.

"In addition to beautifying the land and providing the material for the construction of products that range from fence posts to phonograph records, trees help purify our air and water, conserve soil and energy, and provide habitat for wildlife of all kinds," Nichols said.

"But the reason to celebrate Arbor day goes beyond that. Arbor day is a time to renew your faith in the future by encouraging the planting of trees from which benefits will be enjoyed for many years. In a sense, we are celebrating the planting of our children's future."

to the Editor

To The Editor:

It is not often that I have even been moved enough to send you a letter.

Your editorial in the Monday (April 20, 1987) Times touched my heart like no one has for a long time. It was about your dog Charcoal or Char.

I assume that Char was Marvin Lundin's dog, although it was not stated as such.

A dog is such a good and loyal friend that no one can believe who has not had one.

I am close to 67 years old and I have a dear friend — his name is Zeke (my dog).

Some people have seen us walking around the fair grounds and wave to us. I think they all know who we are.

I have been through this ideal of putting a good friend to sleep because of illness or of old age. One of these was Butch, a bull terrier, who protected our daughter while she was a toddler. He would walk two feet ahead of her and would let no harm come to her.

Another was Fresca, a "black" golden retriever, who I had put to sleep in July 1982. She reached the old age of 15. Thanks to Dr. Pierce for his sympathy and his nice way of doing what had to be done. That Sunday morning I came home and cried like a baby.

Then a year later came Zeke and my wife and I both love him. He is not an obedient dog, but he is a lovable guy.

Marvin, you have my heartfelt sympathy and my wishes to you for a good time with your new dog.

P.S. I don't agree with your political views at all, but I respect your right to have them.

Yours Truly,
Norman Strand

Summer Walking Program Begins At Medical Center

Thief River Falls summer walking program begins today, sponsored by Northwest Medical center and the Falls Clinic division of Dakota Clinic Ltd. The program is open to walkers of all ages.

This walking and exercise program has been developed due to success of the winter arena walking program and requests from participants in that program. It has been implemented to encourage people to walk on a regular basis as part of their exercise and fitness program.

Many physicians are prescribing a walking program for their patients because of the cardiovascular benefits. Walking also increases endurance and stamina, improves muscle tone, maintains joint flexibility and helps control weight.

Studies have shown that people with postitive health habits such as regular exercise have fewer health problems, feel better, are more productive and perhaps live longer.

The Thief River Falls summer walking program gives participants the option of a 1, 2 or 3 mile course, each beginning at Northwest Medical center. Participants are asked to pay a $1 one-time registration fee to the hospital cashier and log their miles in the log book each day at the front lobby of the hospital. Walkers reaching the 100-mile mark will receive a Thief River Falls summer walking program t-shirt.

Any questions concerning this program should be directed to Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at Northwest Medical center, phone 681-4240, extension 210.

Prowlers Win EGF Net Title

Thief River Falls, after earlier dual meet losses to East Grand Forks and Crookston this spring, turned the tables on the Green Wave and Pirates to emerge a surprising winner Tuesday in the five-team East Grand Forks Invitational boys high school tennis tournament.

Final point total showed Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks in a first place tie with 17 apiece, followed closely by Crookston with 16, Detroit Lakes 12, and Mahnomen-Waubun 8.

Thief River Falls brought home the tournament trophy, though, with the tie-breaking format — a 4-3 victory over East Grand Forks in head-to-head competition.

It was the first team-title for the Prowlers since the 1982 North Sub-Section 8 tournament, pointed out Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "So we were pretty happy with the win," he said. "Our kids really played well. There were so many key points and key wins throughout the tournament; they really came through."

In addition to team honors, the Prowlers had individual winners at No. 1 singles, where junior Bret Haugen went 4-0, and at No. 3 doubles, where junior Troy Peterson and freshman Tom Brouse also went 4-0 for the day.

Thief River Falls' Grant Larson, a junior, was 3-1 and the runner-up finisher at No. 3 singles.

The Prowlers also received two points from juniors John Dondelinger and Troy Hanestad at No. 1 doubles; two points from freshmen Kevin Holmes, and Jay Opdahl at No. 2 doubles; and picked up a big point from freshman Mike Howe in his first varsity start at No. 4 singles.

Thief River Falls' Scott Novak and Dave Johnson were on a third place Minnesota Selects finisher in the 16-team Johnson's High School All-Star Hockey tournament played last week at Franklin Park, Il. in suburban Chicago.

Originally announced as members of Team Northwest, then shifted to the Minnesota Team Metro roster before finally settling on the Minnesota Selects squad, Novak and Johnson were members of a team that beat New Jersey 5-1 and defeated Salt Lake City 5-2 before losing to St. Louis 4-3 and falling to Team Northwest 6-1.

Minnesota Selects rebounded to beat Great Lakes 4-3 in the third place game Sunday. Divisional play took place Wednesday through Saturday.

Buffalo, NY edged Team Northwest 4-3 in three overtimes in the title game of the fourth annual event for high school seniors.

TRF Folds Fast Pitch League

Thief River Falls will not have a men's fast pitch softball league this summer, it was revealed at a recent meeting for those involved in the sport that has a long history in the city.

Declining numbers prompted the league officials to disband the city program this summer. Interest has waned in recent years, making it difficult to field complete teams for league play at the fairgrounds diamond.

Plans are underway for a single traveling team to represent Thief River Falls at weekend tournaments this summer.

Bemidji Off To 3-0 Start

Bemidji have lived up to its preseason ranking as one of the state's top high school baseball teams by beginning the 1987 season with wins over International Falls 12-1, Detroit Lakes 15-2 and Moorhead 5-0.

Defending Region 8AA champion Bemidji is off to a 2-0 start in North Sub-Region 8AA play with those wins over Detroit Lakes and Moorhead. The Lumberjacks got a first inning grand slam home run from Mark Runningen against the Lakers Thursday, then broke the game open with a nine-run seventh inning that started with a Tim Knudson home run, his second of the game.

Knudson then pitched six innings of one-hit baseball Monday in the win over Moorhead. Jay Cerise's third inning single was the only hit of the afternoon for the Spuds. Knudson struck out 10 and walked two. Tom Kuesel pitched the seventh for the winners after Knudson complained of a still arm in the cold weather.

Runningen doubled and scored on a single by Len Henry for a second inning run that was enough for the victory. Bemidji wound up with six hits off losing pitcher Daren Stigman.

Miscellaneous

+ Another area co-operative high school athletic operation that will be in effect beginning in the 1987-88 school year will be a Goodridge-Grygla joint venture in girls basketball and volleyball. The two schools have been football partners for a number of years. They will continue to field separate boys basketball teams.

Girls Beat Crookston Golfers

Thief River Falls girls defeated Crookston 211-244 Thursday in a 1987 season-opening high school golf dual at the Thief River Golf Club.

Junior Kelly Cornell led the Prowlers with a meet-low 47, one shot ahead of Crookston's Deanna Chesley.

Senior Gayle Borchert of the Prowlers turned in a 52, while juniors Nancy Jorde and Jill Olson both carded a 56 to round out the Thief River Falls meet-counting scores.

Junior varsity portion of the meet wound up as a tie at 289.

Thief River Falls coach Al Buhl figures the Prowlers should be competitive this spring. "We're going to be good, but I'm not certain just how good yet," said Buhl. "We'll find out more next week."

Thief River Falls will host East Grand Forks in another dual outing Thursday at 1 p.m. Next week's busy schedule will start with the Thief River Falls Invitational Monday at 10 a.m. The Prowlers will also appear in invitationals Tuesday at Moorhead, Thursday at Fosston and Friday at Fergus Falls.

Pioneers Open Golf Schedule

Northland Community College golf team opened its 1987 season Monday by participating in the Normandale Invitational at the Braemer Golf Course in Edina.

Rochester won the eight-team event with a five-man 328 and a three-shot victory over Austin's 331 runner-up total. Brainerd, Normandale and Willmar all came in at 341, while Minneapolis carded a 350, Northland 355 and Worthington 388.

Randy Lenoch of Rochester was meet medalist with a 77, shooting rounds of 38-39.

Northland's top finish was a tie for ninth by Brad Lane with an 83. The Thief Rver Falls AVTI student from John Taylor High School in Winnipeg had rounds of 42-41.

Dave Onkka, a Northland freshman from Thief River Falls, tied for 20th in the meet with an 88 on rounds of 47-41.

Other meet-counting Northland scores included a 90 day Grant Grabanski, a freshman from Grand Forks Central who had rounds of 40-50; a 94 by Rich Bendickson, a freshman from Thief River Falls who covered the course in 49-45; and a 97 by Chad Swendseid, a sophomore from Grand Forks Central who shot 49-48.

Swendseid is the only returning letterman for coach Deb Jacobson this spring.

Rest of the Northland scores Monday included a 99 by Darrin Abernathy of Grand Forks Central, a 99 by Duane Tougas of Oklee and a 110 by Jon Peterson of Goodridge. Abernathy had rounds of 52-47; Tougas went 49-50; and Peterson turned in a 56-54.

Jacobson said results weren't as good as the Pioneers had hoped for. "It was a little disappointing because we can do better," she explained. "The freshmen now know what it is like, and they have promised to do better."

They'll have a chance to do better Monday when the Pioneers return to the Twin Cities area for the Minneapolis Community College Invitational.

ONE OF THE presentations made last week at the Thief River Falls Elks Pee-Wee B hockey banquet was a late-arriving consolation championship trophy from a March 7-8 Fergus Falls Invitational. The trophy had to be ordered by Fergus Falls officials after they named Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks co-consolation champions when three overtimes failed to break a 4-4 tie that day. Members of the team posing with the trophy at the banquet included, front row left to right, Brett Torkelson, Chris Eide, Jeremy Olson, Ryan Kraemer, Guy Gustafson, Hans Helgeson, and Matt Vagle; middle row left to right, Jared Goldsberry, Darin Weleski, Shane Pederson, Trevor Haugen, Chris Thompson, Jim Olson, and Jereme Fimrite; back row left to right, assistant coach Terry Olson, Aaron Halvorson, Mark Sullivan, Darin Feragen, Pete Antonenko, Kevin Johnson, and head coach Art Cloutier.

Outdoor News

Newly-hatched turtles, naturally attracted to the sea by the rising or setting sun, are easily disoriented by artificial lights from beachfront development. So, several Florida counties and towns have passed ordinances restricting beach lighting between May and October, the prime sea-turtle nesting season. According to International Wildlife magazine, the protective ordinances require that beachfront lights be turned off after 11 p.m. or shielded so they don't shine directly on the beach. The penalty for not complying? A $500-a-day fine and possible jail sentence.

Prowlers Play Vikings . . .

Baseball Opener Slated Thursday

First-year Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff will debut with the Prowlers Thursday when they open the 1987 high school baseball season at Ada. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls' home opener is scheduled the next afternoon when the Prowlers host Kennedy-Hallock in a 4 p.m. game at the fairgrounds diamond.

Twelve letter winners are back from last year's 10-6 team that was coached by Mark Lundin, now a teacher-coach in Warren. The list includes seniors Tom Knoff and Kory Joppru; juniors Chris Nelson, Jason Lane, Scott Vedbraaten, Chris Bjorgaard, Mike Bendickson, Joel Swanson, and Kurt Dupree; plus sophomores Dean DuChamp, Rob Coltom and John Azure.

Besides Knoff and Joppru, the only other senior on the team is Rick Rosetta, out for the sport for the first time in a number of years.

Three other sophomores on the roster are Jared Erickson, Hunter Boldt and Sean Myhrer. There are also nine freshmen who will join some of the sophomores in junior varsity action this spring.

Dan Willoughby will work with Wensloff as an assistant coach. He's a newcomer, too.

"At this point I think we look pretty solid at every position," reported Wensloff, who served as an assistant coach in football and hockey this year. "We have a few question marks at a couple of positions, but I think we'll get those taken care of. Our pitching should be okay, and our hitting should be pretty solid."

Thief River Falls' opening day line-up is expected to include Nelson as the starting pitcher, Vedbraaten behind the plate, Joppru at first base, Bjorgaard at second base, Knoff at shortstop, either Rosetta or DuChamp at third base, Dupree in right field, Swanson in center field, and Lane in left field.

Knoff, Joppru, DuChamp and Lane are also listed as pitching prospects.

MCC-Middle River Wins 16-5

Marshall County Central-Middle River scored five times in the top of the first inning Tuesday en route to a 16-5 high school baseball win over Tri County-Strandquist at Karlstad.

Corey Olson and Greg Graham both had a pair of hits for the winners, who evened their record at 1-1 after losing a season-opening 11-7 decision at Crookston last Thursday.

"We hit the ball, gave up just two walks and had just two errors," pointed out Marshall County Central-Middle River coach Sam Gebhart. "I thought we played pretty well."

The winner's big first inning began with three walks and a two-run single by Olson. Another walk was followed by an RBI single by Graham, and yet another walk was followed by an RBI single by Jon Kragness.

Marshall County Central-Middle River was out-hit 10-8, but with seven errors. The winners had a 5-1 lead when the first inning ended, made it 8-3 in the third, pulled away with a three-run fourth and completed the one-sided victory by building a 16-3 lead in the top of the sixth.

Darin Rokke went the first five innings on the mound for the win. Tom Blazek pitched the sixth inning. Paul Olson took the loss, lasting just one-third of an inning. Shannon Boen finished on the mound for the hosts, who had a three-hit plate performance from Dan Coffield.

Marshall County Central-Middle River will visit Warroad Friday and will host Roseau Saturday at Middle River.

The evening will include a showing of the 1986 Minnesota Twins highlight film.

Proceeds will go to the Thief River Falls youth baseball program. The ticket-selling players are asked to turn in their ticket money and unsold tickets to program officials before the smorgasbord.

The smorgasbord meal will be pot-luck style served by parents of the youth baseball players. Parents of 7-8-9-year-olds are asked to bring a desert that evening; parents of 10-11-12-year-olds are asked to prepare a salad; and parents of 13-14-15-year-olds are asked to supply a hot dish.

Chance To Play At Metrodome

Thief River Falls Jewel Box and the Oklee A's are two of 28 teams across the state who have been invited to participate in the Softball Night Marathon promotion following a Minnesota Twins vs. Texas Rangers American League baseball game at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis June 5.

Teams throughout the state submitted requests to participate in the fund-raising efforts for the Minnesota Special Olympics. A drawing was held to select the match-ups for the 14 games.

Both the Jewel Box and the Oklee A's are in the men's slow pitch Class C-D division. Jewel Box will be paired against a team from Monticello. Oklee A's will meet a team from Ogillvie. Game times will be announced later.

Fourth annual Softball Night Marathon starts immediately after the completion of the 7:05 p.m. Friday, June 5, Twins-Rangers game and will continue through 3 p.m. Saturday. The Twins and Rangers play again that night at 7:05.

To qualify for the Metrodome appearance, teams must meet three stipulations: 1) they must submit $100 per team participation fee; 2) they must sell a combined minimum of 100 tickets for the Twins-Rangers Friday or Saturday, June 5 or 6, games; and 3) they must secure a sponsor to pledge a minimum of $75 to the Special Olympics.

In Thief River Falls, members of the Jewel Box tream will be selling tickets to the June 5 and 6 Twins-Rangers games. Tickets can also be purchased at the Jewel Box, TO Sporting Goods and Ekeren Drug. Tickets are priced at $5 for lower deck outfield reserved seats, $7 for upper deck reserved seats and $9 for lower deck reserved seats.

Deadline for purchasing the tickets through the Thief River Falls sources is May 8. Teams unable to sell the minimum 100 tickets will forfeit the opportunity to play in the Metrodome.

Minnesota Special Olympics will benefit from the Softball Night Marathon by being given a portion of each ticket sale.

Members of the Jewel Box team have also drawn up plans for a bus-motel package for the weekend for anyone interested in making the trip to Minneapolis. Details are available by contacting team spokesman Brett Brandon at 681-1330 evenings.

The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts, National Wildlife Federation

The Attraction of Grasses

Think of "landscaping grasses" and most of us picture an expanse of manicured green lawn. But there are many other kinds of grasses that can be used in place of shrubs or perennials: tall, graceful, murmuring grasses that look great all-year round (with once-a-year cutting); some that can be plucked to make drygrass arrangements; and, as a bonus, most are highly attractive to wildlife (especially to birds and butterflies) for both food and shelter.

Meadows and prairies are primarily grasses. The grasses lie thick under the showy meadow wildflowers—sort of like the noodles under a colorful pasta sauce (though I admit that image may have occurred to me in one of my hungrier moments). At any rate, the flowers give the whole mass flavor and character, while the grasses give a meadow substance and structure.

Whether your yard can accommodate a meadow or just a spot or two of decorative grasses, here are some native kinds to consider:

- Switch grass (Panicum virgatum): A tall (4 to 6-foot), dense-stemmed grass that hisses and rustles pleasingly in winter winds. It's a good soil binder, and is often used in erosion control work. Its dense growth makes it good wildlife habitat and its large seeds attract a wide variety of sparrows. Its bleached blond winter color enhances a landscape.
- Big bluestem (Andropogon gerardi): Another tall (4 to 6-foot) grass, a mainstay of midwestern U.S. prairies, and as excellent a forage for cattle as it once was for buffalo. Its early-summer first leaves are blue, but its flowering heads are deep purple. Its texture is quite delicate.
- Indian grass (Sorghastrum nutans): Another tall grass, and one of colorful but subtle bloom in early to mid-August. It sprouts readily in full sun in good warm soil. It forms a dense clump, thereby lending itself well to individual plantings. A fascinating side-feature: the dried seeds wriggle and writhe, jump and twist when moistened with water—probably a help to these light seeds in reaching the soil through dense, unburnt prairie thatch.

- Broom sedge (Andropogon virginicus): A relative of big bluestem, it is intense pinkish-orange in winter, spectacular against new-fallen snow. Its tiny seeds are relished by a number of sparrow species.

If you'd like to seek out some native grasses available for landscaping you'll find a good resource in Grasses, an Identification Guide by Lauren Brown. There's still time this winter to harvest some seeds from nearby meadows or to order seeds from a nursery or mail-order house that sells grasses, as species or within mixtures. Why not give grasses a try?

— Outdoor News —

Members of the RIM Coalition reacted enthusiastically to the support shown for funding of the Reinvest in Minnesota Program by the Perpich Administration and Senator Bob Lessard recently.

While the Coalition has not adopted a position on either the lottery or container deposit legislation, it is very appreciative of the efforts being made to provide financing for RIM.

During the 1987 legislative session, members of the Coalition are concentrating their efforts on development and passage of the RIM bill, seeking both interim and permanent funding for initiatives to develop and preserve wildlife habitat, restore fishing capability and improve Minnesota's tourism and outdoor recreation industries.

Original Governor's Citizens' Commission to Promote Hunting and Fishing in Minnesota called for using a portion of the sales tax revenues generated by hunting, fishing and tourism to fund RIM. The RIM Coalition has consistently supported this concept of re-investment of tax-generated dollars to maintain the natural resource base necessary for a vital outdoor industry.

RIM program, as a program to rebuild Minnesota's hunting and fishing industries and promote conservation of our natural resources through enhancement of fish and wildlife habitat, enjoys widespread support throughout Minnesota.

DNR NEWS

According to DNR Fisheries Section Chief, Dick Hassinger, the state has stocked 121 streams and 167 lakes throughout the state with 5.7 million trout and salmon weighing a total of 122 tons. "Of this number, Lanesboro produced about 94,000 pounds of trout and Crystal Springs generated an estimated 46,000 pounds," Hassinger said. A total of 55-770 pounds of trout and salmon were produced by French River and 43,432 pounds at Spire Valley," he said. Another 2,977 pounds of trout and salmon were stocked from private sources.

"The number and size of trout stocked in different locations varied a lot due to different management plans and recommendations," Hassinger added. "All of the 2.3 million salmon and 3.4 million trout were stocked in Lake Superior and North Shore streams."

Production and stocking costs were paid for with funds from the fishing license surcharge and through the sale of trout and salmon stamps. The federal, Dingell-Johnson program is expected to reimburse the state for about 75 per cent of the total cost.

River Facilities Projects

"Twenty-two river projects were completed in 1986 on 10 designated canoe and boating routes," Steve Kirch, supervisor of the DNR's River Recreation Program, said this week. They should greatly improve the recreational opportunities in the state for river users.

Fifteen of these projects have upgraded existing river access sites on the Minnesota, Mississippi, Root, Zumbro, St. Louis, Big Fork, Rum, and Snake rivers. "By providing improvements such as new ramps, enlarged parking areas, and step landing additions, we are encouraging the organized use of rivers in Minnesota, and reducing the occurrence of trespassing," Kirch explained.

Besides improving existing sites, new facility development includes an access site on the Mississippi River, campsites on the Rum and Snake rivers and portages on the Snake and Little Fork rivers.

Access on the Mississippi River can be found six miles north of Crosby at the Highway 6 bridge crossing. "A paved approach and concrete ramp will provide access both for trailered boats and canoes at this popular fishing area," he said. The Rum River enthusiast will find an additional campsite located eight miles west of Cambridge. "This two-cluster campsite, called West Point, lies in an abandoned farm meadow, and campers will be delighted by its prairie-like character," Kirch added.

Snake River veterans will be relieved to discover the Lower Falls portage has been relocated. The original portage, 10 miles north of Mora, has been replaced with an easier portage on the north bank. The new trail is 300 yards shorter and traverses less rugged terrain. Located just off the portage trail is a newly developed, single cluster campsite. "The site has traditionally been used for camping and provides a great view of the Lower Falls," Kirch said.

To assist the less-than-expert canoeist along the Little Fork River, a portage trail has been developed around Deadman's Rapids. Located 17 miles south of Little Fork, 160 rods of trail by-pass potentially hazardous, Class II-III rapids.

"We have noticed a gradual increase in the popularity of canoeing and boating on our riverways," Kirch said. "These improved facilities are an effort to help keep pace with this increased use."

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle River-Snake River Watershed District 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota until 4:00 o'clock PM on May 7, 1987 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers, scrapers, graders, and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a servis recorder.

The works to be done consists of; but is not limited to, the clearing and disposal of trees and brush, the disposal of rocks, the construction of dikes, the grading of roadways, the leveling of spoilbanks, the installation of culverts, and the removal of sediment from drainage channels. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer for the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following; price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis-Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payments will be made on a monthly basis. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost, its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal, promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has Workmans Compensation Insurance and Liability Insurance.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Dated at Warren, Minnesota this 6th day of April, 1987.

Opera Block Fire Investigation To Be Closed

News release from the Crookston fire department states the investigation on the Opera Block building will be closed.

At 5:52 p.m. on March 11, the Opera Block building caught fire and was totally destroyed. The cause and origin of the fire has been under investigation pending statements from owners and occupants and lab reports. As of April 21, 1987, the current investigation will be closed because the statements have been concluded and the lab report finished.

According to the news release, the evidence accumulated at this time does not indicate that the fire was intentionally set. This also, does not rule out an accidental fire cause as well.

The conclusion and official classification will still be a suspicious and undetermined cause fire" and "an undetermined cause fire" with the origin being in the boiler room area.

The statement concludes, "If any further developments occur, the case can be reopened, but for now the case is closed without any criminal indictments being sought."

Garden Club Meets In Goodridge

The Deer Park Garden Club met last Tuesday at the Senior Center in Goodridge. Pres. Norma Hanson presided at the business meeting. She said next September 17, The United States will celebrate the Bicentenniel of it's constitution. Along with parades, picnics, & fireworks displays of that day, many other happenings will help memorialize the occasion. Among them will be the "Constitution Gardens." Projects might take a variety of forms - creation of new public gardens, restoration of neglected parks, refurbishment of grounds of public buildings, development of garden projects for the handicapped or children. Clubs, groups, community leaders & individuals can all take part in the Bicentennial by beautifying some part of their community with plants & flowers. A red, white & blue color theme has been encouraged. Your own ideas for the design of the garden are best, but for a start, it might spell out the name of your community or park, dipict it's logo, or be a simple pattern of waves or concentric circles. Use bedding plants.

It is indeed a fun thing to add to our community, by creating a Bicentennial flower garden. Norma Hanson, 13th district chairperson & Lovonne Radnicki will be taking 6 pictures per member in our local district & garden club Bicentennial projects.

Lois Swanson reported on her Long Keeper tomatoes that she picked out of the garden in October and kept us with tomatoes all Winter.

Mary Kusmak read a poem Spring Flowers from Ideals.

Hostess Francis Aandal gave a lesson on planting and caring of tomatoes. Strip leaves off part way & lay them in a trench.

Plant sale was discussed by Chairperson Delores Bendickson, to be held in May in Goodridge.

Fieldwork In MN Gets Early Start

The record-breaking warm temperatures of March led to hopes for an early spring planting season, but cool temperatures in early April delayed fieldwork slightly, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

All crop reporting districts have started fieldwork. Full-scale fieldwork is expected to be in progress in all districts by the end of next week; the average date for full-scale fieldwork to begin in the state is April 15 compared with April 25 in 1986.

Topsoil moisture as of April 10 was reported as being six per cent very short, 30 per cent short, and 64 per cent adequate. Several counties in the northeast portion of the South Central district reported very short topsoil moisture and some reports voiced fears of poor germination because of the shortage. Most areas of the state reported adequate amounts of moisture. The Northwest and North Central districts had frost remaining in the ground in some areas but expect this to disappear with the next rainfall.

Field crop planting is well ahead of schedule. Spring wheat is 11 per cent planted, oats are 25 per cent planted and barley is four per cent planted, compared with last year at zero, two per cent and zero respectively. At this time in 1986 zero per cent of the land had been prepared for either corn or soybean planting. This year, corn land prepared for planting is at the seven per cent level and land prepared for soybean planting is at four per cent. Six per cent of the green pea acreage has been planted to date, well ahead of last year's one per cent level.

Generally, fall seeded small grains have come through the winter fairly well; condition is rated four per cent poor, 36 per cent fair, 33 per cent good, and one per cent excellent, with 27 per cent still dormant. Hay supplies are reported ranging from adequate to plentiful throughout the state.

MN Potato Stocks Down 25 Per Cent Over Last Year

Estimated stocks of potatoes in Minnesota as of April 1, 1987, were 4.0 million hundredweight according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This level is 25 per cent below the same time a year ago and shows a disappearance during March of 2.3 million hundredweight. Estimated stocks by type are not available for the remainder of the 1986 crop marketing year.

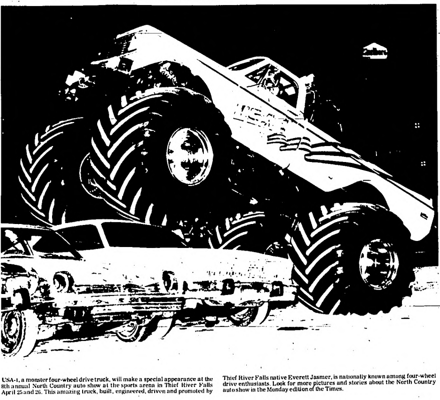
In the Minnesota - North Dakota Red River Valley, stocks are estimated at 8.9 million hundredweight, 20 per cent below a year ago. March disappearance totaled 4.8 million hundredweight for the Valley.

April 1, 1987, potato stocks totaled 91.7 million hundredweight in the 15 fall storage states. This is down 12 per cent fron a year ago, but five per cent above two years ago. Storage contained 30 per cent of 1986 fall production, virtually the same percentage as on April 1 a year ago.

The three eastern states stored 6.9 cent from last year. Stocks in the six western states totaled 69.8 million hundredweight, down one per cent from last year. Idaho stocks of 38.0 million hundredweight are nine per cent above last year.

Disappearance of 1986 fall production to April 1 totaled 209 million hundredweight, down 13 per cent from last year and four per cent below 1984 crop movement. Shrinkage and loss are down 42 per cent showing 23.3 million hundredweight this year compared to 40.4 million hundredweight last year. March disappearance was 33.2 million hundredweight, three per cent below a year ago.

Processing usage so far this season totals 92.1 million hundredweight, down five per cent from last year.



USA-1, a monster four-wheel drive truck, will make a special appearance at the 8th annual North Country auto show at the sports arena in Thief River Falls April 25 and 26. ## Goodridge Students And Teachers Of Month . . .

Students, Teachers Speak Well Of Their School

Goodridge school recently released its monthly newsletter. Several teachers and students have been selected as students and teachers of the month during March.

Featured teachers include Gary Jacobson, Diane Paulson and Helen Anderson. Featured students include Jennifer Vad, Derek Howard and Richard Troska.

Gary Jacobson, a graduate of the Walker high school in 1981, is now teaching English in grades 6 through 12 in the Goodridge public school system. Gary received his bachelor of science degree from Bemidji State university.

Gary's great interest is in theatre. He participated in a number of plays while in high school and observed a number of productions in college.

His hobbies include fishing, reading and listening to music. He also finds time to sing at funerals and weddings.

Special efforts in the classroom this year include getting the students to enjoy writing. Considerable time is spent in the classroom on creative writing and other functional kinds of writing.

He enjoys his teaching career and plans to attend summer school. Gary stated, "I would not have it any other way than teaching in a small school system, even though there are financial problems in the smaller school. I don't let that issue get in my way when it comes to doing a good job in the classroom."

Diane Paulson, a 1974 graduate of the Goodridge public school, spent two years studying at Northland community college and then transferred to Bemidji State University where she received her bachelor of science degree in elementary education with concentration in the reading and learning disability field. She is working on her special education degree and attends classes two nights a week at Bemidji State.

She is currently teaching grades seven through twelve in the reading and learning disability area at the Goodridge school.

Diane and her husband David have two children, Nicole who is in seventh grade and Troy who is in the third grade. They live in the city of Goodridge.

Her hobbies include camping with the family in the summer; and walking two miles everyday. She likes visiting with friends for relaxing moments in her life. Diane is looking forward to Spring as she has plans to get her yard in shape after a year of preparing the yard for landscaping.

Diane loves to attend ball games and she can often be heard above all others.

Helen Anderson, formerly of Cavalier, ND, and now living in Thief River Falls with her husband Steve and two children, Kevin, a freshman at St. Olaf college and Kia, a tenth grader at Lincoln high school, is now in her fifth year as music instructor at the Goodridge public school. Her first teaching job was in Chaffee, ND.

She received her bachelor of science degree from NDSU in Fargo, with extensive studying at Bemidji, Moorhead and St. Cloud universities. She recently attended a workshop on choreography and has studied guitar.

Helen's hobbies include participating in the Thief River Falls community band, Masterworks chorale and singing in church. She is also an avid gardener. Her more relaxing moments are spent bicycling, sewing, boating. More recently, Helen and her husband purchased a motorcycle to use in traveling around the countryside this summer.

During her instructional years, Helen taught in Kennedy, Strandquist, and Lancaster, and at one time she was the manager of the Hallmark store in Thief River Falls.

Helen thinks the students in Goodridge public school are very friendly and that there are some top notch musicians in the school. She hopes that they will continue to pursue a career in the field of music. She has done a marvelous job in band and has entered the elementary department with her instructions on playing in the school band. The Fall and Spring concerts that are under her direction are looked forward to by the Goodridge community.

Jennifer Vad, second grade daughter of Lynn and Laurie Vad was chosen as the elementary student of the month. Jennifer has several talents and hobbies. She enjoys swimming, painting, skating and piano.

Jennifer says what she likes best about the Goodridge school is all her classes. Although, her favorite subject is math.

CITY LAGOONS were shock treated with a faculative anaerobe (bacteria), which metabolizes hydrogen sulfide. Hydrogen sulfide is the primary culprit to the odiferous smell coming from the lagoons in Thief River Falls. Edward W. Gannon, Mazer chemicals, said hydrogen sulfide is not the only cause of the smell but it is probably the biggest culprit. Lately the smell from the lagoons has been getting worse, according to several residents who live by the lagoons. Mazer chamicals hopes treatment with the non-reproductive bacteria will eliminate the smell. The first treatment will cost about $10,000 and $900 to $1,000 per month thereafter. It is designed as a temporary solution to the problem. Last Monday crews were spraying the anaerobe onto the ponds.

FMS Bands And Orchestra Perform

Franklin Middle school orchestra conducted by Heidi Guenther Ryan and the sixth, seventh and eighth grade bands directed by Mike Lehrer, will present their annual Spring concert 7:30 p.m. April 28 in the Franklin Middle school gymnasium. In addition to the music of the orchestra and bands, many solos and ensembles will be performed.

The audience will be treated to solo and ensemble performances by:

The String Quartet with Lars Dyrud, Jeff Frei, Dawn Klopp and Aimee Tyler; the Alto Sax Duet with Jay Miller and Kyle Svendsgaard; a Clarinet solo with Andrea Campbell, accompanied by Jean Petterson; Alto Saxophone Trio with Missy Carriere, Jessica Hagenah and Sanna Torgerson; a Clarinet Trio with Amy Enge, Kristi Lindberg and Brenda Lutovsky; a Flute Trio with Kim Hoefer, Sarah Holmstrom and Angie Teie; a Bass Clarinet solo with Mandy Miller, accompanied by Jocelyn Goldsberry; a Flute Solo with Christine Halsa, accompanied by Marie Hvidsten; and a Trumpet Trio with Darla Ayers, Lisa DeLap and Alison Peterson, accompanied by Kari DeLap.

Although there is still over one month of school left, this concert really represents the final public examination for many of these students, said Mike Lehrer. It is the final opportunity to examine their ability to develop their musicianship, their personal discipline, character and their ability to work together in groups to "build" a quality musical performance.

We, the directors, are pleased with our student' progress, and with their parents' encouragement and guidance. We sincerely thank all students and parents for a great year.

Governor Perpich Seeks Support For NCC Building Plans

Governor Rudy Perpich in a telephone conversation this week with officials at Northland community college encouraged local lobbying of legislative delegates to gain support for the building expansion program at Northland Community college.

Nichols of Northland community college to seek local support in the form of letters and telephone calls to members of the legislature asking that Northland be funded so that facilities are available to local residents.

Governor Perpich pointed out the economic development factors that would be reaped from the $4.2 million expansion project at Northland. The expansion program would provide for many services to the local community. Meeting rooms would be available. The gymnasium would be large enough to hold tournaments. Both would add to area economic development in the form of bringing individuals and teams into the area.

WE BELONG TO HIM

The little boy worked hard creating his little sailboat that measured about twelve inches. He spent hours and days, carving, cutting, and gluing it.

When he sailed it on a stream that ran through the park, it got into a fast current and was soon out of sight. Lost.

Weeks later the little fellow was walking down the street and spotted his small boat in the window of a pawn shop.

"That's my boat!" he screamed to the shop keeper.

"I'm sorry, son, but I bought that boat from another boy. It's mine. I paid him money for it," said the shop owner.

"How much do you want for it?" asked the little boy. When given a price he ran home, robbed his piggy bank, and came back and bought his boat.

Holding it close to his chest, he whispered to it, "You are mine twice: I made you and now I bought you."

We belong to God both by CREATION and REDEMPTION. He created us and, through His Son, redeemed us.

Meet him Sunday in His House of Worship and express thanksgiving that He has both created and redeemed you.

Zoos Hold Hope For Recovery Of Native Guam Bird Species

by Michael Morgan
Smithsonian News Service

Biologists visiting the Pacific island of Guam describe the scene as "surreal." Dawn breaks without a sound in the island's tropical forests. Once, as first light found its way through the trees, the calls of thousands of birds would have filled the air. But, today, dead silence conveys an eerie message: The bird life of Guam is gone.

The bridled white-eye, the Guam broadbill and the rufous-fronted fantail, three of the five species of birds endemic to the island of Guam, became extinct so quickly in an avian population crash during the early 1980s that no one realized there was a problem until it was too late.

Puzzled bird watchers noted that the females were the first to disappear. The two remaining species — a strikingly marked, nine-inch-tall flightless rail and a small, brightly colored land-feeding kingfisher — appeared to be doomed to follow the others into biological history.

To the rescue came officials of the Guam division of aquatic and wildlife resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service, who put the fate of the Guam rail and the Micronesian kingfisher in the hands of zoo ornithologists. In July 1983, birds collected on Guam were sent to a handful of zoos in the United States, including the Smithsonian's National Zoological park, where the creatures are being given a second chance.

"Zoos were in a unique position to save these birds," says Scott Derrickson, National Zoo curator of birds. "Something had to be done without delay. Zoo aviculturalists had the knowledge to manage and breed the birds, as well as the facilities and the established organizational base required to undertake the project on virtually a moment's notice.

"It's going to be difficult," Derrickson adds, "but we've already made some real headway, and we remain optimistic." At the beginning of 1987, the National Zoo, the Philadelphia Zoo and the Bronz Zoo had pushed the known world population of rails from 10 to 95, and the kingfishers, which are notoriously difficult to breed, from 26 to 46. The early success of the cooperative breeding program was recognized by a top award for animal husbandry from the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums. Already, the cooperative breeding project is expanding, and additional zoo participants are being sought.

It's not only the birds unique to Guam that are in trouble, Philadelphia Zoo ornithologist L.C. Shelton warns. "On Guam, all forest birds are definitely in the twilight of their existence."

Pesticide residues, exotic diseases and outright habitat destruction have been ruled out as possible causes of the Guam ecological catastrophe. The culprit has been identified as the brown tree snake, Boiga irregularis, introduced to the island from Australia or New Guinea in the late 1940s.

The rear-fanged, venomous snake reaches a length of 10 feet, and its population on Guam has skyrocketed to an estimated seven snakes per acre. The carnivorous reptile is active at night and often hunts in trees. Studies of this predator reveal that birds and bird eggs make up almost one-third of its diet. This explains the early disappearance of female birds, which fell prey to the snake while incubating eggs at night.

Guam's wildlife officers are haunted by fears that the snake's dining habits may result in the extinction of many other small vertebrates as well.

Several methods of controlling the snake are being studied. Among them are proposals for the introduction of a parasitic mite, development of chemical repellants, physical barriers and the use of trapping devices to reduce the number of snakes.

One plan would involve creating a market for the snake's skin, thereby encouraging collection of the reptile for profit. It may be a first, Derrickson says, if conservationists and merchants of wild animal products join ranks in an effort to solve an environmental problem.

Guam is not alone in its problem. The fate of most bird species that inhabit islands is uncertain, according to Warren King of the International Council for Bird Preservation. King estimates that about 95 per cent of the 240 species and subspecies of birds that have become extinct since 1600 were island natives.

"Island birds are adapted to specific conditions foudnd on the island where they evolved," Derrickson explains. "They are often ill-equipped to resist introduced predators and disease, as well as other environemtnal changes."

Officials fear that birds on Hawaii and perhaps other Pacific islands may soon be threatened. In 1985, two brown tree snakes that apparently arrived as hitchhikers on shipments of inter-island cargo, were discovered in Hawaii. Although the snakes were eliminated, scientists are monitoring the situation carefully to ensure that the snakes do not become established on the island.

In the meantime, at the National Zoo's Conservation and Research Center in Front Royal, VA, an entire wing of a new small-animal facility has been dedicated to the Guam bird-rescue project. In the naturally lighted building, a series of large cages is carefully equipped for the birds. To accomodate a special requirement of the kingfisher, rotted palm logs were shipped from Florida and placed in the birds' enclosures. The little kingfisher's courtship patterns involve the excavation of a nesting cavity, and the interior of an old palm provides the perfect medium. Forty-five rails and 11 kingfishers are housed at the Front Royal, VA, center.

There, visitors are excluded, the animal keepers speak in whispers and the birds are protected from infection using the same kind of management practices found in hospitals. Five keepers who care for the Guam birds take special care to prevent exposure of the animals to microorganisms and parasites with which they may not be able to cope or which they might some day carry back to their home in the Pacific.

Derrickson cautions that the initial increase in the number of Guam birds achieved through captive breeding is not a guarantee of their survival. "There is a wild card in the deck," he says. "With 26 potential breeders at the outset, the kingfisher may do all right — if we can keep them nesting. A problem for the rails may be the small number of founders: just nine birds. We don't know if the species will hold up through the inevitable inbreeding."

No matter how well captive stocks are genetically managed, inbreeding can occur quickly in a gene pool this small, and inherited traits that reduce viability can soon put the whole population at risk of dying out. For example, studies conducted at the National Zoo on black ducks and mandarin ducks revealed that inbreeding in small populations led to reduced fertility and hatchability of eggs as well as reduced survivorship of hatchlings. Thus, genetic management in zoo collections is essential for the long-term preservation of many species in captivity.

There is a tenth Guam rail that Derrickson would like to include among the founding population in order to expand the breeding program's genetic base. Unfortunately, the bird has behavioral abnormalities that prevent it from mating. The conservation center's staff has investigated the problem and is conditioning the bird for an attempt at artificial insemination — a procedure thus far unproven in rails.

"Maintaining records of lineage and exercising central control over the pairing of the birds are the key elements of genetic management," Derrickson says. "As the keeper of the 'studbook' (a record of genetic heritage of captive animals for a particular species) for rails, I've got to pair the offspring at all zoos in a manner that maximizes outbreeding and then hope for the best."

"The good news," Derrickson continues, "is that the rails have been prolific, and plans are now being developed to introduce some of the captive-reared birds to an island near Guam that offers a similar habitat but is free of the snake. If we keep the population going long enough and find a way to control the snake, we could turn this situation around."

His favorite subjects in school are computers and industrial arts, but they are all pretty good.

His special achievements are going to the State fair with his rockets and land conservation entries, representing Goodridge at the regional spelldown this year, and winning at the science fair at Goodridge.

Derek's extra-curricular activities include the C team basketball and school band.

He is a past president and treasurer of his 4-H group. He is in the church youth group also.

What he likes best about the Goodridge school is that more people can play and be in activities, and everyone is thoughtful and willing to help people.

Richard Troska, son of Harvey and Betty Troska, was chosen as the senior high school student of the month. Richard, a 12th grade student, has three sisters, Georgine, Vicki and Diane, and four brothers, Lew, Daniel, Patrick and James.

Richard enjoys playing basketball, football, reading and bowling. His favorite subjects in school are history and English.

Richard was chosen for Boys State and the honor society. He is the current president of his 4-H group.

His extra-curricular activities include participation on the knowledge bowl team, and manager of the Girl's basketball team. He belongs to the German club, honor society and 4-H. He is president of all three of them.

The best things about Goodridge school for Richard, he says, would have to include being a senior and that the teachers are interested in helping him get ready for college.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

How To Teach Ethics

Columnist Lars-Eric Nelson recently wrote the following column for the New York Daily News and the thought provides a new perspective on a situation in the news recently:

How do you get the Harvard Business School to teach business ethics? Give it a bribe.

The Harvard Business School teaches all manner of things — tax avoidance, union-busting, and, my own personal favorite, "harvesting the rewards" — but it has never had a formal ethics program. It is not, after all, a divinity school. Its purpose is to teach its students, who pay $25,000 a year in tuition and expenses, how to make much more money than other people.

This month, John Shad, the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the man who socked Ivan Boesky $100 million for insider trading, gave Harvard Business School $20 million to set up an ethics program. It is not really a bribe. Just kidding, Harvard. It's a gift. The free market works. You give Harvard Business School money, and Harvard Business School will give you ethics.

But business ethics is a murky concept. The essence of free market capitalism is that the public good is best served when each person pursues his own private interest. As wise old Adam Smith wrote in 1776, "I have never known much good done by those who affected to trade for the public good."

What has suddenly brought ethics to the forefront of the business community's attention? Is it the destruction of America's manufacturing base for the sake of short-term corporate profits? If it the highest continuing level of unemployment since the end of World War II? Is it violation of anti-pollution laws, the looting of company pension funds or the dismissal of thousands of employees in mindless mergers that tie up billions of dollars of our national wealth?

No, it is none of the above.

Lack of ethics has cut into corporate profits. The insider-trading scandals on Wall Street and the corporate raids on one's competitors are not bad merely because they are unethical, but because they have cost money.

Then does ethics become a factor to the corporate intellect? Take Texaco, the nation's third biggest oil company, which applied for bankruptcy protection Sunday. Texaco is trying to avoid paying Pennzoil an $11.1 billion judgment awarded by a yahoo Texas jury — the kind that gives 999-year sentences for marijuana possession.

The award is preposterous, even though Texaco apparently sabotaged the proposed Pennzoil takeover of Getty Oil in 1984. Even more preposterous: As he sought the protection of bankruptcy, Texaco President James Kinnear said at a news conference, "Pennzoil has placed its own greed above any consideration of fundamental fairness of the public welfare."

Gadzooks, there is greed at Pennzoil. Texaco is interested, by contrast, in fundamental fairness and the public welfare — i.e., ethics. It is the kind of concern for ethics you acquire when you owe people money: Suddenly, they seem morally undeserving of being paid.

Texaco has a right to complain about the Houston jury's verdict, but whenever an oil company begins to talk about fundamental fairness and the public welfare, I reach for Robert McIntyre's 1986 report on corporate income taxes, issued by Citizens for Tax Justice. It says:

In 1982, while America was in recession and plunging into deficit to pay for President Reagan's defense buildup, Texaco made $627 million in profit and paid zero federal income tax. In 1983, Texaco made $130 million in profit and paid zero income tax. In 1984, Texaco made $120 million in profit and paid zero income tax.

By current business standards, this tax avoidance was all perfectly ethical and perfectly legal. There is nothing in the law or ethical standards that requires a U.S. corporation to operate in the national interest. But was Texaco's nonpayment of taxes fundamentally fair and for the benefit of the public welfare?

This might be a good course for the new ethics program at the Harvard Business School. They might call it, "How to Discover Business Ethics Even Before a Court Tells You That You Owe Somebody $11.1 Billion."

Aiding The Racing Industry

It's been a long time since any one special interest has waged the kind of campaign that Canterbury Downs has exerted this legislative session to get a reduction in its tax payments. Even the iron mining industry didn't have the same sort of effort when taconite taxes were being considered a numbers of years ago.

Quite frankly, we don't believe that the Downs really has a case for special consideration. Those who invested in the venture knew the rules of the game — or they should have — and the rules have not changed. That the track has not made profits anticipated is one of the facts of life of capital investment. Some ventures pay off, others don't. One can't fault the track promoters for trying to reduce the tax load, but that doesn't mean that the legislature should give away the farm.

Elmer Anderson, editor of the Princeton Union-Eagle, thinks the track should be given a special break. For the benefit of those intersted in the reasons why, we reprint the editorial he wrote for publication on April 9 as follows:

In the closing weeks of any legislative session there can be confusion on issues and facts. Also, legislators are particularly sensitive to sentiment in their home district. One of the issues needing some discernment and local support relates to tax relief for Canterbury Downs.

Most people feel the coming of horseracing to Minnesota has been a success. The owners built a fine facility in record time that Minnesotans enjoy showing off to visitors. The owners also kept raising the purses to attract better and better horses and jockeys.

Employment was provided to large numbers of people, at and off the trek. A horse breeding activity began to expand. Everything was on a carefully managed plan — people had a new entertainment opportunity and the economy benefitted substantially as a result.

The one shortcoming is that the owners and investors have experienced substantial losses. The basic reason is that they were required to pay a tax that has proved to be punitively onerous. Canterbury Downs pays every corporate tax any other corporation in the state pays. In addition, however, it is taxed on all amounts wagered. The rate is 1¾ per cent on the first $48 million and six per cent on all over that. Last season the average was 5.1 per cent.

Of the total amount wagered, approximately 80 per cent goes back to the bettors. This leaves a balance of 20 per cent for the racetrack as its revenue. The 5.1 per cent of total wagering becomes 20 to 25 per cent of the racetrack share of the gross and it is simply not possible to cover that. If there is no relief the immediate presure will be for lower purses, poorer personal services and a less attractive operation for the customer.

If the tax is not eliminated it should be substantially reduced, possibly to one per cent across the board to recognize Canterbury Downs has a monopoly situation and that is worth some tax premium.

Private capital has invested a large amount of money, has provided a stylish facility and an operation of which the state can be proud. Given profitable operations they'll pay as much corporate tax as any other company. We would urge the Legislature to encourage them to build on their initial success by recognizing the harshness of the present tax situation and providing some relief.

That's what former governor Elmer L. Andersen has to say about the Canterbury Downs request. It would be interesting to see what our readers think. Do you agree or disagree?

Borrowed Nonsense

A young man who received the following letter from his girl friend is still trying to deciper it: "Dear John: I hope you're not still angry. I want to explain I was really joking when I told you I didn't mean what I said about reconsidering my decision not to change my mind. Please believe me."

Lecturer: "Iceland is about the same size as Siam."

Student's Note: "Iceland is about the same size as the teacher."

The teenage girl got to the telephone booth just ahead of the hurried businessman. "Don't worry about me taking a long time," she said. "I just want to hang up on somebody."

The little girl was explaining to her grandfather about one of her friends: "I'm Easter and she's Passover; I'm Christmas and she's Hanukah; but we're both Trick or Treat!"

Additional charges may be placed against the three in connection with the theft of two mail sacks from a truck on the Soo depot platform. Postal inspectors were investigating the case.

Submersible Units Search Ocean Depths

by William G. Schulz
Smithsonian News Service

The craft moves through space with seeming effortlessness. Inside the crew compartment, an operator controls a mechanical arm that can manipulate and retrieve objects. Television and still cameras record the strange, dark environment.

That scene silently unfolded many times earlier this year when the Johnson-Sea-Link submersibles, operated by the Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution, Inc., salvaged parts of the space shuttle Challenger off the coast of Florida. Even more recently, the submersible Alvin, operated by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, surveyed the wreckage of the doomed luxury liner, Titanic, 12,500 feet down the icy waters of the North Atlantic.

Although these examples from recent headlines dramatize the versatility of submersibles, for several decades marine scientists have been using underwater vehicles and habitats without fanfare to study the biology and geology of the world's oceans.

In tribute to the value of this technology, the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C., recently put on exhibit the retired underwater habitat Hydrolab, on loan from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Of the habitat, Dr. James Tyler, the museum's associate director and a veteran Hydrolab user, says, "I could accomplish work in one week that would take six weeks using surface diving."

At one time, Hydrolab was stationed 50 feet down among the coral reefs off the coast of St. Croix in the Virgin Islands. Retired in 1985 after 11 years of service, the 16-foot-long Hydrolab will be replaced by a new habitat, the George F. Bond. Both facilities were designed as an underwater home and laboratory for marine scientists who leave the habitat for collections and observations, then return to its comforts and facilities without having to undergo decompression.

Bond was a U.S. Navy captain who, in the 1960s, promoted the concept of living and working on the sea bottom for long periods of time with the aid of underwater shelters. His ideas inspired such men as famed underater pioneer Jacques Cousteau and Edwin Link, creator of the Johnson-Sea-Link submersibles, to build the first of many underwater habitats in that decade. Until Hyrrolab, however, these deep-sea refuges were bulky in design and expensive to operate.

When the Bond habitat replaces Hydrolab next year, scientists using the facility will find advanced scientific euquipment, expanded laboratory facilities, larger viewports for observations from the habitat and generally more comfortable and roomier suuroundings. Also, the Bond facility will be anchored on a portable and roomier surroundings. Also, the Bond facility will be anchored on a portable platform. Compared to the "Cadillac" luxuries of the Bond habitat, Michael De Luca, program scientist in NOAA's Office of Undersea Research, says, "Hydrolab was a Volkswagon."

With Hydrolab, scientists typically spent seven days living and working on the sea floor, although a total of three weeks was possible. As with any deep or long-duration dive, three potential hazards had to be avoided: oxygen poisoning, nitrogen narcosis and decompression sickness, also known as "the bends." Inventor and oceanographer Link brouth to reality theories about overcoming these hazards.

First, Link suggested that for extended dives the ratio of exygen to other gases in compressed air mixtures be lowered. At greater pressures, then, a diver's body would absdorb no more oxygen than it would at the surface. At depths greater than 100 feet, he suggested that nitrogen in compressed air be replaced with helium to avoid the narcotic effects of nitrogen induced in a diver at greater pressures from the otherwise harmless gas.

Decompression sickness results from rapid return to the surface, whereupon a diver's lungs cannot process all of the inert gases, principally nitrogen, absorbed by the body at great depths. The gases bubble out of solution from the bloodstream or body tissues, blocking circulation or distorting tissues with crippling and sometimes fatal results. After a typical Hydrolab mission, aquanauts had to spend about 16 ½ hours returning to surface pressures in the habitat to allow the gases to leave their bodies harmlessly.

Hydrolab has a sterling safety record, and, Tyler says, "I'm probably their best example of that fact." On a recent Hydrolab mission, he became ill with diverticulitis, an inflammation of tissue in the colon not uncommon among frequent divers. A physician was sent down to the rescue, Tyler recalls, and following emergency procedures, the aqanaut was evacuated to the surface for hospital treatment. That he is now able to prepare for studies of coral reef fishes from the new Bond facility, Tyler says, "is a credit to the safety of underwater habitats."

Link's vision of people living and working safely underwater included the use of submersibles. Submersibles differ from submarines in that they depend on a mother ship for transportation and launching at a target areas. After Cousteau introduced the possibilities for underwater research in the early 1960s with his Diving Saucer, Link developed Deep Diver.

This Advanced submersible not only had amazing maneuverability, but also incorporated Link's innovative diver "lock-out" compartment. In that section of the craft, divers could increase the pressure of the breathing medium to that of the surrounding ocean. As with Hydrolab and other habitats, a hatch on the chamber's bottom could then be safely opened, the pressure preventing an in-rush of water and allowing divers to slip out in scuba gear.

In the fore chamber of the sub, though, visibility was limited to whatever could be glimpsed through a series of small viewports. Link's solution came in the early 1970s with the Johnson-Sea-Link submersibles. Like a helicopter, the submersible's pilot chamber was a clear acrylic sphere, providing an unprecedented, panoramic view of the ocean depths. "The visibility is just about unlimited," Roger Cook, director of marine operations at Harbor Branch in Fort Pierce, Fla., says.

Besides the submersible's acrylic sphere, each Sea-Link also has a seven-function manipulator arm for retrieving or placing objects, a gentle suction device dubbed the "critter gitter" for collecting marine animals alive and specially designed, broadcast-quality video cameras. An aft chamber, separate from the pilot's sphere, has Link's diver lock-out mechanisms. The submersibles — each about 23 feet long — can dive as deep as one-half mile. "The days of just looking out and waving at fish are over," Cook says of these machines.

The relatively slow-moving submersibles like Alvin and the Johnson-Sea-Links, Cook explains, are best suited for specific tasks at a known location. For survey work, scientists often use Remotely Operated Vehicles. These small, unmanned scouts can search large portions of the sea floor in a day's time with sonar equipment and cameras.

A submersible's operating costs, NOAA's De Luca points out, can easily reach $20,000 a day, while the cost of using ROVs is considerably less. "When you're using these sophisticated facilities," he says, "you have to use them wisely."

One of the first sumbersibles still in operation is the 25-foot-long Alvin, operated by the Woods Hole facility on Cape Cod. Built in 1964, the vessel's steel, three-man crew compartment was replaced with a lighter, yet stronger titanium alloy in the early 1970s. Alvin can now dive more than two miles.

Alvin's versatility makes it useful on more than 100 scientific missions each year, Dr. Allyn Vine, one of the craft's principal creators and senior scientist emeritus at Woods Hole, explains. Alvin is tough, Vine says, citing the time in 1972 when the craft accidentally dropped from its mother ship. The crew escaped, but Alvin continued sinking to 5,000 feet. Winter weather prevented a search effort for 10 months, Vine says, but eventually the submersible was found. "The search team could turn on the lights," Vine recalls, "and the sandwiches on board looked freshly made."

Vine and others look forward to the development of even more advanced submersibles and other equipment, such as the "robot eye," Jason Jr., used to explore the Titanic. These instruments, he says, give "perspective" on the largely uncharted ocean depths and their inhabitants. That perspective, he suggests, is not that the ocean environments are strange, rather, like travelers to a foreign land, "we're the strangers." With continued efforts to explore the oceans with advanced submersibles, habitats and other equipment, we may yet become more familiar tourists in that vast environment.

Thief River Falls
THE TIMES
Volume 76, Number 33 Monday, April 27, 1987 324 Main Avenue North; Thief River Falls, MN 56701 Twenty-Five Cents

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Everett Jasmer, former Thief River Falls resident, brought home his claim to fame Friday. Jasmer brought to Thief River Falls and the 8th annual North Country auto show his USA-1, a monster four-wheel, car-crushing pickup.

'USA-1" stands 11 feet high and is 11 feet wide. It is powered by a 540-inch aluminum Can-Am Chevrolet V-8 engine super-charged and nitrous oxide injected to produce 1,000 plus horsepower.

USA-1 evolved out of Jasmer's keen interest in modifying four-wheel-drive pickups and his four-wheel specialty shop in Minneapolis where he now lives. The monster truck seen at the Thief River Falls fairgrounds this weekend is pretty much the way it finally evolved in 1981 or 1982 when all the modifications had been made to it.

Jasmer said in an interview that he now spends much of his time traveling to different shows. Since January of this year alone he has been across most of the continental United States.

As long as people continue to clamor for his car-crushing four-wheel drive pickup, Jasmer said he plans to continue showing. He hasn't seen any decline in interest, however. The pickup has been featured by all of the truck, four-wheel-drive, off-road magazines. And Everett has appeared with USA-1 on the television show "That's Incredible" and in the movie "Take This Job And Shove It."

Jasmer said there has been such a demand for his pickup that he had decided to build two more. These two will also be Chevrolets.

Jasmer said he enjoyed his return to Thief River Falls. Sunday afternoon he said he had talked to many friends and relatives. There were so many people who stopped and talked that it was hard to tell who didn't know Everett or someone in his family.

Anyone stopping to watch was thrilled by Jasmer's performance in USA-1. At least one person got a closer look at what was happening than others. Terry Olson, a friend of "INDIAN LORE" exhibit arranged by Boy Scout Troop 59 in Thief River Falls attracted considerable interest at the annual Voyageur Trails scout exposition Sunday afternoon in Thief River Falls. Outdoor displays were featured for the first time this year. Troop 59, under the direction of Jim Giles, won a blue ribbon for this display.

Outdoor Exhibits Add To Scout Exposition Success

Utilizing outdoor locations for the first time, the annual Voyageur Trails district scout exposition in Thief River Falls Sunday was considered to be another success, according to Art Heinze of Thief River Falls, chairman of the exposition.

"Exhibits by the Cub scouts and Boy scouts were of good quality," Heinze said, "and the show provided plenty of action and activity for the approximately 2,500 people who attended. Participation by the packs and troops in the district was good and there was a fine variety of ideas and activities displayed again this year."

Boy scout troops utilized the park areas near the national guard armory for their campsites and display areas. This provided ample space for setting up outdoor activities and made more room available for Cub scout booths which were located in the armory.

Judging was based on a predetermined scale and ribbon placement was awarded as follows:

Cub Scout Awards

Participation ribbons were awarded to the Order of the Arrow and concession booth supervised by Mike Fisher, Bjorkman's scout supply booth supervised by Sharon Johnson and the Voyageur Trails district booth supervised by Sam Giles.

Future Fuel Pellets Pass Major Tests

Fly ash and bottom ash from fiber fuel pellets produced by Future Fuel in Thief River Falls and used by Northwest Medical center are well below Federal EPA and Minnesota pollution control agency standards for levels of lead and cadmium, according to test results compiled by Trac Laboratories, Denton, TX.

The tests show that the fiber fuel pellets are well within the acceptable range, said Rick Nordhagen of Future Fuel.

Nordhagen said he is hopeful that these results will help Future Fuel satisfy stringent testing requirements set by the Minnesota pollution control agency. Nordhagen said this does not satisfy all testing requirements, but it is one step in completing the process.

Fly ash is defined as fine solid particles of non-combustible ash carried out of a bed of solid fuel by the draft, and bottom ash is defined as solid particles too heavy to be carried out fo the bed of solid fuel by the draft.

Federal and state standards for the amount of lead in ash is 5 milligrams per liter and for cadmium is one milligram per liter. The test results indicated that the concentration of lead in fly ash taken from the Northwest Medical center burning plant was .48 and for bottom ash was .36. The concentration of cadmium was .11 for fly ash and .02 for bottom ash.

Nordhagen said this is proof that tests on mass incinerators are not necessarily applicable to a refuse derived fuel which has gone through a separating process, like fiber fuel

Guess Who's 40 on April 28?

Cook's Choice

by Sharon LaCoursiere

Today, instead of a recipe, I'm reprinting an article I stole from the Kittson County Enterprise that appeared in "Kay's Kolumn," written by Kay Rosengren. I enjoyed it so thoroughly that I wanted to share it with all of you who have been lucky recipients of various types of "starters" over the years — and who hasn't?

"Over the years, well-meaning friends have given me numerous jars of sourdough starter. Each time this has happened, I have gone into a frenzy of preparing sourdough delicacies and then have gotten too busy to deal with any more than peanut butter sandwiches, and the starter has died.

"The problem with this is that people of the sourdough mystique don't say or write 'Hello' or 'How are you?' but instead preface everything with 'How is the starter doing?'

"If you tell them your starter is dead . . . killed by your negligence . . . the friendship, unless strong, is over; and if it isn't over, it is tainted with the suspicion of the giver that perhaps you're also a child abuse and genocide advocate. You are left with the feeling you have let the giver down and it's a bit like the way you feel when you throw a chain letter or forget to send your annual check to the local firemen.

"One friend has given me at least 10 jars of starter over the years. Each time she has said, 'Try not to kill this; it has been in our family since the California gold rush.' And each time I have carried the jar as if it were the Holy Grail and have vowed that this time my heart will be pure and I will be worthy of this sacred trust.

And, alas, each time when she asks I have to be honest and say, 'I did it again. Maybe God never meant for me to be a keeper of the sourdough.' But she is a remarkably patient person and she also feels it is her mission to further appreciation of sourdough. So she gives me another jar and her blessing.

"She should know, should always have known, how hopeless her trust in me is after what happened the first time she gave me starter. Her son and my husband were going to go on a mountain climbing trip. As they were leaving at 4 a.m., I said I would feed them breakfast; there was no point in two of us getting up to cook. She gave me a jar of starter and said, 'Here, make sourdough hot cakes with this.'

"I was young and proud and didn't say, 'What do I do with it?' I left it on the kitchen counter in our tiny cabin and went to bed. All night my husband and I kept hearing a strange hissing. We got up several times to investigate, but couldn't find the source of the noise.

"At 3:30 a.m., I staggered to the kitchen portion of our cabin, turned on the light, and screamed. The hissing we had heard was the sourdough starter growing. It had expanded in the jar, had forced the lid off, had grown and grown to cover the counter top and the curtains over the shelves below and onto the floor. It was scary.

"Maybe I kill starter because I know the stuff isn't just innocuous food but an alien substance ready to take over the world."

I empathize with Kay entirely. Her story brings to mind my own experiences with "starters." They were such a thrill to receive, as she said, almost a sacred trust. And I could bake the most wonderful things — never mind that the selection was severely limited — they were going to taste delicious and my family would love them.

They did — for a few months. Then the novelty wore off. Actually, we all began to hate the sight and the smell of the starter delicacies. I recently baked 16 dozen muffins to get rid of a "friendship starter." Most of them are still in the freezer. I received the starter from my son's mother-in-law. I think we are still friends. I have taken a vow never to take another bowl of starter into my hot little hands for any reason whatsoever.

My first experience with starter was something called "Herman." Herman was given to me by my cousin, who said I was to feed him, watch him grow and share him with my friends. I could even bake goodies with him after he had grown sufficiently.

I did feed him and watch him grow. I freely gave of him to friends, relatives and passing acquaintances. But by the time Herman had multiplied to about eight times his original size, I had run out of people to palm him off on, my family was sick and tired of Herman goodies, and I was stuck with a large bowlful of Herman that kept growing larger with each passing day.

Naturally, being a frugal soul, I just couldn't stop feeding him and let him expire. I had invested too much time and effort in him, not to mention cups of flour and sugar — and I just knew he would come in handy some day.

So, when I heard that Herman could be frozen it seemed the perfect solution to my problem, and I did it — I packed my freezer with pint containers of him, joining the coffee cakes, muffins and cookies that were his offspring.

Once, desperately in need of a quick snack for company I thawed a pint of Herman in the microwave. To my dismay, he had turned into a watery, gray goo that looked like it could be used for wallpaper paste. Evidently Herman couldn't stand to be frozen. I had killed all of him.

Every so often, while rummaging in the back of my freezer (I don't believe in over-cleaning, you see), I come across a freezer container with "Herman" hastily scrawled on the label. It gives me great pleasure to say I can toss it into the garbage with nary a twinge of guilt.

Jasmer Brings USA-1 Home To Thrill Show Crowd

Jasmer's, said Everett asked him to ride with him inside USA-1 about 10 minutes before the show.

Olson said it was quite a ride for him personally, but Jasmer remained calm even when USA-1 tottered on two wheels threatening to tip over. Olson said he had a pretty firm grip on his seat when that happened.

Perfect weather highlighted Jasmer's performance and the 8th annual North Country auto show in Thief River Falls. Temperatures in the mid 70's and clear skies prevailed over the festivities, which not only included cars but a craft show.

Everything seemed to run just right during the weekend. Vendors on the second floor of the sports arena were even praising good sales and good crowds. Event organizers, the Prairie Schooners street rod club in Thief River Falls, said a crowd of nearly 4,000 watched Jasmer drive his four-wheel-drive pickup over junked cars, saw 55 of the finest show cars, and did business with vendors.

Test Results On Future Fuel Pellets Positive For Co.

pellets made at Future Fuel.

Nordhagen said many testing requirements have been placed on any facility proposing to burn the pellets made at Future Fuel. Nordhagen said he is hopeful that these test results on fly ash and bottom ash will be sufficient so that each facility proposing to burn the pellets won't have to go through the process of testing it themselves.

In May or June an emissions test will be conducted at the hospital. This test, another in a long list of required tests, will determine the amount of dioxins, chemicals believed to be toxic; furan, an explosive gas; and particulate matter being emitted in the burning of the pellets. More testing will be conducted in June at Argonne Labs in Illinois. The labortory purchased 350 tons of the fiber fuel last fall.

Nordhagen said Future Fuel will be continuing to work toward satisfying the demands of the Minnesota Pollution control agency and Federal Environmental Protection agency.

Home Made Bombs Damage House In TRF Tuesday Night

Molotov cocktails were thrown at a house in Thief River Falls Tuesday night. The reasons for the bombing are not known at this time.

Thief River Falls police report that two molotov cocktails, a crude hand grenade made of a bottle filled with a flammable liquid and fitted with a wick, were thrown at a house being rented by Ray Davis, a college student in Thief River Falls. The house, owned by Doyle Thompson, Thief River Falls, is located at 724 Red Lake Blvd.

No one was injured in the explosions and only superficial damage was done to the house. Thief River Falls police are working closely in the investigation with State Deputy Fire Marshall Kevin Schuman of Thief River Falls.

It has not been established whether the bombings were racially motivated.

Environmental Council Offers Packet Of Trees

A packet of 12 shrubs and trees is being offered for $10 by Friends of the Minnesota Environmental Education board. Proceeds from the sales will be used to help support programs of the Agassiz Environmental Education council which represents Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Norman counties.

Each group of 12 trees contains three green ash, three Schubert chokecherry, three Western sand cherry and three common lilac. These are one to two-year-old seedlings. The ash trees are 4-5 feet tall, the chokecherry is 12-18 inches, the lilac is 18-24 inches, and the sand cherry is 2-4 feet tall. The seedlings are bare root stock and will be packed in moist cedar shavings and wrapped in plastic. They are easily transported in the trunk or back seat of your car.

Tree packets can be picked up at the Audubon sanctuary near Warren, the University of Minnesota-Crookston, the Bud Johnson farm at Roseau or the Ronchetti residence in Thief River Falls on May 9 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Assistance and information on the trees will be available at each site.

Checks should be made payable to the Friends of MEEB and mailed to Tom Feiro, 817 Sampson St., Crookston, MN 56716. Orders should indicate where the trees will be picked up. There is a limited supply of tree packets available; a confirmation postcard will be returned upon receipt of order.

Minnesota Dairy Production Down From March 1986

March milk production totaled 902 million pounds in Minnesota, down nine per cent from the 986 million pounds produced in March last year. Production per cow averaged 1,080 pounds, up 20 pounds from last year.

Number of milk cows on farms in Minnesota was 835,000 head, down 5,000 from February of 1987 and 95,000 less than March of 1986.

Accumulated milk production during the first three months of 1987 totaled 2.6 billion pounds, down nine per cent from the same period a year ago.

Milk production in the 21 major states totaled 10.4 billion pounds, three per cent less than production in these same states in March of 1986. Production per cow averaged 1,180 pounds for March, 32 pounds more than March of 1986.

Grass And Legume Planting Covers Northwest Acres

"Much of the landscape of northwest Minnesota will be covered with a new but old crop this year. It's been many years since we have seen as much grass and legume seeding as the Conservation Reserve program will bring this year," states Tom Steger district conservationist with the soil conservation service.

Unlike the old soil bank program the Conservation Reserve is targeted to fields that have been eroding excessively. These fields can often be difficult to establish a cover on, therefore landowners who will be seeding CRP fields must be sure that they are doing the best job possible, Steger said.

There are many seeding methods available to do the seeding. However farmers choose to do it there are certain items to be aware of, which include:

(1) Preparing a seed bed that is firm and free of weed competition.

(2) Choosing a seeding method that will apply the grass and legume seed evenly over the field. Be careful if you broadcast seed that you don't try to over-do the machine's ability to spread the seed evenly.

(3) Harrowing after seeding will help increase the soil-seed contact and benefit germination. Take care not to bury the grass seed — it should be at one-fourth to one-third inch in depth.

"Spending time on a CRP seeding right now may be a lower priority with some landowners, but it is important and should not be put off for too long," Steger added. "The sooner it can be seeded the better will be the chance of a good stand on the field, and the less maintenance there will likely be."

Outstate Cities Coalition Pushes Tax Relief Plan

Minnesota Coalition of Outstate Cities, a group of 46 cities located throughout Minnesota, has developed a property tax relief proposal that was introduced in the Minnesota House of Representatives by Representative Paul Ogren of Aitkin. The bill (H.F. 847) will provide property tax relief for farmers, small businesses, industries in distressed areas and for all property taxpayers in cities with low taxable wealth.

The companion bill (S.F. 878) was introduced in the Senate by Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer. A hearing on the bill is scheduled for Friday in the property tax division of the House tax committee.

The bill includes four new property tax relief programs that the coalition says will help address the needs for property tax relief in communities throughout Minnesota:

(1) A tax base equalization credit will help equalize the ability of local governments to finance public services. This new credit will provide property tax relief to businesses, home owners and other property in communities—wiht—low—taxable wealth.

(2) A new property tax credit for small businesses will reduce tax burdens on small businesses with high tax burdens.

(3) A property tax credit for industrial property in regions of the state with unemployment above the statewide average would provide property tax relief for industries that bring jobs to communities in greater Minnesota.

(4) A farmland valuation adjustment and credit for agricultural land would provide farmers with property tax relief to reflect the rapids decline in farm land market values.

The Coalition of Outstate Cities would support overall reform of the property tax system. However, overall property tax reform may not occur this year. Regardless of whether there is major property tax reform in 1987, the coalition believes that commercial and industrial property taxes in non-metropolitan cities must be reduced and that property tax relief must be provided for communities with low taxable wealth. The coalition's proposal contained in H.F. 847 reflects these concerns and the need for property tax relief in greater Minnesota.

Rep. Stangeland Supports Ducks Unlimited Vote

U.S Rep. Arlan Stangeland recently rose in support of passage of House Concurrent Resolution 106 honoring the past efforts of Ducks Unlimited, a hunting and conservation advocate group now celebrating its 50th anniversary.

"Ducks Unlimited was begun Jan. 29, 1937, by a dedicated group of sportsmen who recognized that waterfowl populations were drastically impacted by the loss of important habitat," Stangeland said on the floor of the House of Representatives. "The organization is now one of the most successful private wetlands and waterfowl conservation groups in the world. They have conserved more than four million acres of wetlands throughout North America."

Stangeland, whose fondness for outdoor sporting activities grew while a farmer in Minnesota, is currently a member of Ducks Unlimited chapters in Minnesota, Virginia, Washington, D.C. and Maryland.

"Ducks Unlimited's success has resulted from the cumulative efforts of more than 600,000 individuals," Stangeland continued. "While most members are interested in waterfowl hunting, benefits accrue to all of us through the preservation of our rapidly decreasing wetlands. Wetlands make material contributions to our national economy, our food supply, water quality and water supply and to the reduction of flood damage."

MS Patients Who Attended U of M Needed For Study

Multiple sclerosis patients are needed for a University of Minnesota study of how individuals adjust to the disease differently.

Approximately one in 500 Minnesotans has MS, said university psychology graduate student Patience Dirkx, who will conduct the study. "Individuals show marked differences in abilities to adjust to the debilitating disease; some seriously impaired patients thrive, and others with minimal disability throw in the towel," she said.

The study may reveal psychological or genetic differences in susceptibility to the debilitating aspects of MS and may suggest treatments that, applied early, could prevent some patients' rapid deterioration, Dirkx said.

To be eligible for the study, patients must have enrolled in the university between 1953 and 1963, when the university was requiring personality assessment data as part of orientation. Such data obtained before the onset of MS is an important part of the research, Dirkx said.

To participate, MS patients should contact Dirkx at the Psychology Department, 75 East River Road, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, MN 55455, (612) 338-0870, by June 15. Patients must agree to release their university files. Participants will receive a 24-item questionnaire and may be interviewed later. Some compensation for participants' time may also be available.

DOT Aeronautics Division Plans Seaplane Seminar

The seminar will have educational and safety presentations, exhibits, movies, dual refresher training and a flying contest. It begins on May 8 at 3 p.m.

On Saturday, flying contests will be held from 3:45 until 5:15 p.m. and will consist of dropping a simulated emergency package into a floating ringed area and a spot landing on the lake.

The flying contests and exhibits are free to the public. For more information, contact Barry Erickson, Mn-DOT Aeronautics Division, at 612-296-8057.

Dear Readers,

A growing number of people are dying away from what they call home. Many are in new retirement communities. Others have taken jobs in another city — sometimes their parents follow them. There are those who will die while traveling. When death does occur, it is wise to phone your home town funeral director to arrange for the return of the deceased for burial.

Respectfully

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

Note: Have you ever tried to canoe alone up the Red Lake river? If you have, you know how difficult it is to navigate against the heavy current. Whether or not you know firsthand the power of our river, I think you will enjoy the true story of a man who attempted to canoe from what is now Thief River Falls upriver to Red Lake.

His dashing uniform in dripping rags, a bit of bark for a hat, a man waded slowly upstream. Behind him he towed a canoe in which his soaked gun, sword and provisions were stowed under an open umbrella.

No one was there to take pity on him. The year was 1823; the place, the Red Lake River.

Giacamo Constantino Beltrami was a 44-year-old army officer, adverturer, lawyer, linguist and, at that time, a political exile from italy. He also had delusions of grandeur.

Major Taliaferro, Indian agent at Fort Snelling, met him while he was passing time in Pittsburgh. Impressed with the Italian's commanding figure, culture and buoyant spirits, the Major brought him to the fort. They were passengers on the first steamboat to ascend the upper Mississippi. Then and there Beltrami was inspired to find the source of the Great River.

Beltrami waited around Fort Snelling for several months, hoping to join Major Stephen Long and his party on their expedition to locate the 49th parallel near Pembina. The government had charged Major Long with determining the value of new territory acquired from Great Britain by treaty in 1818. He and his associates were to make astronomical, geological, geographical, botanical and ethnological observations.

Beltrami begged for permission to go along. He got it. He told no one of his ambition to find the Mississippi's source. On horseback, the party followed the woods trail west of Thief River. Because it was a drought year, travel was easy that July. In the Red River Valley the party averaged 24 miles a day. It was a forced march due to the time constraint of fall freeze-up.

Having "attached himself" to the party, Beltrami was treated coolly at times. It seems he sought privileges that slowed progress of the party. He encouraged others to go off hunting buffalo and elk with him. He begged to linger in order to see Indians kill buffalo with bow and arrow.

When Long was preparing to leave Pembina, he countermanded an order Beltrami had given. Insulted, Beltrami sold his horse and provisions, and with a Metis guide and two Ojibwe boatmen, set off to find the source of the Mississippi river. Angry, he wrote that all Pembina was unable to furnish him with as much as a grain of wheat or an ounce of flour meal. The date was Aug. 9, 1823.

They went along the Indian trail of streams and portages to the junction of the Thief River and the Red Lake River. In the mistaken belief that the larger tributary was the Red river, Beltrami renamed it "Bloody River." He erroneously decided that Indians had named it "Red" because it was a war zone and its waters had been reddened by fallen warriors.

He had not gone far up the wriggling course of the Red Lake river when his escort abandoned him and the canoe. Both at once capsized. Thereafter, the only way he could make headway in the heavy current was to wade up the "Bloody River" pulling the canoe behind him. The wet bedraggled man ultimately reached Red Lake where he was most happy to find a new Indian guide.

At Red Lake, the hallucinating Italian declared himself its discoverer, even though he was using a map by Zebulon Pike that identified it.

Then, naming rivers and lakes as he went, he pushed on with his guide to a small rise which he declared to be the highest point of land in North America.

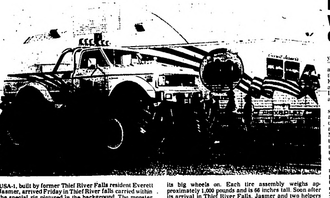
From its pinnacle he thought he beheld the waters of the entire continent dividing to flow to the four horizons. And the little lake at the base of the rise, he declared the source of both the Mississippi and the "Bloody River." He named it Lake Julia.

In triumph he returned to Fort Snelling 30 days after leaving Pembina. He was wearing a costume of skins. Hailed as risen from the dead he was forgiven all and sent on his way to New Orleans.

There Beltrami wrote a book in French, "The Discovery of the Sources of the Mississippi and of the Bloody River." It proved to be popular though full of misinformation and braggadocio. Upon beholding Lake Julia, he wrote "This is the most happy and brilliant moment of my life. The shades of Marco Polo, of Columbus, of Amerigo Vespucci appeared present and joyfully assisted at the ceremony." He imagined the famous Italian explorers were at his side, rejoicing with him. We can only guess his reaction when Henry Schoolcraft determined the actual source of the Mississippi nine years later.

Even though his claims were not upheld by history, the details of his travels were authentic. His exuberand personality adds color to our local history.

Beltrmi did have courage, persistence and good fortune. In his solitary journey he experienced adventure, considerable privation, and danger. For his intrepid deed the tract of high land up north, the county and the town today perpetuate his name.



USA-1, built by former Thief River Falls resident Everett Jasmer, arrived Friday in Thief River falls carried within the special rig pictured in the background. The monster four-wheel drive pickup does not come ready to drive with its big wheels on. Each tire assembly weighs approximately 1,000 pounds and is 66 inches tall. Soon after its arrival in Thief River Falls, Jasmer and two helpers unloaded the truck and within about 20 minutes had all four tires changed.

Health coalition Task Force Calls For Initiatives

High cost of health care and the bias of urban-based policies are limiting the availability and use of health care services for rural Minnesotans, according to the report of a Minnesota Coalition on Health task force.

The Minnesota Coalition on Health is an alliance of providers, employers, labor and consumers that addresses health care issues. Among its recommendations, the task force calls for regional cooperation among providers, better consumer education and legislation to equalize Medicare hospital payments to make health care affordable.

The task force report is based on a series of town hall meetings held in rural communities and a survey of 3,000 farmers and 3,000 small business owners in rural Minnesota, as well as other available rural health care data.

Among the findings of the task force are:

+ Rural Minnesotans say their access to most types of health care is quite good, but they are concerned about shortages in some services such as mental health and chemical dependency treatment, outpatient alternatives for hospital care and nursing home beds for the frail elderly.

+ The percentage of plummeting farm income spent on health care is growing, accounting for one-sixth to one-eighth of a family's expenses. "This would be alarming for a family with income in the $20,000 to $30,000 range," the report concludes.

+ Eleven per cent of rural Minnesotans have no insurance coverage at all and another 19 per cent are "just hanging on." Some services, however, even free ones, are underused because consumers are afraid to make their needs known to their neighbor and they resist a "welfare" stigma.

+ Shopping for health care in this time of rapid system change is highly confusing to rural consumers.

+ Inequitable urban and rural payment systems put pressure on rural providers. One outcome is that rural hospitals are struggling to stay open.

The Coalition task force includes in its recommendations:

(1) An equitable Medicare payment system for urban and rural hospitals.

(2) Greater cooperation among providers, especially on a regional basis, to share infromation, training, funding, marketing and advocacy efforts, and to work with consumers and employers to determine and address regional health care needs.

(3) An increase in consumer education and in information and referral services.

(4) A demonstration project combining Medicare and Medicaid monies through a block grant to a regional agency or organization.

(5) Specific efforts by the state legislature, providers and private and government agencies to serve the underinsured and uninsured.

(6) A provision by the state legislature for tax deductions for health insurance premiums of self employed individuals.

(7) Reassessment by the Minnesota legislature of the eligibility criteria for medical assistance programs and such alterations as are necessary to ensure that people who are 'asset rich' but have a real need for medical assistance can be served, perhaps by paying on a sliding fee basis for a minimum package of services.

Copies of the report are available from the Minnesota Coalition on Health, 2221 University Avenue Southeast, Suite 140, Minneapolis, MN 55414.

Kriel Enlists In Delayed Entry Program Of Navy

Steven A. Kriel, a senior at Goodridge high school, recently enlisted in the United States Navy for guaranteed training at the navy's aviation machinist mate school.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Kriel of route 1, Goodridge, Steven enlisted under the delayed entry program and will complete high school before reporting for active duty in November to Great Lakes, Il., where he will undergo basic training.

Upon completion of basic training, he will begin 10 weeks of schooling at Millington, TN, in the aviation machinist mate field. Aviation machinist mates usually are assigned to jobs concerned with maintaining turbojet aircraft engines and associated equipment, or to any one of several types of aircraft maintenance activities. They maintain, service, adjust and replace aircraft engines and accessories, as well as perform the duties of flight engineers.

Steven may go on to additional schooling or be assigned to any one of the navy's duty stations around the world.

Shannon Fisher's Entry Among Best At Science Fair

Four Plummer students competed in the 34th annual northern Minnesota regional science fair held on the campus of Bemidji state university.

A purple ribbon award was won by Shannon Fisher for a project in zoology. Dixie Koskela was awarded a blue ribbon for her project in medicine. Winning a red ribbon award for her science project in medicine was Deb Fox. Catherine Fossell's entry in the behavioral division won a green ribbon.

Over 150 students ages 11-18 from 13 communities throughout northern Minnesota competed in the science fair. Approximately 95 judges examined the exhibits which were designed to explore a question by using scientific methods of investigation or demonstrate a scientific principle.

Those winners receiving purple ribbon awards advanced to the state science fair competition while two winners were chosen to participate in the international science fair held in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Annual Minnesota Fish Consumption Advisory Issued

Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) has relaeased its annual advisory about eating fish from Minnesota lakes and rivers.

Designed to help anglers avoid possible health risks associated with environmental contaminants in fish, the advisory was produced through cooperative efforts by MDH, the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA) and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The advisory uses a system of symbols to indicate recommended limits on the consumption of fish. The limits vary according to the size and species of the fish, and the location where it was taken.

Limits are based on contaminant levels found in fish samples, and current information about possible health risks associated with those contaminants. The types of contaminants found through the sampling program include mercury, polychorinated biphenlys (PCBs), and "dioxin" (TCDD).

The advisory contains information about all locations in the state where fish have been tested for these contaminants, even if no significant contamination was found. In those cases, the guidelines recommend no limit on consumption.

Lakes and streams not listed in the advisory have not been tested for possible contamination.

The new advisory contains updated information based on the retesting of 19 lakes and 12 stream sites — all of which had been tested previously — and information about 38 lakes and three stream sites that were never tested before.

A total of 204 lakes and 79 stream sites have been tested since the sampling program was started.

In addition to providing recommendations about eating specific types of fish from specific locations, the advisory includes the following general recommendations for reducing exposure to contaminants:

+ Remove the skin and other fatty portions when preparing and cooking the fish. Especially remember to remove all fat from turtle meat.

+ Eat panfish, which tend to contain lower levels of contaminants, rather than predator fish.

+ Eat smaller fish. Release larger fish, which tend to contain higher levels of contaminants.

+ Eat leaner kinds of fish, like walleye and pike, and avoid fatty fish like white bass, carp or catfish.

+ Children, pregnant or breast-feeding women, and women who think they might become pregnant, should only eat fish listed in the guidelines as having "no contamination" or only "slight contamination" — the two least restrictive categories in the advisory.

Selected information from the advisory was distributed to purchasers of 1987 Minnesota fishing licenses. Copies of the complete advisory are available from MDH at (612) 623-5555, PCA at (612) 296-6300 or DNR at (612) 296-2835.

Kevin Anderson Accepted Into Music Program

Kevin P. Anderson, a freshman music major at St. Olaf College, has been accepted into the bachelor of music degree program at the college following the rigorous audition process.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Anderson of Thief River Falls, he will now follow a three-year route to the degree, which includes a continuance audition at later dates. The audition consists of performance in the student's proposed major area of study in applied music; optional secondary performing area; and a brief musicianship examination.

Only a limited number of students are admitted to the bachelor of music degree program each year.

All bachelor of music majors must go on to select one principal and secondary performing medium and will also be required to participate in an ensemble each semester and conduct several partial and one full recital appearance prior to graduation.

Once completed, the degree offers a variety of options, including performance opportunities.

RADIAL KERATOTOMY

Radial Keratotomy is the name given to the surgery to correct nearsightedness. "Radial" refers to the spoke-like pattern of incisions made, and "Keratotomy" is from the word "Kerato" meaning cornea, the clear dome-like structure of the front of the eye, and "otomy" which means incision.

This ingenious but relatively simple operation was invented in Russia, and brought to the United States several years ago. By now, over a quarter of a million Americans have had the surgery, enabling most of them to see well without glasses or contact lenses. In this surgery, which takes only a few minutes and is done with the patient fully awake, several incisions are painlessly made in the cornea to alter its curvature, which alters its focusing ability. The length and depth of these incisions can be altered to correct different degrees of nearsightedness. Some degrees of astigmatism can be corrected as well.

Unfortunately, the operation has its drawbacks. The predictability of the operation is imperfect, so some patients may still need to wear glasses after surgery. A few patients have actually lost varying degrees of vision from a complication, but that is rare. Some patients notice more trouble with glaring of lights, or some notice their vision is not stable—it may change over a period of time.

Glasses or contact lenses are still a safer treatment of nearsightedness, but RK surgery is an alternative for the patient over twenty-five years of age, who understands and accepts the possible risks.

EDITORIAL OPINION

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Buckling Down On Buckling Up

"It's no secret that the principal opposition for safety belt use law arises from a philosophical misconception that the law is somehow an unwarranted intrusion of government on personal liberty. Most legislators believe that their constituents don't want the seat belt law enforced."

These are the words of Evie Teegen, executive director of the Minnesota Seat Belt Coalition, in the March publication of the coalition's newsletter, "Minnesota Clicks".

"The point is that some people need an extra incentive—a fine attached to the present mandatory use law. Public education has been trying to get the job done for over 20 years, yet motorists forget or think that an accident will never happen to them," Teegen said.

We don't agree with Teegen's suggestion of "a philosophical misconception". The law is indeed an unwarranted intrusion of government on personal liberty. It is a well intentioned, compassionate, caring intrusion, but an intrusion nonetheless.

The push is on in the legislature for a $25 fine. Apparently that has been the value placed on life by the coalition and other proponents of the law who contend that the fine for noncompliance with the buckle-up law would reduce traffic deaths by 200 each year. According to their estimates, the fine would increase compliance with the law to reach a 75 to 80 per cent compliance level.

Why be content with 75 to 80 per cent compliance? Why not make the fine $1,000 or $10,000 or $100,000 or some other figure that would assure 100 per cent compliance?

"I think with the proposed $25 penalty for violation that a 70 per cent compliance with this law is not unrealistic," says Col. Roger Ledding, chief of Minnesota's state patrol. "We're different than people in Chicago, for example. (Illinois has a penalty but only a 36 per cent compliance rate.) Our state citizens, on the whole, have a different attitude toward law enforcement. We're basically God-fearing, law-abiding people here."

Especially if it might cost us $25.

Where does this humanistic concern for protection of drivers and passengers come from? What is the motivation for this compassion and caring attitude.

"How do serious crashes affect others?" Teegen writes in "Minnesota Clicks". "People are hospitalized after a car accident with lengthy rehabilitation when a safety belt may have helped make it a minor injury; it's we who end up paying for it in increased health care costs, insurance premiums and tax money."

Aah! At last things come into prespective. The issue is not personal liberty, government infringement on private lives, reduced traffic deaths or a lot of other right and proper reasons. The issue is money. Isn't it funny that when the surface of so many well-meaning ideas is scratched, the color green shows underneath?

Using seat belts makes sense. They can help drivers and passengers beat the odds of death or serious injury in accidents. But the government should not be involved in mandating use, and it will take a powerful lot of persuasion to convince us otherwise.

Love Can Be Tough

The programs to be presented by Dick Schaefer at the Thief River Falls city auditorium May 6, 7 and 8 at 7:15 p.m. should be of interest to all parents concerned about the futures of their children—and that should be all parents.

Schaefer has worked in counseling on youth and family problems for 25 years and is all too familiar with the patterns of parents and young people in varying forms of trouble or crisis. He has a means for parents to cope with problems and situations and to place responsibility on young people to overcome their own problems.

According to an article last October in the Grand Forks Herald, Schaefer says the program is tough because it requires parents to manage the anger and guilt they feel when their children run into problems with drugs, forcing the child to shape up on his or her own. "We don't want to see our kids in pain," he explained.

He also notes that parents must take charge of their own behavior, but not their children's behavior. "There's nothing wrong with being angry," he said "just don't confront when you're angry. If I can get you to shout and holler, then the problem becomes your anger, not my drug abuse." He said angry parents give their children a new crutch to lean on. Instead of facing their weakness, he said, they can blame their parents for not understanding them.

Parents easily fall into a triangular trap of enabling behavior that prolongs their child's problem, he said. "You provoke, you rescue and you become a victim," he explained. When the child gets into trouble with the law or at school, the parent bails him or her out in a well-intentioned effort to help.

Then the parent feels guilty, both because the child's problems imply some weakness in the parent's method of raising the child and because the child has led the parent into trying to mask the problem.

"Parents by definition feel guilty—they always think they could have done a better job," Schaefer said. "This guilt leads to anger and the trap is sprung. The way out of the trap is first to let the child know that rules exist, and then to give the child the choice whether to live up to the rules. If the child chooses not to abide by them, they get some choices in the form punishment will take. This preserves the child's self-respect."

While the techniques originated in alcoholic treatment centers, they are more difficult for parents to learn that for friends or spouses of alcoholics or addicts. "I've met a lot of ex-friends and ex-spouses," Schaefer said, "but I've never met an ex-kid. As tough as it is to teach this principle to friends and spouses, it's four times tougher to teach parents. They always feel responsible."

Schaefer said it is necessary to always give a child a way to save face. "Never back a kid into a corner," he advises, "because you end up in the opposite corner."

Schaefer has adopted his Aunt Liz's admonition: "You sat on the burner, baby...you sit on the blisters." The child is the one who opts to sit on the burner when it comes to drug abuse. "What we're trying to teach parents is to stop sitting on their kids' blisters," he said.

Mark your calendars and plan to set aside time to attend the sessions all three nights. Each session will be different than others.

Say No To Tax Extension

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Groups that oppose a proposal being considered by the Legislature to extend Minnesota's 6 per cent sales tax to a broad variety of services have described the extension as self-defeating and anti-business because it would reduce revenues collected from other taxes.

Senate Tax Chairman Doug Johnson, DFL-Cook, author of the bill, has said the bill was drafted with the poor in mind because the tax would be extended to services primarily used by business and higher income people. The new tax on 75 previously untaxed services intended to raise revenue to be used in providing property tax relief.

But in giving the list the once over it's easy to spot many services, the need for which is hardly limited only to the wealthy. For instance, alteration and garment repair, bank services for which charges are made, exterminating services, wrecker and towing service, furniture, rug and upholstery repair and shoe repair are included.

Advertising services, of key concern to the publishing and broadcast industries in the state, are also included in the list, althought Gov. Rudy Perpich, while in Bemidji Thursday, said he's convinced a tax on advertising will not make its way through the Legislature.

While many readers and listeners may not generally be very concerned about the specific financial woes of these industries — the side effects of such a tax, in terms of reduced services, lost jobs and in some cases the demise of a community's newspaper, probably rate some concern.

Arlin Albrecht, publisher of the Red Wing Republican Eagle and past president of the Minnesota Newspaper Association, told a Senate tax subcommitee Monday, "I am fairly convinced that this tax will mean the difference in a good number of our towns having newspapers in the future."

Ned Goodwin, general manager of Bemidji radio stations KBUN and KBHP, told the same subcommittee that such a tax would force him to lay off some employees and cut back from 24hour broadcast service.

Extending the sales tax to cover such a broad variety of services will do nothing to improve Minnesota's ability to compete with other states for jobs and business and will likely make it less capable of doing so effectively.

Neither does it appear low income individuals will escape the impact of such an extension, as Johnson has maintained.

Borrowed Nonsense

The only place where you are likely to find success before work is in the dictionary.

The main difference between a tax collector and a taxidermist is that the taxidermist leaves the hide.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

This is in reference to the two letters in the Monday, April 20 issue of the Times about Plummer and Oklee schools.

As far as an informational meeting was concerned, the administration didn't give out any more information than we already knew. They had their minds made up. Plummer was going to co-op with Oklee and that was that. No voting on the people's part would have changed their minds.

As far as the voting went, people could pick up as many ballots as they wanted — nothing was said. As far as the school board taking the voting into consideration and voted 6-0 for co-oping, when has the Plummer school board ever disagreed on any motion? They always all agree or all disagree. Just read their minutes sometimes.

Yes, two days after the informational meeting the school board met and voted infavor of sharing boys and girls basketball. The meeting lasted three minutes. They knew before they met how they were going to vote. You tell me politics doesn't enter into this picture! Ha! Ha!

The main concern of those people against co-oping is certainly not just sports. Why should classes be shared with Oklee when Plummer students have courses available at Thief River Falls AVTI or Northland which have more options than Oklee? Plummer has had a good relationship with Center School and AVTI in years past. Let's keep it that way.

We don't want the senior high to be located at Oklee in years to come and grade school in Plummer. We are not only fighting for our schools and children, we are fighting to keep Plummer a town to do business in, not one to dry up and dwindle away which could happen if our school closes.

Name Withheld On Request

To The Editor:

Many people of Thief River Falls have been asking questions concerning our drinking water. I have talked to local well drillers, getting answers to some questions raised.

This city would have all the water needed with just eight good wells. A good well would pump 1,000 gallons a minute.

There is water from two, three up to 13 miles from town. Crookston is pumping 14 and 15 miles.

There will have to be engineers hired — of which there are many good men in this surrounding area — plus a hydrologist for the study. The total cost for just the study would be close to $200,000. Once the study would start, it would take two years for well water to run from our faucets.

The city water has had a distinct odor for the last four weeks. Would some more chemicals take care of the odor? There are already six different chemicals in our water, so what's another? Spending $60,000 a year for chemicals to make the river water "safe?" to drink, I say it's ridiculous.

I say let's get this study on the way now.

Doyle Thompson

To The Editor:

In response to the letter Neil K. Hanson wrote about Arlen Merrill, you may have gotten your job back but you're one of the fortunate ones. The city has two more employees doing the same work that they want to terminate. They are also off for the same reason.

Also most people when sent back to work after surgery don't get the hardest job there is, being on the back of the truck like Arlen had to and given no other choice but to try it. How do you explain that?

Name Withheld Or I May Be Terminated too.

REPORT

From The

MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Every one of us in this state owns a share of our valuable 12,000 mile state trunk highway system. It's something to be proud of, as decent transportation has built our communities, brought our products to market and generally improved our quality of life.

Along with the benefits of travel we are, of course, responsible for safe use and maintenance of this system. The House transportation committee has already considered a number of new policies and changes in some of the old ones. Lively debate has surrounded issues ranging from headphones on bicyclists to manned cabooses on long trains.

There is more work ahead for transportation committee members in the House. Whether or not to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on interstates, or to allow 110-foot-long trucks on any of our Minnesota roads, are now being considered. Highway funding for the next biennium also continues to be a major focus.

The most controversial bills, narrowly approved in the transportation committee, include the six-year license plates bill and the caboose bill. Mandatory replacement of license plates every six years has been referred to the House appropriations committee. Among its supporters are law enforcement officials. The bill is expected to face some difficulty on the House floor, but a similar measure has narrowly passed the Senate. Both bills keep plate replacement costs, both regular and specialized, to a minimum.

The caboose bill requires that trains over 2,000 feet in length have cabooses with human operators, rather than electronic monitors, if they are on tracks without block signals or are carrying hazardous materials. It is also in the appropriations committee.

Proposals that had an easier time winning approval in the transportation committee concern mopeds, pipeline safety, specialty license plates, unmarked patrol cars and handicapped parking.

In brief summary, the moped proposal allows these recreational vehicles on city streets. The pipeline safety bill regulates and controls pipelines carrying hazardous materials through the state. Another bill approves uniquely designed license plates for Vietnam veterans and for Pearl Harbor Survivors. The unmarked patrol car bill would allow counties and cities to have a limited number of cars without obvious law enforcement markings.

Finally, people illegally parked in a handicapped-marked spot could soon be fined up to $100, rather than the current $25. The Senate bill proposes a $500 fine. All of the above bills will soon be considered on the House floor. Two transportation bills have already passed the House as a whole. A child restraint bill imposes a $25 penalty for transporting a child, age four or under, without an approved car seat or restraint. Another House approved bill prohibits persons on bicycles from wearing headphones on both ears when on a highway.

The House appropriations committee is currently considering a transportation-approved bonding bill that provides important dollars for bridge reconstruction. Now that 80,000 pound trucks are allowed in Minnesota, the stress on road bridges has increased. One of these trucks is equivalent to 900 cars driving over the same bridge. The recent collapse of a bridge in New York, resulting in several fatalities, has drawn attention to this issue.

One last measure I think you'll be interested in proposes to allow you, the voting public, to decide if you want a constitutional amendment directing motor vehicle excise tax funds to transportation use. Revenues from these taxes that you pay when purchasing a vehicle are currently being used in the state's general fund.

Recognizing that highways and public safety measures are two areas of major concern this session, I have highlighted many of the transportation issues the legislature has considered or is likely to consider. If you have any questions or concerns about these or other legislative issues, I would be happy to provide you with information. I can be reached at Room 351 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, phone (612) 296-9918.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Senate Majority Leader Roger Moe has authored the Rural Development Act of 1987 (Senate File 1), which is designed to provide new economic opportunities for our depressed rural economy. This legislation is based on three major premises:

First, we can never again rely on agriculture, tourism, forestry and mining alone to hold up our rural economy. We must diversify into other industries to expand our economic base in rural Minnesota.

Second, we must take a community-based approach to rural economic development and rural communities should be allowed to determine their own economic fates.

Third, we must use the resources already available, rather than looking for the Saturns of this world. And what better — or more valuable — resource do we have in greater Minnesota than its ready pool of skilled and hard working people who are waiting to contribute.

By way of brief summary, the major components of the Rural Development act are research, training and financing.

It creates the rural development board so that rural Minnesota will have its place in the executive branch. The board's main functions will be to develop public investment strategy for rural Minnesota, to pool public and private resources and to assist rural communities with new financing and training opportunities.

It also establishes the Greater Minnesota corporation. This corporation will issue grants to support research and to promote the development of new products for commercial application in Minnesota.

Two new training initiatives in the bill are designed to make more effective use of existing training resources and post secondary facilities.

One initiative requires that the higher education coordinating board provide free tuition for dislocated workers and farmers in area post secondary institutions.

The second initiative gives the jobs skills partnership authority to pool public and private resources in order to offer training opportunities to businesses located in rural Minnesota and to businesses considering moving into rural Minnesota.

One of the most attractive features of this legislation is that it simplifies our governmental structure. Over the years, we have accumulated a variety of programs that give economic development assistance to Minnesota's small businesses — including the community development and small cities programs. Senate File 1 consolidates these programs under a new "Department of Trade and Economic Development" to provide easier access to all of these programs.

To provide additional financial assistance to businesses, the Rural Development act establishes a challenge grant program with private foundations and other nonpublic sources. Our private foundations have always been quite generous. Unfortunately, that generosity has been biased — that is, $9 out of every $10 have historically gone into the metro areas. However, in 1986, the McKnight Foundation made a $15 million grant to rural economic development, and it will allocate another $50 million for the rural economy over the next five years.

To maximize the benefits from these private investments, the bill creates six regional development areas — each with its own revolving fund. To finance these funds, the state will provide 50 per cent challenge grants for matching with the private donations. Each region may invest in small businesses by providing venture capital, subordinate loans or GAP financing.

The main purpose of Senate File 1 is to address, on a long-term basis, the economic problems rural Minnesota has suffered as a result of the farm crisis. I think that the proposal is so well-designed that it justifies and deserves the use of some state funds. The money we initially invest will see great returns in a revitalized rural economy.

Stangeland Asks Funding Deletion For Nuclear Waste

In testimony before the appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development, Rep. Arlan Stangeland asked that funding for the second nuclear waste repository be deleted and the search process postponed indefinitely.

"This unneeded second repository carries with it an exorbitant price tag that may range from 10 to 15 billion dollars," Stangeland told the subcommittee.

Believing the entire crystalline rock repository program to be flawed, Stangeland also cited the severe threat nuclear waste would pose to Minnesota's groundwater, specifically, as reasons not to fund the second site.

Although the department of energy indefinitely postponed all work with regard to the second nuclear waste repository, DOE has threatened to immediately reopen the second repository siting process, as directed by the nuclear waste policy act of 1982.

Stangeland argued before the subcommittee responsible for funding of the second nuclear waste site, "There is no more need for a second repository today than there was a year ago." The (department of energy's) projections on the amount of wastes to be generated over the next several decades have been re-estimated and the volume is significantly lower."

In 1982, the department of energy projected 140,000 metric tons of waste would be produced by the year 2020. According to Stangeland, DOE now estimates that volume to be as low as 74,000 metric tons.

In other testimony before the subcommittee, Stangeland requested funding for projects already authorized by the public works and transportation committee, of which he is a member.

Stangeland requested funding for the army corps of engineers to carry out a national program to clean lakes, specifically Sauk Lake in Minnesota. Stangeland also asked for funding for streambank erosion control in Gentilly and Little Falls, as well as the balance of funding due Minnesota as authorized in the "Planning Assistance to States Program" totalling $300,000 for the study of flood control techniques.

National Hotline For Auto Safety Takes Every Call

Auto safety hotline, 800-424-9393, operated by the National highway traffic safety administration (NHTSA) answers the questions and hears the complaints of as many as 1,100 callers a day. This toll-free telephone service is a valuable source of information on motor vehicle safety recalls, crash test results and a wide variety of other consumer-oriented information on auto safety.

It is also a hotline with a difference. It not only acts as a point of reference, it also reacts to information provided by the consumer on defects related to car safety. The technical staff in NHTSA's office of defects investigation solicits details from the general public on real-life experiences. This information then forms the basis for a closer examination. Generally, these experts will look for defect trends which pose an unreasonable risk to safety and are common to a group of vehicles or equipment of the same design or manufacturer.

To document possible safety-related problems reported to the hotline and ensure collection of accurate and timely information, callers are asked for their names and addresses. A pre-addressed, postage paid questionnaire is mailed to the caller, in order to obtain vital details needed by the agency's technical staff in evaluating the problem.

The complaints recorded on this questionnaire, so important to the two-way communication process, are vital to the early detection of potentially serious safety defects. Our complaint data base is one of the primary sources of information used to support a defect investigation which could lead to a recall. Copies of all complaints are also forwarded to the manufacturer.

The auto safety hotline is one way that individuals and the government, can work together to see that safety defects in motor vehicles are identified and remedied as quickly as possible.

Size, Operation Determine Cost Of Air Conditioning

Summer heat needn't send electric bills soaring, according to the Thief River Falls utilities department. The keys to economical air conditioning are selecting properly sized equipment, operating it efficiently and keeping it in top condition.

Probably the most important factor in holding down cooling costs is to select the type and size of air conditioner that meets the needs. Utility customers should consult appliance dealers to avoid buying equipment larger than they need.

The government requires clear and detailed "EnergyGuide" labels on new air conditioners, and other major appliances, that allow consumers to comparison shop for units that are most energy efficient and have lowest annual operating costs.

How air conditioning equipment is operated will have a significant impact on both comfort and costs, wheather central or individual units are used. Some basic energy-saving tips include:

- Keeping the thermostat above 78 degrees can save as much as 20 per cent on costs.
- Keep your unit shaded from direct sunlight.
- Close off unused rooms and cooling vents.
- Put window air conditioners where they provide the best air flow.
- When possible, run the fan without the cooling.

In addition, consumers are advised to keep their air conditioning systems in top shape to ensure they are running most efficiently. On a regular basis, change or clean filters, clean the condenser coil and vacuum accessible parts.

WITH THE BALL already in the glove, Thief River Falls second baseman Chris Bjorgaard awaited the arrival of Kennedy-Hallock runner Chris Jerome, who was an easy out trying to steal second base in the first inning of Friday's high school baseball game played in Thief River Falls. Catcher Scott Vedbraaten made the throw. The Prowlers opened their 1987 home schedule with a 14-1 win. They host Marshall County Central-Middle River Tuesday.

Track Teams Keeping Busy

Fargo South boys and Moorhead girls were winners Friday in a strong Moorhead Athletic Association Invitational high school track meet field that attracted the Thief River Falls boys and girls.

Moorhead girls edged Grand Forks Red River 99-98½ for championship honors, followed by Fargo North with 89½ points, Grand Forks Central 40, Fargo South 37, Thief River Falls 36, Fargo Shanley 32, Mayville-Portland 28, Park Rapids 27, and Fergus Falls 9.

Fargo South boys were easy winners with 168½ points, followed by Park Rapids with 107, Moorhead 100, Grand Forks Red River 95, Grand Forks Central 21, Fargo Shanley 20, Mayville-Portland 9, and Thief River Falls 3.

Thief River Falls girls performed well, reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "We had some pretty solid times," he pointed out. "It was a good running for us. Overall, for what we had there, I thought we did well."

Cindy Kruta of the Prowlers won the 300 meter hurdles event in 50.09, and ran the lead leg on the Prowlers' first place 1600 meter relay team that also included Christy Holthusen, Pegg Cruz, and Christy Puetz. They ran 4:20.09.

Lynn Mueller was a potential winner in the 3200 meters, said Schafer, but the Prowlers' distance ace missed the meet because of family commitments.

Thief River Falls boys weren't nearly as successful as the girls. Coach Tim Olson's Prowlers picked up points only in the relays.

They fared better Saturday at the Grand Forks Sertoma Club Invitational with 12 points and a handful of places — but no winners.

Red River was an easy winner with 136 points, followed by Grand Forks rival Central with 63, East Grand Forks 56, Cavalier 47, Crookston 43, Larimore 42, Finley-Sharon 31, Grafton 24½, Northwood 23½, Winnipeg Grant Park 21, Dakota 18, Cando 16, Thief River Falls 12, Norman County West 10, Mayville-Portland 4, Win-E-Mac 4, New Rockford 3, Minto 2, and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 1.

Olson said the Prowlers received top performances Saturday from Kyle Kisch, whose 2:08.68 fourth place in the 800 represented a seven-second drop over five meets, and from Jeremy Sisler, a sophomore who has developed into a consistently-strong distance runner with a fourth in the 3200 and a sixth in the 1600 meters.

Thief River Falls girls did not compete in the Grand Forks meet.

Both Thief River Falls teams will be at the Park Rapids Invitational Tuesday. The girls will be at the Alexandria Invitational Friday, and they'll be together again for the Crookston VFW Invitational Saturday.

Golf Team Starts Year At Fergus Falls Meet

A tie for ninth place in a 19-team Fergus Falls Invitational Friday marked the start of the 1987 high school golf season for the Dick Tyler-coached Thief River Falls boys.

Brainerd won the event with a 406, followed by Fergus Falls at 408, Crookston 410, East Grand Forks 411, Bemidji 422, Fergus Falls JV 428, Moorhead 429, Detroit Lakes 430, Thief River Falls and Fosston 432, Wadena 436, Staples 439, Morris 449, Perham 453, Pelican Rapids 465, Frazee 469, Bagley 471, Breckenridge 472, and Barnesville 484.

Scott Eggers of East Grand Forks and Wes Simonson of Bemidji led the field with 77's.

Thief River Falls scores included senior Bob Geatz with an 81, seniors Jason Peterson and Steve Jung at 84, junior Paul Antonenko 90, senior Jim Breiland 93, and junior Jason Tangquist with a 94. All six are returning lettermen for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls will golf at the Bagley-Fosston Invitational Tuesday. The Prowlers have weekend invitationals Friday at East Grand Forks and Saturday at Crookston. All three meets start at 9:30 a.m.

Tennis Team Wins 6-1 Match

Straight-set victories were commonplace Thursday as the Thief River Falls boys handled host Mahnomen-Waubun 6-1 in high school tennis action.

Fresh from an East Grand Forks Invitational championship performance earlier in the week, Thief River Falls evened its dual meet record at 2-2 with singles wins by Bret Haugen, Grant Larson and Mike Howe, plus doubles wins by Troy Hanestad-John Dondelinger, Kevin Holmes-Jay Opdahl and Troy Peterson-Tom Brouse.

Thief River Falls will complete a month-long string of road matches this week with a dual meet outing at Detroit Lakes today (Monday) and an appearance at the annual Northwest Quadrangular Thursday in East Grand Forks.

Prowlers' home opener is scheduled Tuesday, May 5, vs. Bemidji.

Girls Face Busy Schedule

Thief River Falls girls, after opening the 1987 high school golf season with back-to-back dual meet wins over Crookston and East Grand Forks, will face stiffer strength tests this week when the Prowlers compete in four invitational tournaments over a five-day span.

It'll also be a stamina test for the Prowlers, who were scheduled to host their Thief River Falls Invitational today (Monday) before making trips to Moorhead Tuesday, Fosston Thursday and Fergus Falls Friday.

A 211-244 season-opening dual meet winner over Crookston last Tuesday, Thief River Falls added a 231-250 victory over visiting East Grand Forks Thursday.

Thief River Falls' Kelly Cornell was meet medalist with a 49. Rest of the Prowlers' meet-counting varsity scores were turned in by Nancy Jorde with a 54, Stacey Cummings 63 and Gayle Borchert 65.

Heidi Tofte turned in a 60 as Thief River Falls beat East Grand Forks 287-294 in junior varsity competition.

Thief River Falls' 27 member 1987 roster for grades 9-12 includes six returning letter winners, Borchert, a senior, plus Cornell, Cummings, Jorde, Jill Olson, and Karin Tyler, all juniors.

Prowlers Open 1987 Baseball Season With One-Sided Wins

Thief River Falls might have started its 1987 high school baseball schedule a little later than most area teams, but the Prowlers made up for lost time once they took the field, outscoring Ada and Kennedy-Hallock by a combined score of 31-2 in back-to-back season-opening wins last week.

They also out-hit those two teams 29-3 in beating Ada 17-1 Thursday and stopping Kennedy-Hallock 14-1 Friday.

It was an impressive start for first-year Thief River Falls head coach Tracey Wensloff. "I thought we played pretty well for the first time out," offered Wensloff after the surprisingly easy win over what is touted to be a strong Class A Ada team. "I thought our pitchers did real well for not having a lot of concentrated work off the mound."

It was the same song, different verse the next day in the Prowlers' home opener against a Kennedy-Hallock team that was no match for Thief River Falls' Class AA pitching and hitting.

Chris Nelson and Tom Knoff combined on a two-hit pitching performance at Ada. Nelson struck out nine and walked three in four innings for the win. Knoff worked the final three frames.

Thief River Falls, after a two-run first inning, a single run in the third and a three-run sixth, took a 6-1 lead into the seventh when Ada relief pitchers surrendered 11 runs and nine hits to 15 Thief River Falls batters. The Prowlers finished with 17 hits for the day, including a 4-for-6 effort by Chris Bjorgaard, who had a double and a triple among his hits. Nelson, Knoff, Kory Joppru, Kurt Dupree and Jared Erickson all had two hits. Knoff and Dupree, like Bjorgaard, had triples.

Brent Storsved, the Norman County West football and basketball standout, was the starting and losing pitcher for Ada, but he wasn't the one getting hammered at the end.

Friday, Joppru and Dean Du Champ combined on a five-inning no-hitter against Kennedy-Hallock. Joppru went the first four innings, walking four and striking out eight. Du Champ walked one and struck out two in the final inning of the shortened 10-run rule game.

Joppru, Rick Rosetta and Knoff led the 12-hit Thief River Falls assault. Joppru was 4-for-4 with a pair of doubles and a triple; Rosetta was 3-for-3 with two doubles, a home run and four RBI; Knoff was 2-for-2 with a double and four RBI. Rosetta, batting in the No. 9 spot in the line-up, cleared the left field fence with a high home run in the second inning, hit the right-center field fence in the third and bounced one off the left-center field fence in the fourth for an eye-opening afternoon for the senior third baseman who hasn't played the sport in recent years.

Thief River Falls scored twice in the first inning, added five more runs in the second, three in the third and closed it out with a four-run fourth.

Lone Kennedy-Hallock run came in the third when a walk, a sacrifice with an error tagged onto it, and an interference call on the Prowlers between the plate and third base on a two-out run-down play put the visitors on the scoreboard.

Thief River Falls will host Marshall County Central-Middle River Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. at the fairgrounds diamond before the Prowlers face Class AA competition for the first time with a Saturday appearance at the annual four-team Moorhead Invitational. Detroit Lakes and Minot, ND round out the field.

FIRST-YEAR Thief River Falls head coach Tracey Wensloff and first-year team member Rick Rosetta both had reason to smile Friday after Rosetta hit a second inning two-run home run over the left field fence in the Prowlers' 14-1 high school baseball win over Kennedy-Hallock at the fairgrounds diamond. Rosetta, a senior out for the sport for the first time with the Prowlers, batted No. 9 in the order, but performed like a clean-up hitter with a 3-for-3 day that also included a pair of doubles and four RBI in the Prowlers' 14-1 win.

Baseball JV Gains Second Game Win

Roseau won the opener 8-3, but Thief River Falls took the nightcap 6-3 Thursday in a junior varsity high school baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls.

John Azure was the losing pitcher in Game 1 as Roseau out-hit Thief River Falls 8-4. Azure struck out six, but walked seven. Both sides had one error.

Jason Kempert was the winning pitcher in Game 2, striking out five and walking four while scattering seven hits. Hunter Boldt was 2-for-2 with a double and Azure was 2-for-3 with a double in the 10-hit Thief River Falls attack. Todd Brandon stood out on defense for the winners, according to coach Dan Willoughby.

Thief River Falls committed three second-game errors; Roseau had 1.

The two teams meet again Tuesday at 3 p.m. in Roseau. Thief River Falls is 3-1 for the year.

ITASCA BASE RUNNER Craig Alreck was trapped between Northland shortstop Keith Nelson and first baseman Tim Borgen (18) on a run-down between first and second base during Wednesday's Minnesota Community College Conference baseball action in Thief River Falls. Alreck allowed himself to be caught in a run-down play after drawing a two-out walk in the first inning of the doubleheader nightcap. During the chase, the Vikings' Bill Kinnunen trotted across the plate from third base. Itasca swept Northland 7-0 and 10-4 .

Vikings Sweep Pioneers

Itasca committed just one error in the two games, while Northland was charged with 10 of them Wednesday. Not surprisingly, then, the Vikings swept the Pioneers 7-0 and 10-4 in a Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls.

Northland's offense was equally at fault in the first game when the Pioneers left 10 runners on base — seven of them in scoring position.

"I thought Kevin Nelson pitched well," said Northland coach Rick Nelson after the righthanded freshman from Thief River Falls gave up just two earned runs in five and one-third innings of work. "But we didn't give him any help. We had a lot of missed opportunities."

Deon Schmidt, a freshman from Fargo, finished the Northland mound chores. Together, Nelson and Schmidt surrendered 11 hits. Winning pitcher Warren Johnson had a five-hit shutout. Dean Brandon, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, had three of the five Northland hits in four at-bats.

Itasca had a 2-0 first inning lead in Game 1, added single runs in the third and fourth innings, then wrapped it up with a three-run sixth.

Northland bats came alive in Game 2 as the Pioneers out-hit the Vikings 10-6. But they continued to make mistakes defensively, and failed to produce runs with their hits.

"We didn't make the plays (defensively) that we should have made, and we didn't get the key hits when we had (scoring) opportunities," explained Nelson, who watched his team's season-opening losing streak hit nine games.

Itasca, for example, scored a pair of cheap first inning runs when No. 2 hitter John Mavette dropped a catchable double inside the right field foul line and came home on a two-out double up the middle by hard-hitting third baseman Bill Kinnunen. A wild pitch moved Kinnunen to third base, and he trotted home when Craig Alreck drew a walk and immediately got himself caught in an intentional run-down between first and second base. The Northland infielders eventually tagged Alreck for the third out of the inning, but in the meantime completely forgot about the runner at third, who crossed the plate before the inning ended.

It became 5-0 in the third when a lead-off double by Tim Provinzino, plus back-to-back singles by Tom Ellertson and Mavetto drove Northland righthander Tim Nyland, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, from the mound. An error produced the third run of the inning.

Relief Pitcher Tim Borgen, a freshman from Grand Forks, hit Kinnunen for the second straight time to lead off the fifth inning. Kinnunen then stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on a two-out single by Dan Wallin for a sixth Itasca run. The Vikings finished it off with a four-run sixth to chase Borgen in favor of Dan Cwikla, a freshman from Middle River.

Steve Anderson was the winning pitcher in another complete-game performance from the Itasca staff, giving up single runs in the fourth and fifth innings and two in the sixth. Freshmen Darrin Elliot (Fargo) and Dean Zimel (Dilworth) both came off the bench and had 2-for-2 games at the plate for the Pioneers. Catcher Grant Grabanski, a freshman from Grand Forks, was 2-for-4, including his second home run of the year.

Minnesota Twins manager Gene Mauch sent seven consecutive pinch hitters to the plate in the seventh and eighth innings of an August 6, 1979 game in Seattle.

UMPIRE PAUL WILLIAMS watched the play closely before he indicated that Thief River Falls runner Kory Joppru was safe as he completed his slide across home plate in the third inning of the Prowlers' high school baseball home opener Friday against Kennedy-Hallock. Jerod Hanson was the catcher on the play as Joppru scored from third on an infield ground out. Coming to the plate as the next batter was Joel Swanson.

Hibbing Takes Pair From NCC

Winless Northland Community College played a strong Hibbing team tough twice Saturday, but still wound up empty-handed in the win column as the visiting Cardinals swept the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division doubleheader 8-3 and 4-2.

Northland dropped to 0-11 with the double defeat, but Pioneers coach Rick Nelson found reason to be satisfied with his team's efforts.

"Hibbing is the best team we've faced all year, no question," Nelson pointed out. "We're 0-11, but for the first time in 11 games we didn't have any MEs (mental errors) in the second game. We did a nice job defensively."

Northland received solid pitching performances from freshmen Deon Schmidt in Game 1 and Tim Borgen in Game 2, but the Pionneers' offense never came up with the needed support.

Hibbing came up with just three earned runs in the 8-3 first game win. It was a 1-1 tie in the fifth when the Pioneers broke down momentarily on defense. They failed to turn a potential double play, allowing one run to score and setting up a first-and-third situation. What was supposed to be a set play — a fake pump throw by the catcher on the automatic steal of second — turned disastrous when the ball slipped out of his hands and sailded into center field, scoring two runs. A walk and a home run then clinched it for the Cardinals.

Second game was even closer. It was a 2-2 tie in the top of the seventh when a one-out, two-run double won it for the Cardinals. Northland's Grant Grabanski had homered earlier in the game, his third round-tripper of the year.

Hits were even in both games. Hibbing had a 6-5 base hit edge in Game 1, won by Tim Podominick. Northland had a 5-4 base hit edge in Game 2, won by John Spry. Jeff Emanual had a save in both contests.

Northland had three errors in the opener; Hibbing had one. The two teams both had a pair of errors in the nightcap.

Record Participating In Wildlife Activity

Preliminary results from a national survey released recently by the U.S Fish and Wildlife Service indicate that a record 141 million Americans age 16 and over participated in wildlife-associated recreation in 1985, spending over $55 billion on wildlife-related activities.

The 1985 national survey of fishing, hunting, and wildlife-associated recreation reveals that in 1985:

+ 46.6 million, or more than one in four, adult Americans fished.

+ 16.7 Million, or about one in ten, adult Americans hunted.

+ 109.7 million, or over half of all adult Americans, actively participated in nonconsumptive wildlife-related activities such as feeding, observing, or photographing wildlife.

"These preliminary results support what we have suspected — that more Americans than ever before are engaging in wildlife-related activities. And since those who enjoy these activities tend to be more involved in wildlife conservation, the record numbers reported here augur well for this country's wildlife resources" sid Frank Dunkle, Director of the Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service.

Preliminary figures were relased by the Fish and Wildlife Service at the 52nd annual North American wildlife and natural resources conference in Quebec City, Canada.

The 1985 survey is the seventh in a series of national surveys of wildlife-associated recreation conducted by the Fish and Wildlife Service every five years since 1955. The survey was formally requested by the states through the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies in September 1983.

Over 100,000 households were contacted by telephone for the initial phase of the 1985 survey, which was done by the U.S. Bureau of the Census for the Fish and Wildlife Service. Detailed interviews were conducted in person with over 30,000 individuals who were found to be participants in wildlife activities during the initial phase.

These surveys represent the most comprehensive periodic examination of the participation of Americans in wildlife recreation, offering both a national report and an individual report for each of the 50 states. The data are used extensively by public and private wildlife managers to help them more appropriately meet increased or changing demands on fish and wildlife resources. They are also widely used by the recreational equipment industry, conservation organizations, and others interested in outdoor recreation.

Of the 46.6 million total adult anglers reported for 1985, 40.2 million (86 per cent) fished in freshwater, while 14.1 million (30 per cent) fished in saltwater. Fishermen spent a total of $28.2 billion on their sport—an average of $604 per fisherman in 1985— and a total of 987.7 million days fishing—an average of 21 days per fisherman.

Interestingly, the 16.7 million hunters who were active in 1985 also spent an average of $604 per hunter for their sport. They were afield a total of 335.1 million days, an average of 20 days per hunter.

Of the 109.7 million adults who reported participating in wildlife activities other than fishing and hunting, 105.3 million participated around their homes, including 63.6 million who observed wildlife, 82.5 million who fed wild birds, and 18.1 million who photographed wildlife. Over 29.5 million reported taking trips for the primary purpose of observing, feeding or photographing wildlife. Americans spent a total of over $14 billion on equipment such as vinoculars, cameras, and birdfeeders; transportation; and other costs associated with these kinds of activities.

Big game was hunted by 12.5 million people, or 75 per cent of hunters, and small game was hunted by 10.8 million people, or 65 per cent of hunters. About 30 per cent of hunters sought migratory birds, such as ducks, geese, and doves, and 17 per cent reported hunting other animals, including raccoon, fox, and woodchuck.

According to the survey, most sportsmen are male (69 per cent of all sportsmen), white (93 per cent), between 18 and 44 years of age (64 per cent), with a high school or better education (78 per cent), and an annual income of over $25,000 (59 per cent).

While the majority of anglers (60 per cent) lived in urban areas, most hunters (55 per cent) lived in rural areas. However, participation rates for both fishing and hunting were highest among residents of rural areas. In 1985, 33 per cent of the rural population fished and 16 per cent hunted. By comparison, 23 per cent of the urban population fished and 6 per cent hunted.

Preliminary results suggest a substantial increase in the number of fishermen between 1980 and 1985, a slight decline in the number of hunters, and an increase in participation in other wildlife-associated activities since the 1980 survey. Service researchers caution, however, that the significance of variations or trends between the two survey results cannot be determined until all of the data are available.

Hunters and anglers paid the $9 million cost of the 1985 survey through excise taxes on sporting equipment, which go into the Federal Aid in Sport and Fish Restoration and Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration accounts. An administrative portion of these tax funds is allocated to the Service to administer the programs and to conduct the Survey.

Final report of the 1985 national survey of fishing, hunting, and wildlife associated recreation is expected to be completed in late November 1987. Individual state reports will be issued four to six months later. Information on ordering these reports will be available as they are published.

— Outdoor News —

Contrary to previous media reports, the Waskish State Forest Campground will be open for this year's fishing opener on May 16. Although the campground is scheduled to close for new construction on July 13, redevelopment plans for the park have been changed and the new schedule will allow the campground to be used before the closing date.

According to John Hellquist, Forestry recreation specialist for DNR Forestry, "the construction schedule was changed to avoid closing the campground during the spring fishing season. The facility will reopen shortly after construction is finished."

The campground, located at the point where the Tamarac River enters Upper Red Lake adjacent to Highway 72, has been the second most-heavily used forest campground in the state. Included in the unit are 32 campsites, a boat launching facility, a picnic area and a segment of shoreline used by swimmers.

"The area is underdeveloped and has suffered from underdevelopment and heavy use," Helquist said. The planned improvements are designed to protect the natural resources of the area and upgrade the sanitation and other facilities, not to increase the size of the campground."

Among the planned improvements are the installation of boat docks, a parking area for boat trailers, new toilets, picnic tables and fire rings, level parking spurs and tent pads and grading and graveling of the road and parking area.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE second baseman Dean Brandon and shortstop Dan Cwikla chased after a wide throw from catcher Grant Gabanski as Itasca runner Steve Feldt reached second on a stolen base attempt during Wednesday's community college baseball action in Thief River Falls. Feldt was tagged out moments later, however, when he rounded the bag and was caught by a throw behind the runner from right fielder Darrin Byklum. The play happened in the fourth inning of Game 2. Itasca won both games by 7-0 and 10-4 scores.

ZEHLIAN "FOLLOW THE RIVERS" project is scheduled to be completed by the 1996 Thief River Falls centennial. Proposed new river walk is shown above in green, while existing trails and city walk areas are solid black lines. The star in the Elks park denotes a fountain, while the star by the falls at the dam will be a sculpture commemorating the logging industry of early days. Two lookouts on the east side of the falls are shown as black diamond shapes. The "Follow the Rivers" project will utilize public property and all walkways will be handicapped-accessible.

Come Walk With Me And We Shall See . . .

by Sharon LaCoursiere
News Reporter

In the not-too-distant future we will be able to pack a picnic lunch and spend a quiet summer's evening strolling peacefully along the river that winds through Thief River Falls, stopping at one of several area parks to enjoy our meal, perhaps beside a singing fountain or a rushing waterfall. It is hoped that this idyllic vision could come to pass by 1996 — the year of the incorporation of Thief River Falls as a city — our centennial.

The Thief River Falls park board and city council have approved plans for a "Follow the Rivers" centennial project, presented by the city's Zehlian group, members of the General Federation of Women's clubs. Plans for the project would include beautifying and improving existing trails and city walkways, and adding four new river walks to create a continuous walkway along the river. Special emphasis would be placed on our city's falls at the dam, and on several city parks along the river.

— The first step of the project will be a river walk from the first street bridge to the falls, complete with benches, lights and newly-planted trees. The Zehlians plan to complete this phase of the river walk by the end of this summer, according to Gretchen Beito, chairman of the Follow the Rivers project.

— The second part of the project would extend the above walkway from the falls to Sioux Avenue on the east side of the river, with the addition of a park area and two lookouts on the falls.

To beautify the falls, rip-rap would be placed below the falls and a statue commemorating log drivers would adorn the existing piling above the falls.

— The third step of the improvement project would be in the Elks park area in the center of the city. A walk would extend from behind the fire hall and under the railroad bridge (along the present ambulance emergency route) through the park to Third Street Bridge. A fountain would be added to further enhance the beauty of the park.

— The fourth river walk improvement would be in the area of Eighth Street Bridge by the statue of Chief Moose Dung (soon to be Chief Red Robe), where a natural walkway would be added.

Other planned improvements to the walkways would include informational boards, maps and wildlife, historical and geological brochures. Future plans include the addition of walking bridges over the river from L.B. Hartz Park to Columbia Avenue and in the Centennial Drive area of the river. Walkways will be constructed on public property and be handicapped-accessible.

The Zehlian Follow the Rivers project is a program created to "provide safe, pleasant places to walk or jog; make better use of natural recreational areas in Thief River Falls; to identify historic sites in the city; to beautify the city; to develop the heart of the city — the falls — that are identified with our city's name and its incorporation in 1896; and to create a lasting centennial project for everyone's enjoyment," states publicity chairman Bunny Dondelinger.

The Zehlian community improvement project committee is seeking grants and other funding assistance from community organizations to make the project a reality before the city's centennial in 1996. For more information on the project, contact any of the following Zehlian members: Chairman Gretchen Beito, Bunny Dondelinger, Marge Lavalier, Mary Evans, Marge Green or Zehlian President Carol Jung.

Cancer Crusade Locally Planned For Monday Night

Next Monday volunteers with the American Cancer society will be knocking on doors in Thief River Falls to distribute information on cancer and raise funds for research into cancer cures and area service programs.

According to Joe Forberg, chairman of this year's crusade in Thief River Falls, the emphasis this year is on mammography — a highly effective tool in early detection of breast cancer. The low-dose x-ray can detect tumors as small as a freckle and has made the chances of survival for women with breast cancer nearly 100 per cent — if the cancer is detected at the onset.

"The American Cancer society urges women without symptoms but between the ages of 35 and 39 to get a baseline mammogram for future comparisons," Forberg said. "Women between the ages of 40 and 49 should undergo this test every year or two, as recommended by their physician. Women 50 years of age and older should have mammograms annually."

Forberg said volunteers will distribute the folder "Now, Breast Cancer Has Virtually Nowhere to Hide" door-to-door Monday night. More than 30 service clubs and other organizations will assist with the citywide campaign from 6 p.m. to about 8 p.m. Residents are encouraged to receive the volunteers cordially and to make a donation to the cancer crusade.

Drug And Alcohol Abuse Workshop Series Slated

To confront family behavioral problems including chemical abuse through prevention, early intervention and support, Dick Schaefer of the Touch Love center at Fargo, ND, will present a series of workshops in Thief River Falls May 6, 7 and 8 at the city auditorium.

There is no admission charge for the programs — each of which will be different from the others — which are intended for all family members from fourth grade and older. Sponsorship is by the Community Chemical Awareness Task Force in Thief River Falls in cooperation with the community education department of School District 564 and with major funding from the St. Hilaire Lions club.

Schaefer has worked with disturbed and disturbing youth for the past 25 years, starting as a counselor at Home on the Range for Boys in 1961. Most recently he was the program director for the drug abusing youth services at South East mental health center in Fargo, ND. He has also served as chaplain at the Heartview foundation for alcoholics at Mandan, ND, and as director for the youth unit of the alcoholism and drug division at the state hospital in Jamestown, ND.

Now director of the Touch Love center in Fargo, he works primarily with disturbed adolescents (both delinquents and drug dependent youth) with special workshops in these areas for professionals and paraprofessionals working with adolescents in schools, courts, crisis centers, youth centers and mental health and social services. He also teaches communication skills to parents and adolescents for intervention and problem solving.

"This workshop series recognizes that disturbed and disturbing youth (especially drug abusers) often affect those with whom they live in destructive ways," Schaefer said. "Those individuals become 'enablers' who unwillingly allow the youth to continue self-destructive behaviors.

"Touch Love centering develops a system approach to stop enabling and to start confronting the problem together. Drug dependency is a system illness and it takes a 'system to crack a system.' It is an approach which works toward developing a network system in a community including family, foster homes, friends, schools, churches, courts, human services and recreational centers," he added.

Schaefer will explain the principles of the Touch Love program, show the difference between adults and youth in the addiction process and help those attending learn about the dynamics of power plays. He will show survival behaviors of children living with alcohol abusing parents and outline the grieving process of both drug abusing youth and children of missing parents.

Different levels of drug usage (including alcohol) will be described with their effects to present various signs of addictions. Participants will then be better able to assess their own usage and the level of dependency of other members of their family. The delusional system will be explained so that one can understand why the drug abuser is the last to admit he or she has a problem, even though other people can see it more easily. Intervention techniques will be presented along with guidelines for sobriety for the drug dependent person and his family.

Dick Schaefer

Since members of the family are involved in the game playing and constant spinning of wheels in non-problem solving behaviors which often end up in arguments and frustrating experiences," Schaefer said, "chemical dependency is truly a family illness."

He describes the Tough Love program as "a high form of love" for the youngsters who need it. Explanation will be given for various stages of interrupting the cycle of destructive behaviors with drug abusers.

"We would encourage everyone to attend the first session at 7:15 p.m. on May 6," stated Jane Mackenroth, community education director for School District 564. "If they do, we are sure they won't want to miss the next two workshops."

TRF City Council To Create Energy Council

Thief River Falls city council passed a motion Tuesday night to pursue an opportunity to secure energy grants and create a new energy commission. The council also adopted a resolution supporting the school district in its efforts to curb smoking by students near the school, denied a sign variance request from Holiday gas station, and approved a motion to increase use rates at the sports arena during the winter.

With a quorum in the council of six with Mayor Bob Carlson and Alderman Milan Borsheim absent, a resolution to seek grants from the state for use by an energy council was approved. The city learned earlier this year that funds for use by energy councils would be available from a lawsuit involving EXXON corporation. Grants are available for up to $30,000 the first year with a 10 per cent local match necessary. If the city were to receive the maximum allowable, it could, with a $4,500 match, have approximately $50,000 to use.

The grants would only be forthcoming to an approved energy council. The resolution adopted Tuesday night gave the major the power to appoint the members. Although some of the aldermen discussed limiting his selection to a list devised by members of the utilities commission, the power to select whomever he wished was ultimately agreed upon.

Some of the projects the newly created energy council may undertake include: installing weatherization materials for senior citizens or handicapped and low to moderate income families, performing energy audits, creating an information clearing house, holding workshops for merchants, providing energy loans to residents, converting street lights to energy efficient models, and many other projects.

Alderman Don Liden was the only dissenting vote on a motion to create an energy council and pursue grant funds. Liden said he opposed the formation of an energy council because he did not like the idea of having to contribute matching funds to a project which the city would essentially have no control in distributing. Liden said he was also opposed to it because the energy council would be a duplication of activities presently being conducted by agencies already in place, such as Inter-county community council.

Alderman Kenneth Murphy said the proposed energy council would have limited powers. The energy council would only have the power to distribute the funds and develop requirements for the funds. It would have nothing to do with the city, Murphy said.

City council approved an agreement drawn up with School District 564. The effort is being pursued in cooperation with the student senate, law enforcement and court officials.

The agreement reads: "As an owner of property contiguous to Lincoln high school, I support the school's efforts to control the use of tobacco products in proximity of the schools. I give the school permission to designate my property as a tobacco-free area for students and district staff (during school-work hours). By doing so I assume no liability for enforcement of this school rule."

The city council denied a sign variance request by Erickson Petroleum Corporation (Holiday Station store) to place white "Holiday" letters and a "Lexon" logo on three sides of the canopy above the gas pumps in addition to the existing pylon and building wall signs.

In opposing the request, aldermen Don Liden and Don Barron said they would like to see consistency in ap-

Deaths And Funerals

Sidney Wilson, 80

Goodridge — Sidney Wilson, 80, died December 31 at the Mesa Lutheran hospital in Mesa, AZ. A memorial service for Sidney Wilson will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at Telemarken Lutheran church in rural Goodridge, with Rev. Raynard Huglen officiating. Burial will be in the Telemarken church cemetery, with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Organist and soloist at the service will be Mrs. Grace Hammer, with renditions of "Because He Lives" and "How Great Thou Art." The congregation will join in singing "Nearer My God To Thee." All attending the service will be considered honorary pallbearers.

Sidney W. Wilson was born Sept. 27, 1906, in Spicer, to James and Hilda Roalquam Wilson. At the age of 11, he moved with his family to Kratka township, Pennington county, where he attended school and grew to manhood.

In 1938, he married Beatrice Wedul. The couple lived in Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls. During World War II, they lived in Berkeley, CA, where he worked as a welder in the shipyards. In 1944, the family returned to Kratka township, where he farmed until his retirement.

He and his wife had spent their winters in Apache Junction, AZ, for the past eight years. He was a member of Telemarken Lutheran church and served as church treasurer for several years.

Sidney Wilson is survived by his wife, Beatrice; two sons, Bernard, Minneapolis, and Jon, Goodridge; one daughter, Dianne, Fargo, ND; seven grandchildren, Joan Schnetzer, Jeff and Greg Nesser, Michelle, Carrie, Cally and James Wilson; one sister, June Berg, Bloomington; three brothers, Archie, Thief River Falls, Fred, Bloomington, and Warren, Goodridge; and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

He was preceded in death by his parents; one son, James, in 1970; one brother, Stanley; and one sister, Evalyne Foster.

plication of the current sign ordinance. In addition, Barron, having driven past the store from four different directions and not seeing any reason for the signs, did not wish to set a precedent which could lead to further variance requests and complaints. Barron noted later that it would also be detrimental to the ordinance and comprehensive plan.

A roll call vote on the motion to deny the request showed five votes for the denial and one vote (J.J. Womack) against the denial.

Proposed rate adjustment at the sports arena and old arena during the winter months when the ice goes in was approved. Ice rentals at the sports arena jumped from $30 per hour to $35 per hour and from $300 per day to $350 per day. The old arena rates remained the same for the hourly rate but jumped from $150 per day to $200 per day. Public skating fees increased from 50 cents for adults and students to $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Punch cards will be sold at 80 per cent of face value.

Rates for the men's city hockey league were set at $75 per team for an entry fee and $15 per team per game. Captain's practice session increased from $10 per session to $35 per session. Thief River Falls amateur hockey association tournament rates jumped from nothing to $75 per team per tournament. For five and six-year-old players the rates stay at $5, the rates for Tiny Mites increased by $5, the rates for the Squirts increased by $5 from $10, the PeeWee rates jumped from $10 to $20 and for the Bantams the rates jumped from $10 to $25. Only one user fee will be required if the child is enrolled in both recreational skating and TRFAHA. These new rates will take effect when the ice goes in in the fall.

Mike Mongoven, superintendent of parks and recreation, announced to the council that he has received permission from the Minnesota department of natural resources to build a double boat ramp at the Boy Scout park. The department of natural resources will contribute the concrete planks for the project. The size of the ramp will not just be doubled but two separate ramps will be created. The council asked that the permission be put in writing.

Mongoven also indicated that he is working with the department of natural resources to reach an agreement on weed management in the Thief river and Red Lake river in Thief River Falls.

On another zoning variance request, the council approved of a conditional use permit to Lakehead Pipe Line company which would allow the company to operate a pipeline maintenance headquarters, including offices, a maintenance workshop, vehicle parking, and exterior storage of materials such as pipe, valves and fittings. The use permit was granted with the stipulation that the company completely enclose all outdoor storage areas with a slatted fence not less than six feet high to screen said storage areas and use a shield encircling any welding.

Several bids were awarded Tuesday night. A contract for plastic refuse bags was awarded to L.B. Hartz wholesale for $12,921. A low bid of $15,540 for power plant repairs was awarded to Jerry's construction of Erskine.

Alderman Kenneth Murphy said the treatment at the city lagoons seems to be having a positive effect. However, Murphy said, there might be another turnover caused by the treatment. Another turnover would mean an increase in odor emission. Murphy said he would like to alert the public of the possibility of more odor, but he is not saying there will be a turnover.

Murphy said both east and west ponds have moved more toward an aerobic state than their previous anaerobic state. Since the treatment began, he said, there has been a dramatic increase in the oxygen level at the ponds. This is more true, he said, of the east pond than the west pond, but that's because much of last winter's run was diverted to the west pond.

Alderman Barron noted that members of the council are working with Land O'Lakes on the problem.

TIMES Around The Region

by Sharon LaCoursiere

Only Rumors

New-River Record-Rumors of food poisoning were rampant in Middle River April 16 and 17 when a large number of elementary school students became ill and had to leave school. Superintendent Dyrud immediately checked with the health department and was assured that the children had nothing more than a highly contagious virus, a fact that was verified when older children came down with symptoms a day or two later.

80-Year-Old Church Damaged

Oklee Herald — A grass fire nearly destroyed the 1907 Deer Park township country schoolhouse recently. A spark from a burning haystack ignited in the attic of the building and, after a passerby noticed smoke and called the fire department, neighbors carried water to contain the flames until the fire truck arrived. The building was extensively smoke damaged and the entry and walls were damaged by fire. The Orlando Chervestad family plans to restore the building to its historic condition.

Try, Try Again

Red Lake Falls Gazette — A highway-32 improvement project seven and one-half miles north of Marcoux Corner, originally scheduled for July of 1983, has been moved backward for the third time, reported the Red Lake Falls Gazette. According to Northwest district highway engineer Bob Wolfe, letting date for the project will be after the first of the year. Another project for highway 32 through the city of Red Lake Falls is scheduled for 1991. Former Red Lake county highway engineer Monte Berend said the state might be receptive to moving the highway through the city project ahead if the city can develop some funding itself. Public hearings on the highway issues will be held later this year in Red Lake Falls.

Fire Scare

Fertile Journal — A brush fire came within 50 feet of the David Bertil farm home eight miles north of Fertile April 17. The blaze burned seven acres around the home before a dozen volunteer firefighters from Fertile and Mentor brought it under control about 3:30 p.m.

Greener Pastures

McIntosh Times — After spending eight years in McIntosh serving Mt. Carmel and Trinity churches, and, for the first year, also Calvary church in Fosston, Rev. and Mrs. Walt Beaman will move along to serve Bethany Free Lutheran parish in Sebeka. Wilbur Nielson from rural Erskine will serve the two churches as interim pastor until a new pastor is found.

Baudette Or The Everglades?

Baudette Region — An 18-year-old Baudette man will be charged with fleeing a police officer, careless driving and consumption by a minor after a high speed auto chase through the city of Baudette that ended up in a foot chase through a swamp near Waskish. Matthew Lorbiecki, the driver of the car, was found with passenger David Norquist about 4 a.m. after a chase that began at 12:14 a.m. when police officer Larry Toll noted a car crossing the highway 11 bridge in Baudette at a speed estimated at over 60 miles per hour. He chased the car down Main avenue to the Trinity hospital and then to the Baudette arena and south on county road one. At times the vehicles reached speeds of 90 miles per hour. The vehicle was stopped about seven miles south of Waskish at 12:45 a.m. with a roadblock by Beltrami county sheriff's deputies and the state highway patrol. The driver and his three passengers then left the vehicle and ran into a swamp. Passengers Ad Brink and Dan Kempernich, both of Baudette, were apprehended almost immediately. All four men are 18 years old and were charged with consumption by a minor. Lake of the Woods county deputy Dallas Block assisted with the swamp search.

Hippity Hop To Hillcrest

Red Lake Falls Gazette — Cadet Girl Scout troop 81 of Red Lake Falls delivered Easter baskets to their adopted grandparents at Hillcrest nursing home before Easter. The girls did not dress up like Easter bunnies.

Good Deeds

McIntosh Times — The McIntosh Men's Action Group contributed their time and brawn in a Spring Clean-Up day last Saturday. They joined forces to pick up and dispose of bags of leaves and litter for local homeowners in an annual clean up McIntosh project.

Rats On Rumors

North Star News — City clerk Wayne Ruud reported to the Karlstad city council on investigation into the report of a rat infestation on the east side of town, one of several rumors about rats in different areas of town. The Lystad Extermination Company gave buildings on the east side of town an okay, and Ruud said other rat reports will be investigated.

Forty Years Ago

Crookston Daily Times — The Crookston Times reported that Easter of 1947 (April 7), "blew into Crookston...on a 45 mile per hour wind...festooned with eight inches of snow." According to a story in the Times, all city streets were blocked with drifts on the north side of town as high as eight and 10 feet deep. The city street department worked until midnight Easter Sunday getting paths through the streets. Buses were cancelled, there were no Easter morning church services and several people were stranded by the storm.

Down She Goes . . .

Baudette Region — An historic landmark in East Baudette became a pile of rubble in no time when the Spooner municipal building and auditorium was demolished last week. The building had been one of the first edifices constructed after a 1910 fire in that town, and had served as the city's municipal building and a hub of community activities with a danc hall on the second floor. More recently it had been a creamery and the home of a high technology machining and tool and die operation, Wabanica Products. Th cornerstone of the building was opened during the demolition, yielding two newspapers from 1910 and a letter from the builder to the people of today. The letter gave a brief history of how the building came to be, what citizens were active in the process of planning and building, and stated that the cornerstone was laid Dec. 23, 1910. The letter also gave the population of the village at 500 people — pre-fire population was 1,000 — with 85 permanent residences and 10 business places. It said the chief industry of the village was lumbering.

Fox Felons Admit Guilt

Red Lake Falls Gazette — Two Otter Tail county men plead guilty in district court recently in connection with the January 10 theft of several fox from a farm near Oklee, reported Red Lake county sheriff Allan Morken. Olaf William Ard and Clayton David Ard were apprehended after a stake-out operation by the Red Lake county sheriff's department.

Active Participation

McIntsoh Times — Winger Calvary church Sunday school presented a dramatic story of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus the Sunday before Easter. Members of the congregation made authentic crosses and costumes for the production and live plants were donated by mothers and grandmothers. All of the Sunday school children participated in songs, Bible readings and dramatic presentations.

Rummage Away — Worthy Cause

Bag sale begins at 1 p.m. Proceeds from the event go to auxiliary programs aiding veterans and veterans' families.

Boys In Blue To The Rescue

Baudette Region — Baudette policemen will turn into crossing guards after school each day. A near-collision between a school child and a vehicle recently has prompted officers to take the initiative and patrol the crossing over highway 11 on a regular basis between 3:15 and 3:30 p.m. each day. Baudette officials have asked the Minnesota highway department for a stop sign or traffic signal at the intersection, but since help has not been forthcoming, they are doing something about the problem on their own.

Happy New Home

Norh Star Noew — The Karlstad hospital and clinic have moved to a new home and an open house will be held in the near future.

Grim Reminder

Lake Region Press — Students at Jefferson high school in Alexandria were confronted with a gruesome reminder of the deaths of two classmates in an automobile accident when the two cars totaled in the accident were displayed outside the school. Parents of the students killed asked that the cars be displayed at the school to hopefully prevent other tragic accidents.

Grand Forks Herald — Four hundred twenty gallons of pinto beans, along with hot dogs and potato chips, were served to 2,100 people at a Big Bean Blowout Sunday at Forest River, ND. The free Bean Blowout was the beginning of promotions for the city's centennial celebration in June. # MN Starwatch Reviews Active Planet Displays

May brings the loss of Orion and other familiar winter stars as they sink into the sun's glare, leaving behind a steadily brightening night sky, according to the University of Minnesota Starwatch program. Venus and Jupiter put on a pretty pre-dawn display early in the month, and Mars begins a journey through the evening sky that will take it through the horns of Taurus, the bull.

Early in the month Venus and Jupiter rise close to each other in the east about an hour before sunup, but Jupiter quickly moves above and to the right of Venus. On the 5th, Jupiter passes just six-tenths of a degree above Venus in one of the closest conjunctions of planets this year. By month's end Jupiter rises in dark skies more than two hours before the sun.

Saturn rises about three hours after sunset on the 1st, then earlier each evening for the rest of the month. The giant planet appears high to the left of the bright red star Antares in the constellation Scorpio. This is a terrific time to view Saturn through a telescope because its rings are tilted about as far toward Earth as they ever are.

Mars is fading as it dips deeper into the western twilight. On the 1st it appears above the orange star Aldebraran in Taurus, a short distance below the twin stars that mark the bull's horns. By mid'month it has passed upward through the horns, but is still sinking with respect to the horizon. By the end of the month Mars is a faint reddish dot above and to the left of Mercury; both planets are near the west-northwest horizon at sunset.

The moon starts the month as a crescent just above the bull's horns, waxing to the full "flower" moon — also called the "planting" moon or "milk" moon — on the 13th., It's waning crescent closes in on Jupiter the morning of the 23rd, passes it during the day and appears between Jupiter and Venus on the 24th. The next morning a very thin crescent moon will be almost lost in the twilight just above Venus. The new moon arrives on the 27th. The next couple of evenings the waxing young moon will sweep by Mercury and Mars in the southwest.

The constellation Virgo, the virgin, marked by the bright star Spica, is high in the evening sky. Spica, Latin for ear of grain, represents the stalk of grain held by the virgin in most depictions of the constellation. A double star, Spica shows a four-day cycle fo brightning and dimming as its two components orbit and eclipse each other.

Two objects that look like small fuzzy spots to the naked eye appear as beautiful open star clusters through binoculars or a telescope. The "beehive" cluster is midway between Pollux, the brighter of the Gemini twins, and the head of Leo, the lion, in the southwest evening sky. Coma Berenices, or "Berenice's hair," is on the other side of Leo, above and to the left of the lion's tail end.

(Minnesota Starwatch is a monthly guide to the night sky in the Upper Midwest. Information is provided by members of the astronomy department of the University of Minnesota. To hear a taped version of Starwatch, call (612) 624-2001.)

Jehovah Witnesses Participate In Regional Assembly

"Joyfully Enduring Trials Brings God's Approval' was the theme of the Circuit Assembly program presented by Jehovah's Witnesses, April 18, 19, at the Bemidji State University field house auditorium," Local Elder Larry Mogen said.

"We were helped to understand why we can expect trials, the benefits that come from enduring, and why we can be joyful in the face of health or economic problems. Also, Jesus foretold that his followers would face persecution and hatred even as he did. We considered how to cope with such trials," Darryl Holman said.

Nearly 1,800 persons were in attendance at the public talk on Sunday. The lecture, "You Can Enjoy Life in Peace Now," was given by Darrell Holman, Watchtower district representative.

Holman directed the audience to the Divine Source of true peace and security and showed scripturally how one can enjoy such peace now and in the indefinite future.

Many area families were present at the two-day gathering of twenty-two northern Minnesota congregations.

'Tax Man Cometh" Is Forecast For American Economy

by Walter W. Heller
U of M Economist

This being T-day — note that I am following White House practice where "tax" is a four letter word — let me share with you a few facts and forecasts on taxes.

I'll start with a couple of facts that might just ease the pain of T-day a bit. First, tax reform is cutting your income tax rates not just this year but next, at the same time that it is plugging loopholes through which so many were escaping their fair share of the tax burden.

Second, it may also help a bit to know that the United States has the lightest tax burden — at 28 per cent of gross national product — of any industrial country in the world except Japan, and they're just a whisker behind us at 26 per cent. European taxes range from 35 per cent to 50-plus per cent of their GNP.

If you think the best place for government is off your back, our low taxes are good news. If you think that getting the deficit down while maintaining our military strength and building up our economic strength calls for more taxes, no less, it's bad news.

More and more responsible observers — not just liberals, but conservatives like George Will and Kevin Phillips — are recognizing that sensible supply-side economics calls for beefing up the nation's infrastructure: its highways, airways and waterways; its water and sewer systems; and, above all, its educational system. They know that if the public sector shirks its share of the job, it will be a drag on the private sector's profits and growth. So up to a point, higher taxes are an inescapable price we have to pay for economic growth.

That's true in another critical way. To make room for the private investment that's essential for economic growth means that we have to increase national savings. So tax increases to cut the deficit and curb consumer spending are part and parcel of a long-term policy for growth.

Washington policymakers are already dropping hints of what kind of tax hikes we might be in for.

Mr. Reagan's budget director and chief economic adviser have both suggested that raising such sin taxes as those on tobacco and liquor might cut consumption and thereby also cut the costs of illness and injury. And chairman Dan Rostenkowski of the House ways and means committee sees a gasoline tax boost as the way to go. Republican Sens. Bob Dole and Peter Domenici and Democratic Sen. Lawton Chiles, the new head of the Senate budget committee, have long seen taxes as a natural part of a deficit-cutting program.

Granted, President Reagan has again promised to "veto any tax rate increase." But not that he said that in the context of the income tax, and that's not where the action is likely to be. Look beyond the income tax and you see some excise tax hikes in our future. Both responsible politics and sound economics should tell you, "the tax man cometh."

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE for the local drug and alcohol awareness program has again been provided by the St. Hilaire Lions club. The club provided the local task force and community education department of School District 564 with a check for $2,300 to aid in sponsorship of workshops in Thief River Falls May 6, 7 and 8. The workshops will feature Dick Schaefer, director of the Touch Love center in Fargo, ND. Left to right in the photo above are Neil Peterson, Jerry Hasnedl, Ron McKercher and Peter Mosbeck of the St. Hilaire Lions club; Jane Mackenroth, community education coordinator; and Ruth Wilkinson, member of the chemical awareness task force.

Soo Line Reports $2.6 Million Net Operating Loss

Soo Line corporation reported a net loss of $2.6 million or 27 cents per share in the first quarter of 1987, compared to the $2.1 million net loss in the prior year's first quarter.

Operating revenues for the quarter were $151 million compared to $161 million in the first quarter of 1986. Operating expenses were $146 million, down six per cent in this year's quarter over the prior year's quarter even with additional freight volume.

Total carloads and intermodal units handled were five per cent higher this year over the first quarter of 1986. There were volume gains in farm products, forest products, automotive and intermodal areas.

Soo chairman and chief executive officer Dennis M. Cavanaugh said continued pressure to discount rail freight rates and changes in freight mix were the principal reasons the corporation reported a loss during the quarter. While freight volume strengthened this year over the first quarter of 1986, average revenue per unit declined 10 per cent for the same period.

In view of the significant impact reduced rates are having on the company, Cavanaugh said Soo will continue to lower employment costs and make further operating changes. The company's current employment level is approximately 1,300 employees lower than the first quarter of 1986.

to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am taking the liberty to write for so often we hear complaining of unethical business practices. I would like to praise someone for work well done.

Recently I needed some work on my sewing machine. After calling everywhere, a dear friend told me about Annette's Fabrics. I don't know the person who does their service but I want to say "Thank You" for a wonderful job (perfect) and the charges were very fair.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Marie McCullough

Farm Safety Is Pushed By Women Of Farm Bureau

Jean Fellows of Worthington, state chairman of the Farm Bureau Women's committee, said the group is urging farm families to use protective measures to minimize the dangers of farming.

"We want to emphasize caution and common sense," Fellows said. "We don't always know the long-term effects of some of the materials we work with, so it is urgent that we take the necessary precautions."

With the increased use of farm chemicals, it is important that farmers become familiar with both the hazards and the protective measures that can be taken.

There are six major types of respiratory hazards often associated with farm operations and there are suggested methods to minimize the dangers of each of them. For example, there are three categories of dust — nuisance, lung-damaging and toxic — and there are appropriate masks and safey aids for dealing with them.

Dangerous mists and vapors may also be encountered in normal handling of some substances used on farms. Special respirator equipment is available and should be used by farm operators when using these substances.

Other safety measures include wearing protective clothing and boots when handling chemicals, keeping plenty of water on hand in case substances are spilled on the body, and always washing thoroughly after using the materials.

Noise-induced hearing loss is another potential hazard. Farm equipment, with its high noise level, has the potential to cause temporary and sometimes permanent hearing loss. Farmers can protect their hearing by wearing earplugs, Fellows said.

Farm families can find protective clothing and other safety aids at many local elevators and stores that handle farm equipment.

"Many times farmers don't want to bother with things like wearing masks or earplugs," Fellows mentioned, "but that temporary inconvenience is a small price to pay for protecting their health and safety."

MN Starwatch Reviews Active Planet Displays

May brings the loss of Orion and other familiar winter stars as they sink into the sun's glare, leaving behind a steadily brightening night sky, according to the University of Minnesota Starwatch program. Venus and Jupiter put on a pretty pre-dawn display early in the month, and Mars begins a journey through the evening sky that will take it through the horns of Taurus, the bull.

Early in the month Venus and Jupiter rise close to each other in the east about an hour before sunup, but Jupiter quickly moves above and to the right of Venus. On the 5th, Jupiter passes just six-tenths of a degree above Venus in one of the closest conjunctions of planets this year. By month's end Jupiter rises in dark skies more than two hours before the sun.

Saturn rises about three hours after sunset on the 1st, then earlier each evening for the rest of the month. The giant planet appears high to the left of the bright red star Antares in the constellation Scorpio. This is a terrific time to view Saturn through a telescope because its rings are tilted about as far toward Earth as they ever are.

Mars is fading as it dips deeper into the western twilight. On the 1st it appears above the orange star Aldebraran in Taurus, a short distance below the twin stars that mark the bull's horns. By mid-month it has passed upward through the horns, but is still sinking with respect to the horizon. By the end of the month Mars is a faint reddish dot above and to the left of Mercury; both planets are near the west-northwest horizon at sunset.

The moon starts the month as a crescent just above the bull's horns, waxing to the full "flower" moon — also called the "planting" moon or "milk" moon — on the 13th. It's waning crescent closes in on Jupiter the morning of the 23rd, passes it during the day and appears between Jupiter and Venus on the 24th. The next morning a very thin crescent moon will be almost lost in the twilight just above Venus. The new moon arrives on the 27th. The next couple of evenings the waxing young moon will sweep by Mercury and Mars in the southwest.

The constellation Virgo, the virgin, marked by the bright star Spica, is high in the evening sky. Spica, Latin for ear of grain, represents the stalk of grain held by the virgin in most depictions of the constellation. A double star, Spica shows a four-day cycle fo brightning and dimming as its two components orbit and eclipse each other.

Two objects that look like small fuzzy spots to the naked eye appear as beautiful open star clusters through binoculars or a telescope. The "beehive" cluster is midway between Pollux, the brighter of the Gemini twins, and the head of Leo, the lion, in the southwest evening sky. Coma Berenices, or "Berenice's hair," is on the other side of Leo, above and to the left of the lion's tail end.

(Minnesota Starwatch is a monthly guide to the night sky in the Upper Midwest. Information is provided by members of the astronomy department of the University of Minnesota. To hear a taped version of Starwatch, call (612) 624-2001.)

"ONE SPECIAL BOY" is the song sung by Kim MacAfee (Jill Melvie) to her boyfriend (Tom Bolstad) in this scene from the Marshall County Central musical "Bye, Bye Birdie". Kim's friends are (left to right) Darcy Gonsorowski, Kari Jo Lokstad, Nancy Newland, Becky Berggren and Nikki Leach. The musical will be presented Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Jehovah Witnesses Participate In Regional Assembly

"Joyfully Enduring Trials Brings God's Approval' was the theme of the Circuit Assembly program presented by Jehovah's Witnesses, April 18, 19, at the Bemidji State University field house auditorium," Local Elder Larry Mogen said.

"We were helped to understand why we can expect trials, the benefits that come from enduring, and why we can be joyful in the face of health or economic problems. Also, Jesus foretold that his followers would face persecution and hatred even as he did. We considered how to cope with such trials," Darryl Holman said.

Nearly 1,800 persons were in attendance at the public talk on Sunday. The lecture, "You Can Enjoy Life in Peace Now," was given by Darrell Holman, Watchtower district representative.

Holman directed the audience to the Divine Source of true peace and security and showed scripturally how one can enjoy such peace now and in the indefinite future.

Many area families were present at the two-day gathering of twenty-two northern Minnesota congregations.

'Tax Man Cometh" Is Forecast For American Economy

by Walter W. Heller
U of M Economist

This being T-day — note that I am following White House practice where "tax" is a four letter word — let me share with you a few facts and forecasts on taxes.

I'll start with a couple of facts that might just ease the pain of T-day a bit. First, tax reform is cutting your income tax rates not just this year but next, at the same time that it is plugging loopholes through which so many were escaping their fair share of the tax burden.

Second, it may also help a bit to know that the United States has the lightest tax burden — at 28 per cent of gross national product — of any industrial country in the world except Japan, and they're just a whisker behind us at 26 per cent. European taxes range from 35 per cent to 50-plus per cent of their GNP.

If you think the best place for government is off your back, our low taxes are good news. If you think that getting the deficit down while maintaining our military strength and building up our economic strength calls for more taxes, no less, it's bad news.

More and more responsible observers — not just liberals, but conservatives like George Will and Kevin Phillips — are recognizing that sensible supply-side economics calls for beefing up the nation's infrastructure: its highways, airways and waterways; its water and sewer systems; and, above all, its educational system. They know that if the public sector shirks its share of the job, it will be a drag on the private sector's profits and growth. So up to a point, higher taxes are an inescapable price we have to pay for economic growth.

That's true in another critical way. To make room for the private investment that's essential for economic growth means that we have to increase national savings. So tax increases to cut the deficit and curb consumer spending are part and parcel of a long-term policy for growth.

Washington policymakers are already dropping hints of what kind of tax hikes we might be in for.

Mr. Reagan's budget director and chief economic adviser have both suggested that raising such sin taxes as those on tobacco and liquor might cut consumption and thereby also cut the costs of illness and injury. And chairman Dan Rostenkowski of the House ways and means committee sees a gasoline tax boost as the way to go. Republican Sens. Bob Dole and Peter Domenici and Democratic Sen. Lawton Chiles, the new head of the Senate budget committee, have long seen taxes as a natural part of a deficit-cutting program.

Granted, President Reagan has again promised to "veto any tax rate increase." But not that he said that in the context of the income tax, and that's not where the action is likely to be. Look beyond the income tax and you see some excise tax hikes in our future. Both responsible politics and sound economics should tell you, "the tax man cometh."

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE for the local drug and alcohol awareness program has again been provided by the St. Hilaire Lions club. The club provided the local task force and community education department of School District 564 with a check for $2,300 to aid in sponsorship of workshops in Thief River Falls May 6, 7 and 8. The workshops will feature Dick Schaefer, director of the Touch Love center in Fargo, ND. Left to right in the photo above are Neil Peterson, Jerry Hasnedl, Ron McKercher and Peter Mosbeck of the St. Hilaire Lions club; Jane Mackenroth, community education coordinator; and Ruth Wilkinson, member of the chemical awareness task force.

Soo Line Reports $2.6 Million Net Operating Loss

Soo Line corporation reported a net loss of $2.6 million or 27 cents per share in the first quarter of 1987, compared to the $2.1 million net loss in the prior year's first quarter.

Operating revenues for the quarter were $151 million compared to $161 million in the first quarter of 1986. Operating expenses were $146 million, down six per cent in this year's quarter over the prior year's quarter even with additional freight volume.

Total carloads and intermodal units handled were five per cent higher this year over the first quarter of 1986. There were volume gains in farm products, forest products, automotive and intermodal areas.

Soo chairman and chief executive officer Dennis M. Cavanaugh said continued pressure to discount rail freight rates and changes in freight mix were the principal reasons the corporation reported a loss during the quarter. While freight volume strengthened this year over the first quarter of 1986, average revenue per unit declined 10 per cent for the same period.

In view of the significant impact reduced rates are having on the company, Cavanaugh said Soo will continue to lower employment costs and make further operating changes. The company's current employment level is approximately 1,300 employees lower than the first quarter of 1986.

To The Editor:

I am taking the liberty to write for so often we hear complaining of unethical business practices. I would like to praise someone for work well done.

Recently I needed some work on my sewing machine. After calling everywhere, a dear friend told me about Annette's Fabrics. I don't know the person who does their service but I want to say "Thank You" for a wonderful job (perfect) and the charges were very fair.

Sincerely,

Farm Safety Is Pushed By Women Of Farm Bureau

Jean Fellows of Worthington, state chairman of the Farm Bureau Women's committee, said the group is urging farm families to use protective measures to minimize the dangers of farming.

"We want to emphasize caution and common sense," Fellows said. "We don't always know the long term effects of some of the materials we work with, so it is urgent that we take the necessary precautions."

With the increased use of farm chemicals, it is important that farmers become familiar with both the hazards and the protective measures that can be taken.

There are six major types of respiratory hazards often associated with farm operations and there are suggested methods to minimize the dangers of each of them. For example, there are three categories of dust — nuisance, lung-damaging and toxic — and there are appropriate masks and safety aids for dealing with them.

Dangerous mists and vapors may also be encountered in normal handling of some substances used on farms. Special respirator equipment is available and should be used by farm operators when using these substances.

Other safety measures include wearing protective clothing and boots when handling chemicals, keeping plenty of water on hand in case substances are spilled on the body, and always washing thoroughly after using the materials.

Noise-induced hearing loss is another potential hazard. Farm equipment with a high noise level has the potential to cause temporary and sometimes permanent hearing loss. Farmers can protect their hearing by wearing earplugs, Fellows said.

Farm families can find protective clothing and other safety aids at many local elevators and stores that handle farm equipment.

"Many times farmers don't want to bother with things like wearing masks or earplugs," Fellows mentioned, "but that temporary inconvenience is a small price to pay for protecting their health and safety."

State Bike Week Recalls Fatalities From Last Year

Minnesota Bike Week, May 3-9, will be highlighted on Saturday, May 9, by Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson's fourth annual bike ride. The event will include the grand reopeing of the newly blacktopped 13-mile Douglas state trail near Rochester.

Minnesota recorded 12 bike fatalities in 1986, two higher than in 1985 but three less than in 1984. There were 1,367 bike crashes and 1,309 injuries in 1986, both slightly lower figures than for 1985. The largest number of injuries, 279 or 21 per cent, involved the 10-14 age group.

"With biking's increasing popularity in the state, we remind motorists to be especially alert for bikers because they are less visible than other vehicles on the road," said public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Further tips on safety for bicyclists include obeying all the same traffic laws as other vehicles, driving defensively and making themselves as visible as possible. When riding at night, bicyclists are required to have a white front light visible from 500 feet away, red rear reflector and at least 20 square inches of reflective material on each side of the bike or rider.

Tschida said bikers should also be aware of the benefits of bike registration. Minnesota's Bicycle registration system allows registration with any motor vehicle deputy registrar or many bike shops. Benefits of registration include theft prevention, recovery and accident victim identification. "Registration can provide a means of identifying an injured bicyclist," Tschida said.

Charles Lindbergh's Flight To Paris Created Hero Status

by Rita Cipalla
Smithsonian News Service

An airplane cut from a single diamond. A set of fishing flies from Montana labeled "Flies for a Flyer." Two priceless 18th-century sterling silver globes. A 10-pound twist of special chewing tobacco. A watch fob of native California gold. Keys to the cities of London, Paris, Wichita and Buffalo. Medals, pillows, watches and trophies. Crucifixes, canes, boxing-gloves and tapestries. Hundreds of portraits, 158 books, five pairs of pajamas and a set of gold knickerbockers.

Thousands of gifts such as these from all over the world were sent during the spring and summer of 1927 to a good-looking, quiet, 25-year-old Minnesota farm boy named Charles Lindbergh.

Sixty years ago, on May 20, 1927, Lindbergh set off alone from Roosevelt Field, NY, in a plane he named "Spirit of St. Louis" after the city of his financial backers. He was out to win the $25,000 Orteig prize, offered in 1919 by a New York hotel owner to the first pilot, flying solo, who could successfully complete the 3,600-mile flight between New York and Paris.

Lindbergh's landing, some 33½ hours later at Le Bourget Field, was a demonstration of the coming of age of aeronautical technolocy. His craft, a small, single-engine monoplane, was constructed to his exact specifications in only 60 days by Ryan Airlines, a relatively unknown firm.

"The Spirit of St. Louis was one of the most advanced long-range aircraft of its time," explains Dominick Pisano, associate curator of aeronautics at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C. "Lindbergh had an active hand in designing it and it enabled him to fly non-stop across a hostile ocean."

But beyond the technological achievement of the flight itself, Lindbergh's journey across the Atlantic unleashed a wave of adulation and enthusiasm never known before — or since.

"Lindbergh thoroughly captured the imagination of the American people," Pisano says. "Americans, disillusioned by World War I and confused by rapidly changing manners, morals and beliefs, were looking for heroes. In an era noted for flappers, bathtub gin and the Teapot Dome scandal, Lindbergh seemed to personify all that was best in America. His acheivement reaffirmed the importance of traditional values — of independent achievement, courage, skill and self-sufficiency — in an increasingly complex and modern world. He combined the rugged individual of the past with technology that looked to the future."

Even by today's standards, the worldwide love affair that erupted following this first solo trans-Atlantic flight is astounding. Lindbergh himself was as surprised as anyone; in his naivete, he had carried letters of introduction with him across the ocean.

More than four million people lined the streets of New York for his ticker-tape parade. A reporter at the time wrote that the crowds were "dense, vociferous, eager, and — as Lindbergh comes — swept with an emotion tense and inflammable." He was honored in quick succession by the president of France, the king of England and the president of the United States, Calvin Coolidge.

After a goodwill tour through Latin America, Lindbergh returned to the United States to find 500,000 letters, 75,000 telegrams and two freight-car loads of press clippings awaiting him.

Lindbergh became an instant hero, feted by royalty, idolized by ordinary folk. Streets and babies were nammed for him; reporters and photographers followed him everywhere. A Pullman car was rechristened the Lindbergh, and diners at a Times Square restaurant could munch on a "Lindbergh sandwich."

Following his record-breaking flight, interest in commercial aviation — domestic and international — soared. "His flight made people around the world aware of the airplane," Pisano explains. "Before Lindbergh, aviation was a struggling industry. Flyers were seen as daredevils, risk-takers. Lindbergh proved that flight was the wave of the future; it could link continents and countries."

Foreign demand for American airplanes and parts increased. Businessmen, quick to perceive the magic of the Lindbergh name, ran full-page advetisements in national newspapers touting their aviation-related products. Thousands of young men besieged the industry for jobs as pilots, mechanics and engineers. Enrollment in flying schools went up.

"Lindbergh's flight did much to change aviation," Pisano says. "Confidence was spurred on Wall Street as investors put money into aviation stock. The bull market, along with regulatory legislation passed the previous year, made the industry viable."

Other businesses profited as well. Novelty manufacturers turned out Lindbergh flags and buttons by the millions. Up, too, went sales of Waterman fountain pens, after it was discovered that Lindbergh had carried one in his pocket during the flight. Bulova put "Lone Eagle" watches on sale as soon as the news that Lindbergh had landed in Paris was flashed around the world; the company sold 5,000 of them in three days, an industry record.

The thousands of decorations and trophies sent to Lindbergh from his admirers were placed on exhibit in June 1927 in St. Louis, MO, by the state's historical society. Although originally opposed to any public display, Lindbergh agreed to exhibit the items for 10 days. During that time, 80,000 people toured the exhibition hall. When told of the ever-increasing lines, Lindbergh reluctantly agreed to keep the items on display indefinitely. Nearly 1½ million people viewed the exhibition during the first year.

The variety of mementos sent to Lindbergh was staggering. Cities made presentations en masse: The citizens of Reading, PA, presented him with a huge silver cup; those of Seattle sent a gold ring set with an amethyst; the American residents of Mexico City gave him a silver platter, while Ft. Worth, TX, commissioned a large oil painting of his mother.

Individuals also sent their best. A coal miner's wife from West Virginia offered a hand-worked section of lace showing the image of the Spirit of St. Louis as its centerpiece. A 73-year-old woman from Oregon sent a tattered photo with the following note: "Having in my possession a picture of Wilbur Wright when two years old I am sending it to you; thought you might prize it more than I." Wrote a New York Herald Tribune Magazine writer, "It would seem that a number of people had singled out the most exquisite and rare thing they owned and had forwarded it to Lindbergh."

As the citizens of the world responded to Lindbergh's flight with items large and small, others waxes poetic. In fact, thousands of amateur — and some professional — poets used the occasion to pen more than 10,000 poems, comparing Lindberg to every god or hero of Western literature and mythology. More than 4,000 poems were entered in a national contest; the 100 best were published in a 1927 anthology, titled "The Spirit of St. Louis."

While poets were comparing Lindbergh to Apollo, Christopher Columbus and Marco Polo, song writers were busy as well. "Lucky Lindy," "Charlie Boy, We Love You" and "Plucky Lindy's Lucky Day" are just a few of the titles that went on sale.

Lindbergh's charmed life ended abruptly one stormy night in March 1932, when his infant son was kidnapped from his crib and later murdered. Partly because of Lindbergh's worldwide popularity, this became the most celebrated crime of the 1930s. Hounded by the press, the Lindberghs departed for England, but later returned to the United States. Lindbergh devoted the last part of his life working to preserve the delicate balance between nature and technology, work carried on today by the Lindbergh Foundation.

Lindbergh's daring journey stands as a victory of one man over nature, his own fears and the incredible odds against him. Today, millions of visitors to the Air and Space Museum see the Spirit of St. Louis suspended in a place of honor in the Milestones of Flight gallery. The silver-colored craft remains the single most popular artifact — more popular, in fact, than the Wright Flyer — in a museum devoted to heroic deeds and technological accomplishments.

Nearly 13 years after his death, "we get hundreds of inquiries a year about Lindbergh," Pisano says, "and his aircraft remains as popular as ever. He was young, handsome, mild-mannerd, soft-spoken. In short, he was the perfect American hero."

Dear Community and Area Residents,

The Thief River Falls Concert Association contracts for several concerts a year for the enjoyment of the community. This next season we have contracted with Allied Concert Association for four exciting attractions.

The Concert Association Board is trying to keep the costs of tickets to a minimum. One of the methods of keeping individual ticket costs down is by approaching groups and friends of the Association's for a donation or encouraging people to become a "patron". Each year we raise approximately 20% of our income through individual donations or from benevolent groups. This year we need to raise some additional money to insure the financial security of the series. Can you help?

Nowhere in the country are the arts self-supporting. The existence of arts programs are dependent upon gifts from people like you, the patrons, who sense the importance of the arts in the total development of a community. This support comes from donated money, time participation as a volunteer and makes Thief River Falls a little special.

You generosity in the past has kept the program going and we hope that you can send a generous gift. Many people who do not find the time to attend the Concert Associations programs but want to keep the interest in arts, may also send contributions.

Please send your donations to the Thief River Falls Concert Association, P.O. Box 514, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Most area residents will receive a letter of encouragement to become Patrons in the next few days. The Concert Association is thankful for donations received to date from the Hartz Foundation, The Eagles Aerie of TRF, and the Lion's Club of St. Hilaire. We are thankful for these gifts.

Sincerely,
Diane Freeman, Chairman

We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give.

Thank you

Seventh Inning Rally Produces 11-10 TRF Baseball Win

Six innings of winning baseball for underdog Marshall County Central-Middle River slipped away in the seventh Tuesday when host Thief River Falls overcame a 10-5 deficit with a six-run rally that gave the Prowlers an 11-10 three-hour marathon victory.

Chris Nelson's two-out, two-run single on a one-ball, two-strike count plated the tying and winning runs for the Prowlers, who climbed to 3-0 for the year. Marshall County Central-Middle River fell to 1-4.

It was both a win and a loss for coach Sam Gebhart of the Class A cooperative high school baseball program that operates out of Newfolden and Middle River. The visitors' upset bid was thwarted only by Gebhart's decision to save some of his better pitching for what he considered a more important Thursday night assignment against Region 8A rival Warroad.

Jon Kragness started on the mound for Marshall County Central-Middle River and left after three innings with a 6-3 lead. Casey Johnson then took the visitors through the fourth, fifth and sixth innings as their lead mounted to 10-5. Corey Olson ran into problems in the seventh, though retiring just one of the five batters he faced, forcing Gebhart to bring on Tom Blazek, one of his better "arms". But the momentum had already swung in favor of the Prowlers and Blazek was touched for two walks and two hits while retiring just one batter.

"Take that one inning away, and we out-played them," said Gebhart afterwards. "It was a depressing way to lose, but I thought we played well. I didn't want to have to use Blazek with Warroad coming up on Thursday, but I wanted to beat them. (Prowlers), too."

Thief River Falls; seventh inning comeback snapped the Prowlers out of six innings of less-than-inspiring play, something that has concerned first-year head coach Tracey Wensloff even in last week's one-sided season-opening wins over Ada 17-1 and Kennedy-Hallock 14-1.

"We've been so lethargic," said Wensloff. "We've been lethargic even in the games we won big. They're not thinking baseball right now. They're forcing a lot of things that should come natural to them. There's definitely some talent there, but they have to put it together."

Marshall County Central-Middle River started with a 3-0 first inning lead off Thief River Falls lefthander Jared Erickson, who gave up a lead-off single to Blazek, walked Darin Rokke and watched a Greg Graham fly ball sail over the head of right-fielder Jason Lane for a two-run double that wound up as a three-run play when a throwing error allowed Graham to score.

It became 4-0 in the second on singles by Kraig Melvie, Kragness and Darren Wagner.

Thief River Falls cut the deficit to 4-3 in the bottom of the inning when Scott Vedbraaten lined a two-run single off the glove of Blazek at shortstop, then later scored on a sacrifice fly by Lane.

Marshall County Central-Middle River kept scoring, though, getting two runs on a two-out looping single over second base by Kragness in the third, then adding four more runs in the fourth on three singles and a pair of walks. Graham had an RBI base hit and Johnson dropped a two-run single into left field as the game went to 9-3.

A lead-off single by Mike Bendickson and a two-out double by Lane made it 10-4 in the fourth and two walks, a fielder's choice, plus an error produced a 10-5 game in the fifth.

Marshall County Central appeared to put the final nail in the coffin in the top of the seventh when Kragness walked, moved up on a wild pitch and a fielder's choice, then scored when the Prowlers' poor execution of a run-down play produced an error and an 11-5 deficit.

But it all changed in the bottom of the seventh when Nelson led off with a walk, took two bases on walks and scored on a sacrifice fly by Rick Rosetta. Joel Swenson, Bendickson, Vedbraaten and Erickson all hit successive singles. Chris Bjorgaard and Kory Joppru then drew back-to-back two-out walks on 3-1 pitches, setting the stage for Nelson's heroics as he slapped the ball into right field to complete the comeback.

Marshall County Central-Middle River had a 10-9 base hit edge, with Kragness, Graham and Blazek all getting two hits. Bendickson was 3-for-4 for the Prowlers, and Vedbraaten was 2-for-3 with three RBI. The losers were charged with four of the game's six errors.

Blazek took the loss. Nelson came on in relief of Erickson in the third inning and became the winner.

DUST WAS KICKED up as Thief River Falls runner Jason Lane (12) tried to score from third base when the pitch got by Marshall County Central-Middle River catcher Randy Audette in the fourth inning of Tuesday's high school baseball game played at the fairgrounds diamond. Lane was called out on the play as Marshall County Central-Middle River pitcher Casey Johnson took the throw from Audette and covered the plate before Lane arrived. The Prowlers came up with a six-team seventh inning rally to win in come-from-behind fashion 11-10.

TRF Collects Points At Park Rapids Track Meet . . .

Prowlers Hit Season-High Total

Points have been hard to come by for the Thief River Falls boys during the 1987 high school track season, so a 66-point output at the Park Rapids Enterprise Invitational Tuesday was greatly appreciated by the Prowlers, and head coach Tim Olson.

A strong Park Rapids team won the event with 230.66 points, followed by Roseau with 80, Thief River Falls 66, Wadena 59, Mahnomen 43.33, Barnesville 39, and Northome 7.

"It was a good meet for us," reported Olson. "It was a fun meet. Our times were pretty respectable."

Absence of North Sub-Region 8AA powers like Moorhead and Bemidji produced the one-sided Park Rapids win, and helped boost the point totals on teams like Roseau and Thief River Falls, acknowledged Olson, who thought the Spuds and Lumberjacks were going to be on hand.

Thief River Falls' Paul Brandt was a double-event winner with an 11.77 in the 100 meters and a 23.6 in the 200 meters. The Prowlers received second place finishes from Rick Looker in the 200, Kyle Kisch in the 800 and Brian Stark in the 110 high hurdles.

The meet was run on Park Rapids' new $100,000 eight-lane artificial track surface, the envy of most northern Minnesota track coaches.

It was a close race in the girls' portion of the meet as Park Rapids edged Roseau 103-101 for first place, while Barnesville and Crookston shared third with 73 points, just a single point ahead of fourth place Wadena with 72, followed by Thief River Falls with 57 and Perham 13. Northome did not score.

Christy Puetz gave the Prowlers a win in the 400 meters with a 1:02.29 and Lynn Mueller won the 3200 meters in 12:30. Peggy Cruz, a member of the Prowlers' group of consistently-strong point scorers, missed the meet because of a choir commitment. With Cruz in the line-up, Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer figured the Prowlers would have been right with Barnesville, Crookston and Wadena in that tight race for third.

"I thought the girls ran very well," mentioned Schafer, who added special post-meet pat on the back for freshman Alice Dunning, a third place finisher in the discus and a fourth place finisher in the shot put. The Prowlers haven't featured many point-producers in those events in recent years. In fact, Dunning is the first Thief River Falls girl to hit the 30-foot mark in the shot put since 1982.

Continued improvement by Dunning, along with the addition of Val Noel, who has been sidelined by illness, could give the Prowlers a supply of shot put and discus points the rest of the way, said Schafer.

Thief River Falls boys and girls have a busy track schedule awaiting them. The girls will be at the Alexandria Invitational Friday. Both teams will be at the Crookston VFW Invitational Saturday, at the Grand Forks Gerrell's Invitational Monday and will host the 14th annual Thief River Falls Quentin Jones Invitational Tuesday beginning at 4 p.m.

Lincoln Weight Meet Scheduled May 11

Second annual Lincoln High School weight meet will be held Monday, May 11, beginning at 7 p.m. in the LHS gym.

Trophies will be awarded to each of the first place finishers in each eight class — lightweight, middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight. There will also be a single-weight class division for girls.

Spectators are welcome free of charge.

"We're trying to make this meet as big as possible for our athletes," explained Thief River Falls head football coach Jeff Mumm, supervisor of the Prowlers' weight room. "These kids have made unbelievable strength gains," he said. "Our (weight room) numbers are up 50 per cent from last year, so I really think our weight club has taken off."

Some 70 athletes are expected to compete in the weight meet, according to Mumm.

Sports Boosters Meet On Thursday

Guest speakers at Thursday's weekly 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting in the basement of the Rex Cafe will be Lincoln High School boys golf coach Dick Tyler and Lincoln baseball coach Tracey Wensloff.

Prowlers Take On Class AA Teams

Thief River Falls, after opening the 1987 high school baseball schedule with three wins over Class A competition, will face Class AA challenges Saturday when coach Tracey Wensloff's Prowlers participate in the annual four-team Moorhead Invitational.

The Prowlers and Spuds will be joined by Detroit Lakes and Minot, ND for the tournament, a fixture on the Thief River Falls schedule since 1980.

Detroit Lakes beat Minot 4-3 just last Saturday to give the Lakers' Bob Hooper his 200th baseball win at the school.

After the Moorhead event, Thief River Falls has a Monday North Sub-Region 8AA challenge at Bemidji, rated one of the state's top teams this spring.

Bemidji put its record at 5-0 Thursday with a 3-2 North Sub-Region 8AA win over Fergus Falls when Tom Knudson doubled off the right-corner field fence for the game-winning RBI in the bottom of the seventh inning. It was the first loss of the season after five wins for the Otters.

The Lumberjacks played without three starters, all suspended for a week for behavior unbecoming an athlete on the trip home from Park Rapids Tuesday. They were also to miss games this week against Crookston and Roseau.

UMC Has Summer Basketball League

Summer basketball league at the University of Minnesota-Crookston will be held for high school youth who will be sophomores, juniors, or seniors during the 1987-88 school year. Freshmen may also participate at the coach's request.

The league will run six consecutive weeks, June 7 to July 12, at the UMC Sports Complex. Divisions for girls and boys will be determined after registration forms are returned and teams can be determined, according to Gary Senske, head basketball coach at UMC and coordinator of the league. Teams will be made up of 8 to 10 players, and all games will be officiated by qualified individuals.

League standings will be kept and a

Pioneers Sweep Rival Trojans 16-4, 7-4 . . .

Grabanski Leads Northland

Grant Grabanski made sure an 11-game season-opening Northland Community College baseball losing streak didn't hit the dozen mark Monday. The freshman from Grand Forks' Central was 3-for-4, hit two home runs and drove in seven runs as the Pioneers routed rival University of Minnesota-Crookston 16-4 in the first game of a Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division doubleheader.

He also played a key role in Game 2, but this time on defense with a diving inning-ending bases-loaded sixth inning shoestring catch to preserve a 5-4 Northland lead that wound up as a doubleheader-sweeping 7-4 win.

"We still made some mistakes," acknowledged Northland coach Rick Nelson, "but we hit the ball fairly well, and scored some runs. It was fun."

Grabanski got things off on the right foot in Game 1 with two hits and five RBI in the first inning as Northland jumped out to a 9-0 headstart.

Losing pitcher Mike Peterson never retired a batter. He walked Dan Cwikla and Dean Brandon, then gave up a three-run home run to Grabanski. Relief pitcher Brian Johnson didn't fare much better, giving up a two-run double to Joe Blankenfeld and a two-run single to Grabanski.

Grabanski later hit a two-run home run as Northland built a 12-4 third inning lead and completed a 10-run rule decision with a four-run fourth.

Deon Schmidt was 3-for-3 for the winners, who out-hit UMC 12-4. The win went to Tim Borgen, who surrendered three first inning runs, but then shut down the Trojans the rest of the way.

Another good start in Game 2 — a 3-0 first inning lead — propelled the Pioneers to the sweep. Three walks preceded a two-run single by Tim Nyland that inning, with Nyland later scoring on a ground-out.

UMC went ahead 4-3 with a three-run third on home runs by Jeff Larson and Brian Johnson.

But Northland took a 5-4 lead in the sixth with a pair of walks and on a strong effort by Dan Cwikla who beat a relay to first base that would have been an inning-ending double play. Moments later Brandon connected on a two-run triple to right-center field.

UMC threatened in the bottom of the inning, but Grabanski, Northland's catcher in Game 1, came up with the defensive gem of the day with his bases-loaded two-out catch in left field.

Northland added a pair of seventh inning insurance runs on an RBI single by Lee Hamre and a successful double steal of home and second.

UMC out-hit Northland 10-1, but Kevin Nelson scattered the hits for the win on the mound. Sean Naas took the loss.

Cwikla, a freshman from Middle River, proved to be a near-perfect lead-off batter, pointed out Nelson, by walking five times and coming up with a sacrifice in eight at-bats.

Northland is scheduled to host the Bemidji State University junior varsity Thursday at 1:30 p.m. The Pioneers return to MCCC play Sunday with a 12-noon doubleheader at Itasca.

Boys Golf At Bagley-Fosston

Second outing of the 1987 season for coach Dick Tyler's Thief River Falls boys high school golf team produced a second middle-of-the-pack finish for the Prowlers Tuesday at the Bagley-Fosston Invitational.

Thief River Falls was ninth in an 18-team Fergus Falls Invitational last Friday to open the season, and Tuesday the Prowlers were tenth in a 20-team Bagley-Fosston field.

Fosston won it with a 319, followed by Bemidji at 322, East Grand Forks 330, Park Rapids 333, Moorhead 343, Warren 344, Crookston and Greenbush 345, Fosston junior varisty 347, Thief River Falls and Roseau 348, Mahnomen 350, Red Lake Falls 366, Hallock 367, Bagley 372, Detroit Lakes 378, Walker 380, Ada 385, Fertile-Beltrami 397, and Blackduck 412.

Medal honors went to Russ Simonsen of Bemidji with a 77. Fosston teammates Pat Greendahl and Tim Slough both turned in a 78.

For the Prowlers, Steve Jung carded an 86, Bob Geatz 87, Paul Borchert 87, Paul Antonenko 88, Jim Breiland 89, and Wade Jorde 98.

Thief River Falls will golf in the East Grand Forks Invitational Friday and the Crookston Invitational Saturday. Both meets start at 9:30 a.m.

TRF Girls Third At Invitationals . . .

Prowlers Improve Golf Game

Thief River Falls girls might have had a pair of identical third place back-to-back invitational high school golf tournament finishes Monday and Tuesday, but the Prowlers' play improved considerably from one day to the next, according to coach Al Buhl.

Monday it was the Thief River Falls Invitational, where a strong Roseau team was an easy winner with a 373 stroke total, followed by East Grand Forks at 432, Thief River Falls 437, Bagley 483, Fosston 504, Thief River Falls junior varisty 506, Crookston 511, and Warren-Alvarado 515.

Tuesday it was the Moorhead Invitational, and even though the Prowlers had another third place finish, they cut 30 strokes off their four-player total for a marked improvement. East Grand Forks was a surprising winner with a 401, followed by Moorhead at 406, Thief River Falls 407, Crookston 418, Park Rapids 423, Fosston 428, Frazee 440, Mahnomen-Waubun 443, Breckenridge 454, and Fergus Falls 490, with Detroit Lakes and Norman County West fielding incomplete teams.

"Today we played some excellent golf," said Buhl after the trip to Moorhead. "Yesterday I didn't think we played as well as we're capable of playing, but today we played really well. We'll take a third at Moorhead any day; it's normally a pretty strong field. It was fun."

Thief River Falls junior Kelly Cornell was meet medalist at Moorhead with an 88. She had an 89 Monday for runner-up honors in the Thief River Falls meet behind Roseau's Sara Huglen, who had an 82.

"You've got to be really pleased with back-to-back 89-88 from Kelly," mentioned Buhl. "She played really well."

Renae Halvorson of Roseau was the third place finisher in the Thief River Falls Invitational medal standings with a 95.

Rest of the Prowlers' scores that day included Nancy Jorde with a 109, Jill Olson 119, plus Karin Tyler and Stacey Cummings with 120's.

Heidi Tofte led the Thief River Falls junior varsity with a 119.

Deanna Chesley of Crookston was runner-up to Cornell in the Moorhead Invitational medal standings with a 92. Lisa Hanson of Fosston also had a 92, but had to settle for third after losing to Chesley in a playoff.

Buhl was also extremely happy with a 100 turned in by Olson, a junior who cut 19 strokes off her game from the day before. Cummings had a 109 and Jorde had a 110 to round out the Prowlers' four meet-counting scores.

Thief River Falls' busy schedule of invitational appearances will continue Thursday at Fosston, Friday at Fergus Falls and Monday at Roseau.

KELLY CORNELL, a Lincoln High School junior, used a little body English to coax her putt to drop into the cup on the No. 4 green during Monday's Thief River Falls Invitational girls golf tournament. Cornell led the Prowlers with an 89, but had to settle for tournament runner-up honors behind Roseau's Sara Huglen, who carded an 82 for the champion Rams.

---

CHRIS NELSON was greeted by coach Tracey Wensloff after hitting a game-winning two-out, two-run single to right field in the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday to cap a six-run Thief River Falls rally that allowed the Prowlers to overtake upset-minded Marshall County Central 11-10 in a high school baseball marathon played at the fairgrounds diamond here.

TRF Tennis Team Wins Second 6-1 Dual Match

Thief River Falls made it back-to-back 6-1 wins Monday with a high school tennis victory at Detroit Lakes. The Prowlers beat Mahnomen-Waubun by the same score last Thursday.

It was also the third straight win for the Prowlers, who won the East Grand Forks Invitational a week earlier.

East Grand Forks will be the site of the Prowlers' next outing, the annual Northwest Quadrangular Thursday starting at 12-noon. That will be the Prowlers' seventh straight road trip to start the 1987 season. They'll make their first home appearance Tuesday by hosting Bemidji in a 3:30 p.m. dual meet.

MCC-Middle River Drops Pair Of Games To Warroad, Roseau

First inning problems cost Marshall County Central-Middle River a pair of high school baseball decisions last week — a 7-2 Friday loss at Warroad and a 16-6 Saturday defeat at the hands of Roseau.

Four first inning Marshall County Central-Middle River errors gave Warroad a 3-0 headstart. The Warriors tacked on a second inning run, then scored three times in the fifth to wrap up the win.

Marshall County Central-Middle River out-hit Warroad 7-4, but also picked up six errors while Warroad played errorless ball. Darin Rokke was 3-for-4 for the visitors, who scored single runs in the third and seventh innings.

Jon Kragness was the losing pitcher Friday, lasting just one inning. Tom Blazek and Lee Pemberton pitched in relief. Tim Fast was the winning pitcher.

It was more of the same Saturday at Middle River when three first inning errors, two walks and a pair of hits gave Roseau a 4-0 start. The Rams went on to collect 13 hits in producing three-run frames in the second and third, a two-run fourth, a single run in the fifth, and finally three more in the sixth to finish a 10-run rule victory.

Casey Johnson was the starter and losing pitcher. Corey Olson and Tom Gullikson pitched in relief. Dean Halvorson picked up the win, with Kerry Taylor pitching in relief.

Blazek, Darren Wagner and Greg Graham had two hits apiece in the eight-hit Marshall County Central attack. Blazek doubled and tripled during a 2-for-3 afternoon. Wagner was 2-for-2 and Graham was 2-for-3 with a double. Taylor was 5-for-5 for the Rams with a double and a triple.

Five of the game's seven errors were charged to Marshall County Central-Middle River.

In junior varsity action, Marshall County Central-Middle River lost a high-scoring 28-15 game to Roseau Saturday, but swept a Monday doubleheader from Thompson, ND 26-1 and 8-5.

TRF Baseball JV Is Twinbill Winner

Thief River Falls collected 27 hits and scored 26 runs Tuesday in sweeping a junior varsity high school baseball doubleheader at Roseau 9-3 and 17-5.

Sean Myhrer was 3-for-3 and Hunter Boldt was 2-for-5 at the plate in the first game win. Dean DuChamp pitched the first five innings for the win; Jason Kempert handled the final two innings on the mound. Thief River Falls out-hit Roseau 9-7. Errors were even at two apiece.

Thief River Falls came up with an 18-hit assault in the four-inning nightcap as Boldt, DuChamp and John Azure were all 4-for-4 at the plate and Kempert was 2-for-3. Boldt was the winning pitcher with a three-hit mound stint. Roseau was charged with five of the game's six errors.

The sweep put Thief River Falls at 5-1 for the year. The Dan Willoughby-coached team will compete in the junior varsity portion of the Moorhead Invitational Saturday.

National Guard Moves Swans

Minnesota Air National Guard's Minneapolis-based 133rd Tactical Airlift Wing, used to carrying cargo of various types on its C-130 "Hercules" transport "birds," suddenly found that it had an unusual cargo of real birds to carry on Tuesday morning, April 21. Loaded aboard one of their C-130 this particular day, were 22 trumpeter swans, each in its own kennel, enroute to their new home in northern Minnesota.

Transfer of the swans, which are destined for the Tamarac National Wildlife Refuge near Detroit Lakes, is one step in the trumpeter swan restoration plan administered by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources nongame wildlife program. The restoration project is designed to restore the trumpeter swan as a free-flying migratory, breeding bird in western Minnesota.

Although a public service mission for the Minnesota Air National Guard, this flight was at the same time a routine training flight that helped the Guard air crew to fulfill its monthly flying hour requirements.

"We need these routine flights to keep our skills sharp," commented Lieutenant Colonel Gene Andreotti, Bloomington, the flight commander," but when we have the chance to transport such an unusual cargo as these beautiful birds, it makes the mission a little more interesting and fun!"

Minnesota Air National Guard transport unit, based at the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport, flys training missions around the world. Elements of the unit trained in the past two months in Korea, Germany and Norway. The Air Guard has traditionally flown many public service missions. Its most recent such mission involved the airlift of some 25 tons of civilian medical supplies to a medical mercy mission in northern Honduras.

Northland Golf Team Travels To Minneapolis Meet

Second outing of the 1987 season for the Northland Community College golf team was a Monday appearance at the Minneapolis Community College Invitational on the University of Minnesota golf course.

Austin won the nine-team event with a 315 four-man team score, followed by Rochester with a 332, Brainerd 350, Normandale and Minneapolis 352, Willmar 356, Northland 372, Vermilion 378, and Worthington 394.

Randy Lenoch of Austin was meet medalist with a 75 on rounds of 38-37. He was also the individual winner the previous Monday when Northland made its 1987 season debut at the Normandale Invitational.

Dave Onkka led Northland with an 87 on rounds of 42-45. Brad Lane turned in a 44-47, 91; Chad Swendseid 49-44, 93; Rich Bendickson 52-49, 101; and Darrin Abernathy 51-50, 101.

It was a windy day on a hilly course, pointed out Northland coach Deb Jacobson. The Pioneers are used to golfing in wind; but the hills were relatively new to them, she explained.

Northland Invitational, scheduled to be held Friday at the Thief River Country Club, has been canceled because of lack of entries. The Pioneers will be back on the road for a Monday Rochester Invitational beginning at 10 a.m.

A light snack: According to Ranger Rick magazine, female fireflies of the Photuris species can imitate the flashing signals of other kinds of female fireflies. When tricked males come to mate, Photuris females eat them.

A MESABI RUNNER approached the plate as Northland catcher Elaine Hanson awaited the throw during Saturday's Minnesota Community College Conference softball doubleheader in Thief River Falls. Mesabi won both games by 3-1 and 9-5 scores. The Pioneers will host their Northland Invitational Saturday beginning at 11 a.m. They also have a 3 p.m. doubleheader Friday here vs. Rainy River.

Pioneers Host Softball Tournament

Second annual Northland Community College Invitational women's slow pitch softball tournament will be played Saturday at the Thief River Falls softball complex located on Highway 1, east of the Area Vocational-Technical Institute.

It'll be a four-team, round-robin affair featuring Northland, University of Minnesota-Crookston, Rainy River, and Vermilion.

Three sets of doubleheaders includes games at 11 a.m. when Northland plays Rainy River on Field 1 and Vermilion meets UMC on Field 2; 1 p.m. when UMC tackles Rainy River on Field 1 and Northland goes against Vermilion on Field 2; and 3 p.m. when it'll be Northland vs. UMC on Field 1 and Vermilion vs. Rainy River on Field 2.

Northland is 7-5 for the year after a pair of weekend doubleheaders at home when coach Patty Chiodo's Pioneers swept Vermilion 8-5, 15-14, Friday, but lost twice to Mesabi 3-1 and 9-5 Saturday.

Janelle Lorsung's grand slam home run in the bottom of the seventh inning produced a dramatic come-from-behind victory in Game 2 against Vermilion. Cherie Deihl and Annette Kofstad both had two hits that game.

Most of the Pioneers' emotion was left in that seventh inning Friday rally, explained Chiodo, who said her team had a "flat" performance the next afternoon against Mesabi. Becky Knutson and Elaine Hanson (Game 1) and Shari Larson and Martha Torres (Game 2) were the only effective offensive threats that day, said Chiodo.

Northland has a 3 p.m. doubleheader Friday vs. Rainy River in Thief River Falls before hosting Saturday's tournament that will close out the Pioneers' 1987 home schedule. They'll close the year with a Wednesday, May 6, doubleheader at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, and an appearance at the Saturday, May 9, Rainy River Invitational.

— Outdoor News —

Seventy thousand acres of forest land, brushlands and wetlands will be benefited from the more than 45 projects that are planned for development under the RIM enhancement projects. Most project sites are situated in the northern forest and forest-grassland trasition areas to improve habitats for deer, moose, sharp-tailed grouse, waterfowl and other wildlife species.

These projects include the construction of access trails, forest openings, clearings and firebreaks for carrying out prescribed burns.

RIM funding will nearly double current forest management programs that are so important for setting the successional stage of maturing forest and increasing the diversity of forest species.

Forty fisheries projects at 37 separate locations are being initiated under RIM during 1987. The installation of nine fishing piers will provide increased fish opportunities, especially for youth, elderly, handicapped and low-income anglers.

Six aeration sites are designed to maintain permanent gamefish populations in lakes previously suffering winterkill.

Acquisition and habitat development on seven trout streams and one warm water stream system will provide for angler access and fish enhancement. Acquiring a site on the Mississippi River and will provide a new access and also protect fish spawning and nursery areas.

Five RIM projects involve development of fish propagation sites to bolster production of walleye and northern pike, and 11 sites have been selected for construction of rough fish traps or barriers for habitat protection and gamefish maintenance.

RIM funding includes $1 million over the next two years to clear state lands of 14,000 acres of old aspen which are unmarketable or present forest fire hazards. Removing them will regenerate healthy tree cover, encourage sound timber management and improve existing wildlife habitat.

The $16.2 million appropriated for RIM in 1986 represented a major first step toward replenishing Minnesota's fish and wildlife habitat. The major challenge in 1987 will be to provide adequate, long-term funding to ensure the continuing goals of RIM will be met.

Legislature is presently considering possible sources of permanent funding for RIM, and is expected to review the success of its projects in determining the nature and scope of this funding source.

One common assessment of the program across the state so far is that it has been a successful answer to a variety of resource problems. Governor Perpich has called for an allocation of $36 million for RIM programs over the next two yeras.

— News From Minnesota DNR —

Angler Attitude Survey

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Division of Fisheries officials announced they are in the process of selecting a private consultant to conduct a survey of anglers' attitudes regarding state regulations and fisheries management in the state.

"This is an important survey that should help gauge feelings of anglers with regard to fishing rules, laws and our management of these resources," said Fisheries Division Chief Richard Hassinger. "Future surveys we are planning will also address the economics of the fishing industry, a statewide creel census and a market segmentation of anglers."

A representative of the state's Tourism Office also announced that office's interest in working with DNR Fisheries on the survey. "We want to particularly find out what motivates people to take extended trips rather than day trips in Minnesota," said Tourism's Linda Limback.

Nongame Tax Donations Used

Officials of the DNR's Whitewater Wildlife Management Area (WMA) have announced they have received a $500 donation from nongame wildlife checkoff funding to help purchase a new slip-on pump and tank to use in prescribed burning operations.

"This equipment was purchased with nongame dollars and has already been used with controlled burns to improve native grasslands and goat prairies within the Whitewater WMA," said Whitewater Director Jon Cole.

"Prescribed burning is a very important part of our wildlife management activities in the state and, under controlled conditions, can improve the habitat for numerous species of wildlife by regenerating many species of trees and shrubs," Cole said.

He explained that the acquisition of the new equipment will allow the Whitewater WMA to improve the area's wildlife habitat, especially for nongame species such as the five-lined skink and ring-necked snake, among others.

Sign Forestry Agreement

"The forests of Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin are of tremendous importance to the regional economy," Governor Perpich stated after signing an agreement at the Upper Great Lakes Governors' Conference in Minneapolis April 10.

He went on to say that "our forests also provide abundant recreational opportunities and scenic beauty that help make this region the best place in the country to live in and do business."

Governor Tommy Thompson of Wisconsin and Dr. Gordon E. Guyer, representing Governor James Blanchard of Michigan, were also on hand to sign the agreement, proposing that the three lake states work cooperatively to promote the wise management and use of the region's forest lands.

The Lake States' Forests: A Resource Renaissance, the first multi-state conference ever held to deal with lake states forestry issues, was held at the Hyatt Regency in Minneapolis. The key objectives of the conference were to promote a better understanding of the region's forests and their potential for contributing to the regional economy; to develop a consensus on regional forest policies and programs; and to develop an action program for regional cooperation.

To the 250 forest landowners, representatives of forest industry, and conservationists from the United States and Canada who attended, Raymond B. Hitchhock, Assistant Commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, said "by working together, our three states can create a national image of the Great Lakes forests as the 'wood basket' of the upper midwest and as a unique recreational area." He also said, "the conference conveyed to the forestry community the idea that, with efficient management, timber production in the three Upper Great Lakes states can double, while the quality and economic value of the timber grown increases. At the same time, recreational resources of the three states will be protected and actually enhanced."

The conference was part of the Lake States Forestry Initiative, an effort aimed at improving and diversifying the region's economy through the use of its timber resources and by improving the scenic, recreational, and environmental values of the forests. More than 80 national and regional organizations sponsored the event.

Douglas Trail Reopening

Pau T. Swenson, director of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Trails and Waterways Unit, announced plans to celebrate the reopening of the Douglas State Trail near Rochester.

Developed on 12 miles of abandoned, 1880s-vintage Chicago and Great Western Railway grade, this bicycle and snowmobile trail was authorized in 1971 and later surfaced with limestone in 1974. "Over the years the surface steadily deteriorated," Swenson said. "It got so bad we were forced to choose between either closing the trail to bikes or completely redeveloping it."

In 1986, the grade was lengthened about one mile into Rochester's city limits, and the surface was partially regraded. Drainage along the trail was improved and bridges were redecked. The finishing touch was a fresh coat of blacktop over the trail's entire length. "Now the Douglas State Trail is one of the best ways for bicyclists to enjoy the fields and hardwood forests near Rochester," Swenson said.

A reopening ceremony and ribbon-cutting is planned in the town of Douglas at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 9. Festivities are also planned later that morning for bicyclists, compliments of Pine Island.

The reopening and eight-mile trail ride into Pine Island is the first leg of the longer, 36-mile, fourth annual Lieutenant Governor's bike ride with Marlene Johnson. Those looking for a longer ride will leave the Douglas State Trail at Pine Island and use low-use, country roads to complete a 36-mile loop. It includes a festive stop in the historic town of Mantorville, or cyclists can return to Douglas via the trail. There is no charge for the ride.

For those going the longer distance, there's an opportunity to camp overnight for $6 at Olmsted County's Ox Bow Park and country zoo. The Douglas Trail Center, Inc. will transport camping gear to the park. However, reservations with the DNR are highly recommended by calling (1-800) 652-9747 outstate or (612) 296-6048 Metro.

"This promises to be a lot of fun," Swenson said. "The local towns and bicycle clubs, like the Minnesota Coalition of Bicyclists and American Youth Hostels, have really gotten involved."

Groups Donate Items

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Regional Fisheries Office in New Ulm recently announced the donation of two gifts from separate sportsmen's groups in the region.

Huon Newberg, Region IV Fisheries supervisor, said that the regional fisheries office has received ten plastic hatching jars valued at over $350 from the Rice County Sportfishing Association, which is their second contribution of hatching jars, and one 12-foot aluminum jon boat valued at $340, to use on the hatchery ponds, from the Waterville Sportsmen's Club.

"The contributions, and the continuing efforts of our local sportsmen's groups to assist us in our work is greatly appreciated," Newburg said.

It may never rain cats and dogs, but it did rain fish in England in 1859. According to Ranger Rick magazine, strong winds of a storm can sometimes suck up all sorts of small things from the ground or even the water. Then miles away, these things fall from the sky. In 1922, spiders rained on Hungary, and in 1982, two frogs dropped out of the sky in Dubuque, Iowa.

And we know it still
Our love endures and always will.

Public Notices

April 15, 22, and 29, 1987

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle River-Snake River Watershed District 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota until 4:00 o'clock PM on May 7, 1987 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers, scrapers, graders, and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a servis recorder.

The works to be done consists of; but is not limited to, the clearing and disposal of trees and brush, the disposal of rocks, the construction of dikes, the grading of road-ways, the leveling of spoilbanks, the installation of culverts, and the removal of sediment from drainage channels. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer for the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payments will be made on a monthly basis. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal, promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has Workmans Compensation Insurance and Liability Insurance.

The Middle River Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Dated at Warren, Minnesota this 6th day of April, 1987.

NCC Enrollment Gains Along With Others In State

Minnesota's 18 community colleges have achieved a record enrollment for spring quarter. Spring quarter enrollment figures are up 5.5 per cent over spring quarter 1986, according to figures released by chancellor Gerald W. Christenson.

"Spring quarter enrollment gains follow record-level enrollments in fall and winter quarters," Christenson said. "Community colleges continue to serve increasing numbers of Minnesotans in all areas of the state."

He said 37,910 students are enrolled in Minnesota's 18 community colleges this spring, an increase of 1,979 over spring quarter 1986.

Individual community colleges again report significant enrollment gains. At Willmar and Brainerd community colleges, headcount enrollment is up 25.3 per cent and 21 per cent, respectively, over spring quarter 1986. This follows a winter quarter headcount gain of 10.3 per cent at Willmar and 31.4 per cent at Brainerd.

For the Clearwater community college region, spring enrollment is up 14.4 per cent from 2,512 in 1986 to 2,874 in 1987. In addition to the Brainerd increase, Northland increased 4.1 per cent from 859 to 892 and Fergus Falls from 779 to 922 (18.4 per cent).

In the metropolitan area, Inver Hills and Normandale community colleges recorded double-digit enrollment gains for spring quarter. Headcount enrollment is up 11.3 per cent at Normandale in Bloomington and 11 per cent at Inver Hills in Inver Grove Heights.

Christenson released the following table comparing enrollment figures for spring, 1986 with spring, 1987.

WMB Gives Grant To Beltrami Co. To Transfer Waste

Minnesota Waste Management board (WMB) has awarded Beltrami county a grant of $46,000 to help fund a $186,000 solid waste transfer station near Bemidji. The WMB approved the grant request Thursday during a board meeting in Brooklyn Center.

Beltrami county's new plan calls for a fenced area where packer trucks dump waste into canisters which are hydraulically lifted onto a special truck and trailer for hauling. The waste will eventually be transported to the Fosston incinerator. Each canister can hold up to 17 tons and the truck with a piggyback trailer can haul two canisters at a time. The county intends to contract for the hauling services.

The $46,000 grant from the WMB is funded through the WMB's capital assistance program (CAP) which is designed to encourage the development of projects that provide alternatives to landfills. More than $8 million remains in the CAP fund for distribution to eligible county and city governments.

Postmaster Warns Pet Owners Of Dangers From Bites

Spring is in the air and, unfortunately, that usually heralds an increase in dog bites. As the weather turns warmer, more pet owners allow their dogs outside the house and the larger population of dogs roaming free results in more dog bites, according to Thief River Falls postmaster Richard McCloskey.

"We are asking our neighbors to help protect letter carriers, utility workers and other citizens from the dangers of dog bites," said McCloskey. "Nationally, more than 4,000 letter carriers were bitten by dogs last year.

Thief River Falls has received excellent cooperation from customers in the past, but there are still too many dog bites."

"Our customers have responded very positively to our plea to keep their pets restrained in the past few years," McCloskey said. "And we have seen a decline in bites nationally."

Nevertheless, virtually all dog bites are unnecessary and we are determined to eliminate this hazard to our employees and other citizens who might be bitten."

McCloskey said that all dogs are territorial by nature, and even the most gentle pet will bite if it feels its domain is threatened by the presence of a carrier or other person.

"With a little care, a pet owner can not only protect our carriers, but his or he pet and pocketbook, too.

McCloskey stressed the postal service is very serious about protecting its employees from dog bite hazards. When a pet owner fails to restrain a dog that threatens a carrier, we will stop home delivery to the residence or, in some cases, to the entire neighborhood. The postal service also will seek to recover worker's compensation damages and provide counseling to carriers who have been bitten and who wish to seek private legal action against the dog owners.

"We suggest that pets be kept away from the mailbox and areas the letter carriers use for access to the property," McCloskey said. "If the pet cannot be kept behind a secure fence, the owner should restrain it with a secure leash or tether or at least keep the pet inside the house during the usual hours carriers are making their rounds.

"We try to do our part by stressing awareness of dog bite dangers to our carriers," said McCloskey, "but dog bites are everyone's problem and, we rely heavily on the support and cooperation of the community to help us prevent painful and costly injuries.

JUNIOR VOLUNTEERS The hospital auxiliary is not alone in its efforts at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. An average of 33 junior volunteers assist in the operation of the hospital also. The junior volunteer program is open to ages 14 to 18, male or female. They work at least one night per week for two hours. They perform a large number of jobs and provide an invaluable service to the hospital.

National Volunteer Recognition Week Is April 26 To May 2

Role Of Hospital Volunteers Is Changing

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Volunteer recognition week is April 26 through May 2. This week provides an opportunity to reflect on the contributions of the many volunteers who help the community grow.

Northwest Medical center probably uses more volunteers on a regular basis than any other organization in Thief River Falls. Most would agree these volunteers provide an invaluable service.

"The volunteers at the medical center function as a public relations group by linking the community to the facility. I think we all appreciate what they do in linking the community to the facility" said Dick Sphyalski, chief executive officer at Northwest Medical center.

Carol Novak, volunteer services coordinator at the medical center said volunteers perform a variety of functions at the facility, but the traditional role of working closely with patients has begun to change.

Novak said work performed by volunteers has become more service related and public relations oriented. That's not to say they have become less valuable, Novak said. Volunteer assistance is just going through a different phase — a new marketing phase, she said.

A large portion of the work done at the medical center by volunteers happens in the gift shop, coffee shop, and other areas where volunteers see visiting public on a regular basis. In all, Novak said, about 125 hours a week are accumulated by volunteers mostly in the gift shop and coffee shop.

Mary Lou Berry probably accumulates more hours per week than any other volunteer at the medical center. On average, she spends three days a week as a volunteer at the facility. She has been doing this for four years now.

Mary Lou said when her husband passed away she discovered she had very little to do so she got involved. And, she said, she has found it rewarding to put a smile on a patient's face.

Dick Spyhalski said volunteers help patients recognize change in the medical center. The new faces and smiles help, he said.

Volunteers now provide a larger variety of services. Those services include operating the recently expanded gift shop. Mary Lou spends much of her time in occupational therapy because that's where she feels she can do the most good with her talents. Volunteers can often chose where they would like to work.

The gift shop is important because it supports many of the other activities which the hospital auxiliary and junior volunteers perform.

Money from sales at the gift shop, coffee shop, flowers, pop sales and assistance from other organizations helped get such programs as television rentals and car seat rentals, and the life alert program off the ground. Now those operations have become self-sufficient and provide additional funds.

The car seat program is one of the more recent programs. The auxiliary rents car seats to new parents for $18 for nine months or $1 per month once the deposit is returned. The auxiliary thought this would be a good program because the law requires children to be in these special seats when in the car until the age of 4. Another obvious advantage to the program is that it promotes safety.

The Life Alert program is another current project. Life alert is an emergency response system designed to provide a 24 hour access to emergency help by merely pushing a button.

MARY LOU BERRY visited with Virgil Nelson of Oklee when he was visiting occupational therapy at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls recently. Berry has probably accumulated the most volunteer hours at the medical center. Berry works an average of three days a week. She spends much of her time working in occupational therapy.

Kite Flying Can Be Fun If Safety Rules Observed

Each Spring young and old take to open fields to enjoy the ancient sport of kite flying. The Chinese were first to fly kites some 1,500 years ago.

Kites become more sophisticated and more complex every year, but there are critical safety rules for kite flying that apply all the time.

- Fly kits in an open field, away from electric power lines and transmission wires.
- For building and flying kites, use only dry kite string, never wire.
- If a kite catches on a power line or utility pole, leave it there.
- Never fly a kite in wet or stormy weather.

Parents are advised to accompany their children on kite flying expeditions.

Growing Shade Trees And Shrubs To Be Discussed

Don L. Peterson of St. Paul will present programs entitled "Propagate and Grow Shade Trees and Shrubs" Friday, May 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Roseau library assembly room and Saturday, May 9, at 3 p.m. at the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary near Warren.

He will explain ways to propagate shrubs, shade trees and ornamentals. Participants will learn about grafting, budding, cuttings and the use of seedlings. Admission is free. Refreshments will be available.

This program is sponsored by the Agassiz Environmental Education council and the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary. For more information call Betty Johnson of Roseau at 463-2181 for or Jay Newell of Warren at 745-5663.

Spring Digging Can Cause Damage To Utility Lines

Spring is the time many householders dig in their yards while landscaping, locating wells or remodeling. However, when they dig, they may unearth more than rocks and dirt.

Utility customers are asked to call at least two days before planning to dig, to ensure that digging equipment doesn't strike and possibly damage buried lines.

Underground lines help utilities provide more reliable service, because they aren't exposed to weather that might cause an outage. But serious damage can result and disrupt service if the lines are hit while digging.

Avoiding underground lines is simple. Just call the utility ahead of time to have personnel check the area.

MN Crime Rate Rises Six Per Cent For Year Of '86

Crime in Minnesota increased six per cent in 1986. Officials say this follows a national pattern that is attributable to many factors, such as an easier reporting system (911) and changing social awareness and reporting of sex crimes.

Robbery leads all crime in Minnesota in 1986, up 19.4 per cent with murder close behind with an increase of 17.6 per cent. Arson was up 15 per cent, vehicle theft showed a 10.5 per cent increase and reported rape advanced 8.4 per cent in 1986 over 1985. Aggravated assault rose 7.5 per cent, while larceny increased eight per cent.

Burglary was the one bright spot in the state crime picture showing a drop of one per cent from 1985. Violent crime increased 12 per cent while non-violetn crime increased 5.8 per cent.

Department of public safety commissioner Paul Tschida, on releasing the 1986 state crime figures, listed some general conclusions regarding the report:

(1) Burglaries generally have gone down and have stayed down in spite of increases in other areas.

(2) Rural crime is down in spite of the farm crisis.

PROJECT TEDDY BEAR. Maxine McEwen (right) and Carol Novak (left) look at the patterns and a completed teddy bear. Soon all pediatric patients will receive teddy bears made by the hospital auxiliary at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. The bears are child safe — no buttons for eyes or nose which could be swallowed — and come in different colors.

SCS Distributes Booklets About Tree Planting

The soil conservation service in Minnesota, in cooperation with local soil and water conservtaion districts, is distributing 7,500 copies of "Conservation Trees", a color brochure prepared by the National Arbor Day foundation.

The brochure explains how to save topsoil and help farm profits with shelterbelts, how to manage a woodlot or tree plantation, how to save trees during construction, how to attract songbirds and wildlife to your backyard, how to use shade trees and windbreaks to save energy, the right way to plant trees and the right way to prune trees.

National Arbor Day foundation's conservation trees program encourages Americans to plant, manage and preserve trees to conserve soil, energy, water and wildlife.

For a free copy of the brochure and information about Arbor day activities, contact your local soil conservation service or soil and water conservation district office.

Local Airport Is Among 65 Rated At 100 Per Cent

A night inspection of airport lighting at 123 of the state's municipality-owned airports was recently completed by the Minnesota Department of Transportation (MnDOT) Aeronautics Division. Thief River Falls airport rated 100 per cent, one of 65 airports to earn that rating.

After a 99 rating in 1985, Thief River Falls has had a 100 per cent rating the past two years to average 99.7 over the past three years. That rating places Thief River Falls in a tie for second highest rating in the state with seven other airports. Twelve airports have achieved 100 per cent averages.

The inspections are done annually to determine the operational status of the various lighting systems and to improve safety of air travel. The inspections have been effective in achieving an increase in safety by having more of the visual navigation equipment available to the pilot.

A point system is used to rate the airports. With a starting score of 100, points are deducted for each piece of lighting equipment not working.

TONI DAHLEN and Cheryl Erickson, two of the many junior volunteers, perform a number of jobs at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. They are part of a large group of volunteers at the hospital that perform an invaluable service. April 26 through May 2 is national volunteer week. Volunteer recognition week provides an excellent opportunity to show appreciation for the importance of volunteers in the community.

NEWFOLDEN . . .

Tuesday, Lloyd and Clara Hanson and Pearl Boe were dinner guests of Emil and Lyla Vacura at Thief River Falls.

Della Elseth had birthday cake and lunch with Kevin Roppe on Sunday, April 5.

Nellie Skadsem was a dinner and supper guest at Kevin Maurstad home on Tuesday.

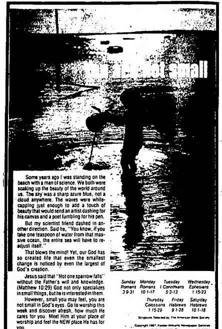
Verna Myhrer and Della Elseth had coffee with Lester and Senora Elseth on Saturday.

Anita Skadsem walked over to Elaine Thompson on Wednesday afternoon and enjoyed coffee, layer cake and ice cream with her.

Tuesday evening visitors at the Jens Bach home were Nellie Skadsem, LuJean Maurstad, Nick and Jay.

Thursday, Lynette Swaser enjoyed a visit and coffee with Clara Hanson.



Some years ago I was standing on the beach with a man of science. We both were soaking up the beauty of the world around us. The sky was a sharp azure blue, not a cloud anywhere. The waves were white-capping just enough to add a touch of beauty that would send an artist dashing for his canvas and a poet fumbling for his pen.

But my scientist friend dashed in another direction. Said he, "You know, if you take one teaspoon of water from that massive ocean, the entire sea will have to re-adjust itself."

That blows the mind! Yet, our God has so created life that even the smallest change is noticed by even the largest of God's creation.

Jesus said that "Not one sparrow falls" without the Father's will and knowledge. (Matthew 10:29) God not only specializes in small things, but he is interested in them.

However, small you may feel, you are not small in God's eyes. Go to worship this week and discover afresh, how much He cares for you. Meet Him at your place of worship and feel the NEW place He has for you.

MN Crime Rate Rises Six Per Cent For Year Of '86

(3) Arrest rates (police activity) are up, exceeding the increase in the reported crime.

(4) Rape increases may be due to reported intrafamilial sexual abuse. Increases also may be due to better enforcement, better reporting, as well as a possible increase in the crime itself.

(5) Increased police activity may be due to community involvement in reporting 911 calls and more resources available.

(6) Violent crime is a big concern, especially murder, rape and aggravated assault. Robbery went up substantially the past several years but is still at a 1982 level. Escalation in violent crime may be somewhat drug related.

(7) The current crime trends will probably continue to rise, especially burglary, robbery, car theft and forgery. These four crimes account for the highest recidivism rate. The "at risk" population group, ages 18 through 25, is steadily increasing, which may mean a continued increase in those crimes.

Urban crime overall was up seven per cent, including crime statistics from all urban areas. St. Paul showed crime up 2.6 per cent, Minneapolis increased 10 per cent in 1986 and Duluth's reported crime rose 9.8 per cent. Rural crime in the state was off one per cent from the previous year.

Commissioner Tschida points to a five-year analysis of crime in Minnesota showing that violent crime increased 32.6 per cent, while nonviolent crime dipped slightly by 1.4 per cent. In a rural-urban comparison, violent crime was up 27.5 per cent in the urban areas but was exceeded by a 33.1 per cent rural increase.

Specifically, says Tschida, crimes showing the greatest increases in Minnesota over a five-year period were rape which is up 43.7 per cent (rural 96.4 per cent vs. urban 36.7 per cent); and aggravated assault which is up 63.1 per cent (here, urban led with 68.7 per cent to a rural increase of 27.3 per cent).

People are not escaping arrest for crimes committed, the commissioner emphasized, as there is an 11 per cent increase in the numbr of arrests in 1986 over 1985.

Role Of Hospital Volunteers Is Changing In TRF

pendant which when pressed activates the phone system to call the medical center. It allows the wearer to call the medical center for help without dialing the phone, speaking into the phone, and from as far away from the phone as 300 feet.

Subscribers have used life alert in cases of heart attack, falls, strokes, emotional stress, robbery and assault. For this service, subscribers pay a monthly fee of $13.75.

Volunteers provide life saving services through these projects, but they also provide smiles. Soon a new project, called project teddy bear, will bring small smiles to pediatric patients.

Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at the facility, said starting in May volunteers will be organized to sew and stuff teddy bears. The child proof teddy bears are made of a simple calico material of many colors. They don't have any eyes or buttons which could be bitten off and swallowed.

The teddy bears come with a white belly for Doctors and nurses to autograph if the patient likes and will hopefully leave the children with a good feeling, said Holland.

Holland said volunteers are very important to her. Without them, she said, the "Medical Update", a newsletter, would not get out to the public. Volunteers label about 7,000 newsletters and count and bundle the rest which add up to about 25,000 newsletters.

Adults are not the only volunteers at the hospital. In fact while junior volunteers perform many functions the medical center would like to encourage more participants so that they have volunteers of all ages.

Deloris Larson coordinates the junior volunteer program at the hospital. She usually has a volunteer work force of about 33. These students, ages 14 to 18, spend one night a week for two hours at the hospital doing a large variety of volunteer services. These students are not just girls but boys also.

Junior volunteers work in the gift shop, coffee shop, answer patient signal lights, distribute mail, newspapers and flowers, escort ambulatory people through the building, file x-rays, pass fresh drinking water and linens to patients, hand out laundered clothing to CNC patients, serve meal trays and run various errands.

Those junior volunteers showing promise and a desire to further their education in the field of medicine are often recipients of hospital auxiliary scholarships.

But for most their awards, like those of the hospital auxiliary volunteers, are often simple smiles, an occasional free meal, and a new experience. There will be an appreciation tea party for volunteers in the cafeteria of the hospital this week and an annual hospital auxiliary membership luncheon will be held May 16. The membership luncheon is open to the public.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Your Own 4.5 Acres

There is an average of 4.5 acres of land farmed for every man, woman and child in America. Those 4.5 acres produce the food and clothing needs of everyone plus produce left over for export. Here's a sample of what each person uses or eats every year:

616 pounds of paper, 304 pounds of dairy products, 240.3 pounds of vegetables, 156.6 pounds of red meat, 142.3 pounds of fruit and juice, 79.4 pounds of potatoes, 63 pounds of turkey and chicken, 23 pounds of melons, 14.2 pounds of cotton and eight ounces of wool.

Total use is 1,639.3 pounds of materials, according to the report, and it doesn't include grain and cereal products which farming in this area provides in abundance.

Environmental Concerns

Mary C. Turck of the Land Stewardship Project points out the following environmental concerns which she feels will be issues to watch during 1987:

- Acid rain — Canada is already protesting the Reagan budget's omission of promised funds to study acid rain. Congress, however, is more environmentally minded and may skip further study and act now to clean up the air.
- Clean Water — Despite a pocket veto by the President last year, the Clean Water Act is likely to be passed with a majority large enough to ensure a veto override.
- Insurance Company Land Holdings — As some of the largest holders of foreclosed farmland, insurance companies have been under pressure to clean up their acts and demonstrate concern for the land they hold. The Land Stewardship Project was instrumental in bringing national attention to bear on the degradation and erosion of farmland owned by the Hancock Company during 1985-86. LSP is planning further research and a national conference in 1987.
- Pesticide poisoning — of farmers, food, land and ground water is likely to be in the news. The California Department of Agriculture has documented some of the carryover effects of legal and illegal pesticides used there. While California's Agriculture Department is not anxious to publicize results, Cesar Chavez is spreading the word nationally. Farmers and farm workers are high risk groups for poisoning by various agricultural chemicals.
- Ground water pollution is under intensive study in Minnesota. Industrial agriculture practices such as intensive use of fertilizers and heavy cultivation of row crops on both fertile and marginal land are likely to be identified as culprits which encourage both fertilizer runoff and soil erosion.

"Farmers are the natural friends of soil, air and water. Soil and water issues are issues about the flesh and blood of farms. What erodes the soil, pollutes the water or contaminates the produce of the land is of vital concern to farms. Look for increasing connections between farm, food and environmental issues in the year ahead.

Losing Freedoms To Crime

Judge Peter T. Fay of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Miami, FL, told the 146th graduating class of the FBI national academy at Quantico, VA, about the increase of crime in the nation and how it affects personal freedoms. He praised law enforcement officers for their efforts to combat crime and thanked them for their service. Excerpts from his talk follow:

"Our home is in South Dade between Homestead and Miami," he said. "We have become an international city; a bilingual metropolitan area with a genuine mixing of many races and many cultures. We boast the busiest passenger port in the world. We have a Disney-like metro rail system with an exciting people mover that circles the downtown area. And, modestly, I can tell you I think we have the most exciting city in the world. We have 150 international banks, the fastest growing free trade zone in the world, miles of public beaches, incredible weather, and crime—lots of crime."

"More and more in our neighborhoods and around our city, you see bars going up on windows, bars going up on doorways....Our streets downtown are almost deserted after dark. Neighborhoods lock themselves up at night."

"When I was growing up in Ft. Lauderdale, my parents used to love to take a stroll in the evenings, as did many folks. You don't see that any more. Nobody just goes out and strolls around the streets in the neighborhood. The kids don't play stickball or capture the flag or play in the side yards. They go to supervised playgrounds or they play in groups where parents are there or teachers or chaperones."

"We have surrendered much of our world to the criminals. And more and more communities are suffering exactly the way we are suffering...We are all aware of what's happening, but we sort of take it for granted. In airports it's become routine now and we just accept the fact that we are searched. Our freedoms are being compromised every day—a little bit more every day."

"When you board a boat, and that vessel is on navigatable waters, you have no fourth amendment rights. We have abolished the fourth amendment on sea-going vessels on navigable waters as a direct result of the drug war."

"As our numbers increase and we concentrate more and more people in large cities, we arm ourselves with weapons. You can read almost any survey you want in our area. I have read them reporting as high as 70 per cent of all adults in South Florida are armed. As we become the drug capital, the drug country of the world, we breed more and more crime. And, it is this war on crime that inevitably leads to a loss of constitutional freedoms, to a change in our way of life."

"The bums of the world, the punks of the world, are destroying our freedoms. The drug kings are the ones who have caused us to do away with the fourth amendment on the high seas. Hijackers have forced our present airport security. Street criminals have literally run us off the public streets, out of public places and into our homes. More and more of those in our communities have become armed and are living in fear."

"Judge Fay praised law enforcement people for their effort to combat crime and emphasized that "our way of life is dependent upon you. Our children will have no more rights than you can preserve."

"Will we see the day when all of us walking down a street will have to carry an identification and explain our presence?" he asked. "We do it now when we walk into a government building or a federal courthouse. How far are we from having to do it on the streets?"

"The question is a sobering one indeed. There are no easy answers. Government at all levels from city halls to the halls of Congress reacts to situations and imposes laws intended to help the public. Usually those laws provide increased restrictions, losses of freedoms, little by little. The law-abiding accept the laws and the criminals continue to use, abuse or ignore them as meets their own particular circumstance."

"It behooves all of us to support law enforcement to the greatest extent possible—it is our line of protection against the criminals that would make us prisoners in our own homes.

A Little Later, Son

No author is listed for the following poem which appeared recently in the Land O' Lakes Mirror:

My hands were busy through the day, I didn't have much time to play the little games you asked me to; I didn't have much time for you.

I'd wash your clothes, I'd sew and cook but when you'd bring your picture book and ask me please to share your fun I'd say: "A little later, son."

I'd tuck you in all safe at night, hear your prayers, turn out the light then tiptoe softly to the door...I wish I'd stayed a minute more.

For life is short, the years rush past, A little boy grows up so fast. No longer is he at your side, his precious secrets to confide.

The picture books are put away, there are no longer games to play, no good-night kiss, no prayers to hear; that all belongs to yesteryear.

My hands, once busy, now are still. The days are long and hard to fill. I wish I could go back and do the little things you asked me to.

Borrowed Nonsense

New Husband, going through the month's bills: "You know that saying about two people being able to live as cheaply as one?

Wife: "Yes."

Husband: "Then you must be the one."

Politician: "Did you hear my last speech?"

Voter: "I should certainly hope so."

Modern Father: "Things were a lot different when I was a kid. My son has a color television set, a video recorder, a radio, a stereo and his own phone in his room. When I want to punish him, I have to send him to my room!"

Son: "Daddy, were you ever in the army?"

Father: "Yes, son, I was one of the nation's most persistent fighting men, but they made me go anyway."

Points to Ponder: Nostalgia isn't what it used to be; forecasting is very difficult, especially if it's about the future; living is terribly time-consuming.

— The Aragon Ballroom in Plummer announced the first in a series of dances to outstanding bands with a Saturday dance featuring Jack Russell and his 12-piece radio band. Other orchestras engaged for the coming season included Nick St. Marie and his 11 Filipino artists, Tommy Douglas and his 12-piece band from Harlem, Red Perkins and his 14 Dixie Ramblers, and Chan Chandler and his 12-piece orchestra.

— The Pennington county sportsmen's club announced that plans for the inter-city crow hunt were completed with Thief River Falls and Grygla hunters competing against a group from Warren and East Grand Forks. Five points would be allowed for each crow and crow egg and three for each gopher, legs of crows and tails of gophers. The losing side would host a dinner or picnic for all the hunters.

— Abe Kashey, colorful Twin Cities wrestler, will be featured at a wrestling program at the city arena May 20.

— The routine of the Civic and Commerce association meeting was interrupted last week when the Fargo Sound Film company took motion pictures of the group. The film would be shown at the Avalon Theatre in May in connection with pictures of other local groups and business places. At the meeting the council dealt with the impending invasion of tree worms and appointed a committee to "deal with the matter."

— Another entry in the Times' "Can You Beat It" department was a 50-pound turtle found in the Red Lake river near the home of Dr. Edward Bratrud by Ames Lindquist and Kenneth Olson. The Times regretfully declined the offer of being allowed to display the two and one-half foot long turtle, stating that proper facilities for its care were lacking at the office. The Times was, however, displaying in its windows a green duck egg layed by a grey duck. Mrs. Ed Timm brought that one in.

Local CPA Firm Becomes Branch Of Brady, Martz

Effective May 2, the CPA firm of Moser & Christianson, Ltd. in Thief River Falls will become a branch of Brady, Martz & Associates, P.C., with headquarters in Grand Forks, ND. The firm also has offices in Minot, ND, and East Grand Forks.

Arve Moser, president of the local accounting firm, said the increase in size and availability of staff will permit increased services in the public accounting areas. While Moser & Christianson has been strong in manufacturing company accounting, Brady, Martz & Associates has developed expertise in finance and health fields.

Following effective date of the purchase, Roy Lunde of Grand Forks will locate in Thief River Falls to be associated with the operation here. He is married and has a five-month-old child. Moser, Russ Christianson and the other members of the local 12-member staff will continue with the new firm.

Moser founded the company in November of 1974. Offices will continue to be located in the Falls Mall and local additions to staff are anticipated in the next six months. The Grand Forks firm will offer services across northern North Dakota and in northwestern Minnesota with a combined total staff of about 85 people.

Federal Reserve Forecasts Growth In MN Economy

Minnesota's nonfarm economic growth will remain stronger than average in 1987-88, according to a forecasting model maintained by research economists at the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

In the bank's recently released "District Economic Conditions," economist Dick Todd reports that Minnesota's nonfarm employment and income are forecast to grow about 3.7 and 4.2 per cent, respectively, in both this year and 1988. These expected gains are well above their respective average annual growth rates of 2.6 and 3.2 per cent since 1964.

Strong growth predicted for the U.S. economy is partly responsible for the model's optimistic forecast, Todd says.

Some of the predicted employment increase, Todd states, is likely to come from new jobs expected at a large paper plant in Duluth, a wood products firm in International Falls and a poultry feed mill in Jerome.

Todd thinks that these new jobs should help offset cutbacks at computer firms in Jackson, Rochester and the Twin Cities; the continued phaseout of vegetable processing in Fairmont; and possible layoffs in the taconite industry.

Unemployment Rate Drops To 5.1 Per Cent

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate, after two consecutive monthly increases, dipped to 5.1 per cent in March, a decline of 0.2 of a percentage point from February, Commissioner Joe Samargia of the Minnesota department of jobs and training reported today.

The state's jobless rate is down from 5.8 per cent for the same month a year ago, Samargia said, and remains well below the national rate which was 6.6 per cent in March.

Individual area jobless rates varied from an actual low of four per cent in Hennepin county to a high of 24.9 per cent in Clearwater county for February, the most recent month for which county data is available.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Oscar Wilde's comment that "nothing succeeds like excess" has apparently become the guiding principle of the environmental movement.

Hardly a day goes by without some new warning of terrible perils lurking in our air, water and food. Like Henny Penny, the environmentalists are convinced the sky is falling and want the rest of us to share their terror.

The latest dispatch from the headquarters of environmental paranoia concerns the lethal implications of taking showers, washing clothes and scrubbing dirty dishes. Researchers at the Environmental Protection agency have discovered that people who engage in these activities expose themselves to potentially dangerous levels of chloroform, a suspected cancer-causing agent. (Note the weasel words "potentially" and "suspected" which invariably accompany environmental pronouncements.)

Even those of you who never take showers — and we know who you are — cannot consider yourselves safe. Just being around a shower in progress can expose you to the danger. The same applies to washing clothes and dishes.

This news bulletin follows on the heels of earlier reports that indoor air is a major health menace. "Indoor air can be a more important source of pollution than outdoor air," one EPA expert said. "People spend 80 to 90 per cent of their time indoors."

Indeed they do and it has to stop. The time has come for all of us to move outdoors into the yard. Of course, we will have to stay in the shade to avoid the ultraviolet rays from the sun that can cause skin cancer. And in winter we must not burn things to keep warm lest we expose ourselves to noxious fumes. Rather, we should bundle up snugly, preferably in garments that have not been washed in a long time.

As for food, well we can't be too careful. The dangers of meat are well known, but how many of you know that green vegetables also contain substances which can cause cancer in laboratory rats? Shouldn't we all restrict our diets to bean curd, yogurt and distilled water?

On the other hand, perhaps the time has come to take a long, hard look at the environmental movement. Its excesses would be humorous were they not accepted as holy writ by many legislators. Too often we have seen environmentalist paranoia translated into laws and regulations that cost business and government and hence consumers and taxpayers —many billions of dollars. Too often we have paid this cost only to discover that the alleged danger was much less than originally thought or, in some cases, nonexistent altogether.

When business testifies before Congress on environmental matters, or takes its case to the news media, its views are subjected to thorough review and skeptical examination. We would all be a great deal better off if the exaggerated, Henny Penny claims of environmentalists were subjected to the same scrutiny.

Ninth Grade Tobacco Use Involves Cigarettes, Snuff

One out of eight Minnesota ninth graders is already smoking cigarettes at least once a day, and one ninth grader in 20 is a regular user of chewing tobacco or snuff, according to a 1986 survey just released by the Minnesota department of health.

Sixty-four per cent of the students in the survey said they had already tried cigarettes at least once, and 40 per cent had already tried some form of "smokeless" tobacco.

A representative sample of 2,600 Minnesota ninth graders — from 44 schools in different parts of the states — participated in the survey.

The survey represents the first effort ever made to measure smokeless tobacco use statewide among Minnesota adolescents. Also for the first time, officials conducting the survey attempted to confirm participants' statements about whether they smoked or not, by analyzing samples of their breath for carbon monoxide.

Smokeless tobacco is used primarily by male students, the survey found. Sixty-two per cent of the male ninth graders said they had used smokeless tobacco at least once, and nine per cent were using it daily. Less than 16 per cent of the female students said they had tried it, and only two out of 1,000 were using it daily.

The rates of smokeless tobacco use found among male students are significantly higher than current rates among adult male Minnesotans, according to officials who conducted the survey.

In another health department survey, also conducted during 1986, 31 per cent of men over 18 in the state said they had tried smokeless tobacco, and six per cent said they were current users. Officials say the apparent increase among younger males could lead to a substantial increase in oral cancer in the future among Minnesota men.

It's difficult to say if the smoking rates found in the adolescent survey represent a change from past years, officials said, because no previous surveys have focused specifically on the ninth grade age group.

A 1983 study by the search institute found that nine per cent of male eighth graders and 14 per cent of female eighth graders were smoking at least one cigarette a day. By tenth grade, the rates were up to 17 pr cent for males and 23 per cent for females.

The daily smoking rate for ninth graders in the health department study was 12 per cent, and there was little difference in the rate for males and females.

Many Minnesota adolescents are being introduced to tobacco at an early age, the survey found. Of those students who said they were smoking cigarettes at least once a week, 18 per cent said they had been doing so since before seventh grade. Of those who were using smokeless tobacco at least once a week, 38 per cent had been doing so since before seventh grade.

Students in the survey were much more likely to use tobacco if people close to them — parents, brothers and sisters or friends — also used tobacco. Compared to children of nonsmokers, students were up to twice as likely to smoke if one or both parents smoked. Students with older brothers or sisters who smoked were three times as likely as other students to smoke themselves. Students were also more likely to use smokeless tobacco if they had brothers, sisters or parents who used it.

Tobacco use by friends had an even greater influence on whether students used it themselves. A student was 15 times as likely to use tobacco in some form if a "best friend" also used it. Less than one per cent of students with no tobacco-using friends said they were regular users themselves — once a week or more often. But 87 per cent of those who said all their friends used it were also weekly tobacco users themselves.

MN Academy Of Family Physicians Holds Ceremony

Minnesota Academy of Family Physicians (MAFP) held its 37th annual spring refresher on April 6-8 at the Radisson South Hotel. The academy conducts one of the largest state medical specialty meetings in the nation. Lectures and seminars help family physicians stay current with state of the art medicine.

At the April 8 annual banquet, awards were presented and new officers were installed.

Doctor Paul S. Sanders of Cambridge, Minnesota received the 1987 merit award. Given for services to the MAFP, the merit award acknowledges a family physician who has worked hard through the academy to further the ideals of family practice. Doctor Sanders served as president of the Minnesota academy in 1984-85 and was elected to serve as a delegate to the American academy of family physicians. His contributions to the Minnesota academy of family physicians and to organized medicine in Minnesota are almost too numerous to mention. He has been a member of at least twelve MAFP committees and chaired several of them, including professional liability and risk management, long range planning and the ad hoc task force on health care competition and regulation. His involvement with other medical organizations has given him opportunities to provide and exchange information for the mutual benefit of the specialty of family practice and other specialties.

Doctor Sanders is currently a Minnesota Medical association trustee and chairs their inter-specialty council. He has served on the Minnesota Medical insurance exchange's risk managemnet committee since 1981 and chaired it in 1986. He s also currently president of the Minnesota association of nursing home medical directors.

Doctors Thomas G. Birkey and Norman L. Hagberg, both of Montevideo, jointly received the teacher of the year award. The teacher of year award is given to physicians who have distinguished themselves in the teaching of family medicine and family practice. Doctors Birkey and Hagberg have served as an integrated teaching team for the Rural physician associate program (RPAP) for the past 15 years. They have given hundreds of hours as preceptors to undergraduate medical students during those years. They also have provided over $50,000 in stipends for these students. Their teaching style is described as gentle, but effective. One nominating letter said, "Throughout they have been unusually supportive and patient with the student and have evolved a style of teaching that permits the student to acquire self-confidence and skill."

Officers were also installed at the annual banquet by the American Academy of Family Physicians' President, Doctor Robert Taylor of Spartanburg, South Carolina.

Positions to be held for 1987-88 are David Mersy, M.D., of St. Paul, President; Lyle Munneke, M.D., of Willmar, President-Elect; Robert Bosl, M.D., of Starbuck, Vice President; Timothy Pryor, M.D., of Minnetonka, Speaker of the House; and Edward Ciriacy, Jr., M.D., of Menahga, Vice Speaker.

VFW BUDDY POPPIES will be sold to businesses May 5 and 6 on the streets May 14 and 15. These volunteers were getting the poppies ready for sale. Mayor Bob Carlson (seated on far right) signed a proclamation urging citizens to wear a Buddy Poppy as mute evidence of their gratitude to the men of this country who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms which we enjoy as American citizens. The poppies are assembled by disabled veterans, and the proceeds are used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans. Pictured from left are: (front row) Eunice Efteland, Joe Rinowski, chairman of VFW Buddy Poppy sales, and Mayor Bob Carlson; (back row) Vern Dokken, Deloris Thompson, chairman of VFW Buddy Poppy sales, Willia Prestegaard, Edna McEnelly, and Darlene Dokken.

NW Task Force Favors Extension In Service Rules

Northwestern Minnesota Regional Task Force, Inc., comprised of 19 counties in western and northwestern Minnesota, supports increased delivery of mental health services in the State of Minnesota.

"The improvement in delivery of mental health services is shared by all of our member counties. However, the manner in which it is to be done is presently subject to disagreement," states Van R. Ellig of Fergus Falls, chairman.

"The Department of Human Services in St. Paul proposes legislation that will result in complete control over local social service offices with a grand menagerie of rules, definitions, regulations and the creation of new monitoring, administrative and reporting systems. These would be created exclusively at a great deal of expense to the taxpayers," Ellig said.

The counties unanimously favor Senate File No. 797 authored by Senator Don Samuelson, which uses the existing community support services, administrative, monitoring and reporting machinery presently in place and expands upon it.

"This seems to make sense to us. All too often local service providers are hamstrung because of red tape and administrative quagmire that not only incubates but continues to germinate in St. Paul," Ellig added.

"We feel the best way to deliver increased services to the mentally ill is done by an expanded set of rules and definitrions that rely on a time honored Minnesota procedure. That procedure is energizing local creativity and responsibility for developing services that tap unique local resources, knowledge, and the ability to respond to local needs."

Ellig urges the public to call legislators an support Senate File No. 797 and House File No. 870.

Forecasters Give Many Reasons For Market Strength

by Walter W. Heller
U of M Economist

It's fascinating and somewhat amusing to see Wall Streeters, forecasters and, for that matter, economists offering sage and persuasive reasons for the soaring stock prices that none of us had forecast.

First, there is the coiled-spring thesis. After all that stock selling late in 1986 for tax advantage had depressed prices, they had to snap back; makes sense.

Second, a related reason, namely a big pile of cash that had been building up as taxable entities sold stock and as institutions hesitated to buy for fear of falling prices. That hesitation vanished as 1987 opened.

Third, economic skies brightened in the early weeks of the year. Durable goods, orders had been strong, and the post-Christmas retail slump — outside of autos — was not as sharp as expected. The leading indicators jumped, as did the purchasing managers index, and the employment and profits picture improved. All pretty positive.

Fourth, there was much talk of further easing by the Fed, in spite of some flurries that suggested what Fed-watchers loved to call snugging up — which proved to be a false alarm. The basic belief that interest rates are likely at least to hold pretty still rather than rising has been a help to the stock market.

Fifth, fears that the softening dollar would discourage foreign investors did not prove well-founded. When those investors saw the U.S. economy and stock market move ahead while their own economies remained sluggish and the big surge in their own stock market subsided, they kept pouring money into U.S. stocks.

Sixth, overdone fears of adverse impacts of tax reform began to fade. The air pocket that tax reform was supposed to create in this first quarter is not living up to its advance notices.

Seventh, investors are realizing that cutting the top corporate tax rate from 46 per cent to 34 per cent and the top individual rate from 50 per cent to 38 per cent this year and 33 per cent thereafter offers a nice boost to after-tax returns in many segments of the corporate world.

Now, I recognize that I have been accentuating the positive and that all this would have been more helpful had I offered it to you a couple of months ago. But notice, I'm still avoiding a forecast of where the market goes from here — as I have long said, I'm an economic analyst, not a psychoanalyst.

Protect Computer Equipment With Simple Precaution

Thief River Falls utility department cautions consumers to take a few simple steps to protect sophisticated electronic computer equipment, which is more sensitive to minor power fluctuations than traditional home appliances.

One of the best protections is to read all of the equipment owner's manuals. They tell about any special power supply requirements, and warn about overloading circuits.

Outlet testers are also available for about $10 from electronic equipment stores. This device will locate improper home wiring or grounding. If the tester indicates problems, call a qualified electrical contractor for a home inspection and repairs to ensure a safe and reliable flow of electricity.

AVTI To Consider New Course Credit System

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Thief River Falls AVTI may be moving off clock hours and changing to a course credit system for its course offerings. Representatives of the state board of vocational-technical education discussed the option with a selected team from the AVTI Thursday at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls.

"It represents the biggest change for the AVTI other than bricks and mortar," said Dr. Orley Gunderson, director at the AVTI in Thief River Falls.

Craig Froke, assistant director for instructional services with the state board of vocational-technical education, said the state is encouraging the 30 AVTIs in Minnesota to change to the credit system to meet the needs of the students. Teams from the state board of vocational-technical education are visiting with the AVTIs and hopefully, he said, the AVTIs will decide to make the change.

Froke said when area vocational-technical institutes began several years ago the entire system was directed toward recent high school graduates. Therefore, the AVTI system was seen as an extension of high schools. Froke believes many changes have occurred since AVTIs began and the system should reflect those changes.

The average age of AVTI students is now 26.9, Froke said. Their needs are much different than recent high school graduates. For the most part, AVTIs have operated during the day only — six hours every day, five days every week, for one to two years. The older students often cannot afford to attend school under those kinds of restraints.

AVTI systems in different states have made the change to course credits and are seeing success. Nationally 66 per cent of the students in two-year colleges are part time — mainly because they have to support themselves and-or their families and need to work. Minnesota is one of the few states left to still have the clock hour system.

The national percentage does not hold true in Minnesota. Only four per cent of the student population in Minnesota attends two-year AVTIs part time. Froke and Gunderson hope that this will change if they create a more flexible system with credit courses.

Only two per cent of the students at the Thief River Falls AVTI attend part time. Gunderson said he believed only ten of the 500 students at the AVTI were part time.

"There are a lot of things we cannot predict about the future with any kind of certainty but we do know that most of those working now will be working in the year 2,000," Froke said, "and we can reasonably predict that technology will be changing. One way to help those workers adjust to these changes is through retraining. It is not reasonable to expect that people who need retraining should have to quit their jobs to get that training."

If the system were to remain the same, AVTIs would probably see

Awards Made To LHS Seniors At Banquet

Senior banquet for Lincoln high school seniors was held last week in Thief River Falls, when many class members were honored for their achievement and several special awards presented.

The senior banquet provides seniors and organizations an opportunity to recognize accomplishments of students. It was also an opportunity for the studentz, while dressed in their finest attire, to share a few moments before graduation.

Those few moments last week were especially important to the many who received recognition for their efforts during the year and throughout their high school years. It was announced at the beginning of the banquet that Brenda Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Russell, and Joe Drevlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Drevlow, will be the commencement speakers this year.

The American Legion awards, which are presented to the outstanding senior boy and girl, were presented to Jon Erickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Erickson and Jodi Skime, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Skime. Selection for the award is based on scholastic achievement, activities, citizenship and service. The awards were presented by Floyd Fredrickson, commander of the local post, and Sharon Odegaard of the American Legion auxiliary in Thief River Falls.

The Times Academic Athletic award was presented to Brenda Russell. The award is given annually to the senior class athletic letter winner with the highest scholastic average. Times reporter David Hill presented the award which includes a plaque for the recipient and an engraved plate on a permanent trophy for the school trophy case.

The "I Dare You" award, presented by Terry Soine, principal at Lincoln high school, was awarded to Faye Erickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Erickson, and Kraig Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Anderson. Presentation of the award is based on citizenship, class participation and future potential.

Gene Leppala, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leppala, was awarded the class of 1972 scholarship award. The award was presented to Leppala by Kim Harbott and Holly Haugen and is based on scholastic aptitude and participation in school activities.

Recipients of the Army Reserve National scholar and athlete award were Brenda Russell and Jon Erickson. The students were chosen by their coaches and because they met stringent academic standards.

The Presidential academic fitness award was presented to David Novak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Novak, and Deborah Grandbois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Grandbois, at the banquet. The award is based on the completion of course work in English, math, science, social studies, foreign languages, computer science, and attaining a college admission test score placing them in the 80th percentile or better.

At the banquet, the top 20 students

The INSIDE SCOOP
From Lincoln High
by GAYLE BORCHERT

Well, I have to apologize again; I was wrong. But when it only happens twice in 18 years, I hope I can be forgiven. The theme for this year's prom was "To You, My Sweetheart, Aloha."

The junior class did an excellent job on the decorations. The whole east end of the gym was a Hawaiian beach scene, complete with a real life lifeguard's chair. Prom goers had to walk through a grass hut and grass mats just to get to the dance. The junior servers handed out leis as people walked into the dance. The punch was served in champagne glasses with umbrellas in them and the cake appropriately was pineapple upside down cake.

The Grand March was held in the auditorium. One hundred and thirty-seven couples participated in this year's event. Pictures were taken in the ballroom archway by Mr. Solsten after the grand march.

A post prom party was held at the Elks. They served barbecues, chips and pickles. They also had pop and games available. It was appreciated by all those in attendance.

The other half of prom weekend is always the senior banquet. It features awards by the American Legion and Auxiliary and a scholarship from the Class of '72. The honor society and top 10 scholastic students were also recognized. The national athletic honor society was also honored. (I will not be listing the winners of all the awards as they have or will appear in the Times.) The banquet was very nice; it was fun by our senior class president Kraig Anderson, vice president Gwenn Michalicek and treasurer Stacy Glass. Mr. Kotz, the senior class advisor, helped in handing out the awards. The meal served to the seniors was ham, corn, baked potatoes and rolls.

ARMY RESERVE. Brenda Russell and Jon Erickson received the Army reserve national scholar and athlete award at the Lincoln high school senior banquet April 27 in Thief River Falls. The recipients of this award have been selected by their school coaches and meet certain academic excellence requirements.

The Lincoln high school jazz band under the direction of Mr. Ryan provided the pre-meal entertainment. Six senior girls including Michelle Turenne, Marci Turenne, Stacy Glass, Janine Halvorson, Laura Beito and Colleen Johnson sang "Friends" by Michael W. Smith. It was a very appropriate song for our class, as it talked about friends and memories.

The Times awarded its academic athletic award this year to the Lincoln high letter winner with the highest grade point average. This went to Brenda Russell. Congratulations!

NURSING STUDENTS gave blood pressure tests and other demonstrations at an open house for the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute and Northland community college Wednesday. The AVTI offers a licensed practical nurse program which can be extended to a second year in the registered nurse program at Northland.

COSMETOLOGY DEPARTMENT of the Thief River Falls AVTI provided tours and demonstrations during the open house at the institute last Wednesday. In the photo above a student gives a demonstration manicure. The open house at the AVTI and Northland community college was quite well attended during mid-day and early evening separate sessions.

AVTI To Consider New Course Credit System In TRF

fewer and fewer students. Purpose of the change is to accommodate the student and the needs of the student.

Changing the system would also allow for students to get more credit for the courses completed in AVTIs at colleges. Froke said a change would mean a more collegiate atmosphere, although the main emphasis of AVTIs would still be on occupational education.

"Right now," he said, "taking course hours to a college is like taking pesos to the bank. The exchange rate isn't exactly the same," Froke said.

Froke and Dr. Gunderson suspect that students are having difficulty transferring credits. The course credit system will facilitate transfers, which is only good public policy in Froke's opinion. The change will not be easy to make, however, Froke said.

Three members of a restructuring team were visiting with a group of teachers, counselors and administrators of the AVTI Thursday afternoon. Froke said it is important to the success of the change to enroll the support of a team from the AVTI which is convinced of its importance. With a team set up at the AVTI, the state team will be assured that it can work with a group rather than individuals.

Froke estimated that the project will take about three years to implement fully. He believes, however, that if an AVTI began the process immediately, it could begin offering some course credit offerings next fall.

The change, Froke said, requires a change in the way the AVTI does things. It requires greater interdependence. Because the system offers greater flexibility, it is necessary to establish more scheduling and planning. Presently the system is relatively simple. A student planning to get a two-year degree in welding, for example, may see only one or two different instructors throughout the training. When the new system is implemented, the student may see many different instructors and planning will be a must.

The course credit system represents a change in almost everything the AVTI does — not in focus, but in delivery, Froke said. "The worst thing we could do right now," he said, "is to jump into this without adequate planning."

Froke doesn't see an effect on state aid funds to the schools or any additional cost to the student because of the change. He said they are trying for a fiscally neutral policy.

The restructuring teams have found a great deal of support so far, Froke said. That support, he said, comes not only from educators but student groups and employer groups.

Dr. Gunderson said the change reflects a major undertaking and an understanding that student needs have changed. He believes the staff will support this change. Gunderson pointed out that the AVTI here has recognized this change and made some significant changes, especially in the aviation and nursing programs at the school. This effort by the state, he said, offers a structured plan for the change.

Dr. Gunderson said he believes the board of vocational-technical education will select five AVTIs in the state to praticipate in an early implementation of the change. He hopes the AVTI here will be selected as one of the five.

He believes the AVTI in Thief River Falls has been a leader and plans to continue. This change, he said, has been something the officials here have been thinking about for a long time, and already is a part of long range plans at the AVTI.

Next fall all of the business courses, secretarial and shorthand courses, medical secretary courses, legal secretary course, accounting courses and computer operations courses will be credit based, according to Dr. Gunderson. This will allow students to enroll part-time day or evening. The director said he hopes the change will be completely operational in the fall of 1988.

Melissa Puppe, 16, Thief River Falls, not Sandy Johnson, Thief River Falls, was transferred to Dakota Hospital in Fargo for injuries she sustained in an accident last week.

CORRECTION

A photo caption in Wednesday's edition of the Times regarding the appearance of USA-1 at the North Country Auto Showtime in Thief River Falls indicated that Steve Soiney received a ride in the car-crushing 4x4 as a person "struggling with multiple sclerosis."

Soiney was a member of the Prairie Schooners street rod club committee which worked for several months on arrangements for the USA-1 appearance. He said the ride was arranged in connection with that work rather than because he has MS. The Times regrets the misinformation.

Dear Readers,

Our clergymen and our teachers strive devotedly to build honesty, fairness, kindness and personal worth into the character of our children. Their efforts will be in vain unless we parents and citizens support them with ethical and moral behavior in our daily lives. Our nation's moral fibre has been laboriously built thru the integrity of generations — it can rapidly falter and fail unless we maintain high standards of conduct.

MN Veterinarians Sponsor Pet Week May 3 Through 9

America's 125 million pets and their owners know that life together is better. To celebrate the unique companionship between people and their pets, the Minnesota Veterinary Medical association is sponsoring National Pet Week, May 3 - 9.

"Horseback riding, walking the dog, teaching a parrot to talk, or curling up with the cat all add an extra dimension to life," said Dr. Kenneth L. Greiner, the association's president.

"Whether you have a houseful of children who learn about responsibility by caring for their pet or live alone and like someone waiting for you when you return home, pets can enrich your life," Dr. Greiner added.

In addition to companionship, pets are shown by recent research to be valuable in therapy for physically, emotionally and mentally impaired individuals.

"Pets and People — A Loving Combination" is the theme for National Pet Week," said Dr. Greiner. "Owners must realize the vital role they play in that combination. They must give as much as they receive."

Veterinarians throughout the country are planning open houses, pet fairs, educational seminars and other activities to inform people about the joys and responsibilities of pet ownership. They are asking that owners recognize their companion's need for food, shelter, exercise, and proper health care.

If you have questions about your pet's health or National Pet Week activities, contact your local veterinarian.

Fisher's Landing Travel Center Opened Friday

Fisher's Landing travel information center, located approximately 10 miles east of the North Dakota-Minnesota border on U.S. highway 2, resumed its summer schedule of operation Friday.

Fisher's Landing is owned and operated by the Minnesota department of transportation and serves as a welcome center to visitors from the Northwest and Canada with primary destinations in the vacation communities of northern Minnesota.

The center will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., daily (including weekends). These hours will be extended to 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. from the Memorial day weekend to the Labor day weekend.

The travel information center contains a comprehensive inventory of informational maps and brochures as well as the "Explore Minnesota" newspaper, published by the Minnesota department of tourism. The new "Explore Minnesota" official state highway map is available and information regarding highway rules, regulations, safety tips and other travel related items can be obtained at the center.

The center's experienced staff of travel guides is prepared to respond to statewide information requests as well as local inquiries. People may visit the center to talk to travel guides and obtain literature or they may call the center at (218) 773-7879 to order information.

According to Gladys Sondrol, supervisor at Fisher's Landing, over 65,000 travelers visited the center during the 1986 summer season to obtain literature and trip planning ideas for trips and vacations all over Minnesota.

Board On Aging Plans Institute At St. Cloud SU

Minnesota board on aging has chosen "The Legacy of Later Life" as the theme for the 29th annual institute on aging to be held at St. Cloud state university June 4 and 5.

Session topics are geared to deal with the question "What Are We Here For?" The legacy of later life will address older persons as a resource, empowerment and community involvement.

Dr. Rick Moody of the Hunter College Brookdale Center on Aging, New York, will deliver the keynote address, "The Legacy of Later Life" to open the conference. Political analyst D.J. Leary will be noon luncheon speaker.

On Friday, a panel consisting of Dr. Robert Kane, Dr. Rosalie Kane, Dr. Muriel Ryden and Dr. Kathy Annette will discuss intergenerational resources from social, physical and mental health perspectives. Elva Walker, chairwoman of the Minnesota board on aging, will also speak.

Other activities during the two-day conference include workshop sessions, dinner theatre entertainment, a walking tour, feature films, opportunities for statewide senior groups to conduct business meetings, exhibits, and time for meeting and visiting.

Preregistration fees received by May are $20 for those under 60 years of age, and $10 for those 60 years and older. Later registration is $30 and $20. Lunch, housing and dinner theatre reservations also can be made when preregistering, at additional cost.

For further information, contact St. Cloud State University, St. Cloud, MN 56301, (612) 255-3081, or Faith Rud at the Northwest Regional Development Commission, P.O. Box E, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, phone (218) 681-2637.

Older Americans Month Focuses On Community Work

"Make Your Community Work for Older People" is the theme for the 1987 Older Americans month campaign during the month of May. The state units on aging and area agencies on aging are joining with the U.S. administration on aging to emphasize the challenges and opportunities that a rapidly aging society confronts.

Persons 65 years of age and older now comprise 12 per cent of the U.S. population. This is expected to increase to 13 per cent by the year 2000 and 21 per cent by 2030, according to Faith Rud, director of aging programs at the Northwest Regional Development commission office in Thief River Falls.

During older Americans month, public officials, community leaders and persons of all ages are encouraged to engage in dialogue about the aging issue and specifically about developing responsive, community based support systems of services for older persons and their families. Responsive systems that support independent living for older persons are the goal of regional, state and national agencies on aging.

The Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended, established state units on aging in every state and territory in the United States to plan and coordinate statewide services. Approximately 670 area agencies on aging were also created as local planning agencies.

For further information, contact Rud at the NWRDC, P.O. Box E, Thief River Falls or call 681-2637.

Tuesday evening several experienced writers will share their know-how with participants during Writers' Workshop III at Roseau public library.

U Of M Research Teams Can Use Many Volunteers

Through the University of Minnesota Research Expeditions (REX) program this summer dozens of volunteers will join university research teams in fields ranging from agriculture to archaeology and from wildlife to health sciences.

"Help university archaeologists in Bavaria or Israel sift through secrets centuries old. Muster in Manitoba and help halt mistletoe's destructive march through the jack pine forests. Escape to northern Minnesota to trap and tag ruffled grouse -- or wade into a study of wild rice agronomy," invites Marjorie Ahrens, REX coordinator.

"If lab work sounds more challenging, join a research team in the Twin Cities: Study chronobiology physiological cycles that can affect the course of both disease and medication in the body. Research the role of oral health in the growing problem of malnutrition among older adults. Help apply stereophotogrammetry -- computer-assisted 3-d imaging -- to more accurate restoration of facial structure after surgery."

REX, which was developed last year by the department of extension classes, has been expanded this year to 14 projects.

"The only qualifications are curiosity, adaptability and an ambition to support important university research," Ahrens says. "You don't need to have special training, just a desire to help and a desire to learn. These are working projects, not vacations, but the rewards in REX participation aren't available on most vacations."

Project leaders encourage those interested to call and ask about project specifics. Their telephone numbers, as well as information about applications, fees, accommodations and registration deadlines (some of which will pass in a flash), are available by calling Marjorie Ahrens at (612) 626-0214. Or write Research Expeditions, University of Minnesota, 180 Wesbrook Hall, 77 Pleasant Street S.E., Minneapolis, MN 55455.

High blood pressure adds to the workload of the heart and arteries, which may contribute to stroke, heart attack, kidney failure, and congestive heart failure. There is accumulating evidence that lowering blood pressure reduces the risk of stroke and coronary heart disease, according to the American Heart association.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Credit Card Interest Bill Could Backfire

According to an editorial in the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch, a bill in the legislature to reduce the interest rate which could be charged on consumer credit could hurt more than it helps. The bill, which was given little chance to pass, would cut the permissible rate to 10.5 per cent for retailers doing more than $25 million in annual sales and 14.5 per cent for those with sales less than that amount. Present allowable rate is 18 per cent.

"Bank credit cards, which charge up to 21 per cent interest and receive a discount from merchants for each purchase, are not included under the legislation because those operations are regulated by Washington," the editorial states.

Presumption by those favoring lowered interest rates is that the drop in prime rate to 7.5 per cent warrants a reduction in the allowable 18 per cent. Since some businesses actively pursue distribution of their credit cards, the presumption is that the retailers must be making money on the difference in the rate between what they borrow and what they charge.

The St. Paul paper's editorial points out that Dayton's credit card department last year took in $6.8 million less in interest payments than it paid out in interest fees and operating costs. The company speculates that a cut to 10.5 per cent would more than triple the losses to $21.6 million. The editorial contends that Dayton's accepts the $6.8 million loss because credit cards have become a vital marketing tool and two-thirds of Dayton's customers charge their purchases. "Losses they experience under the 18 per cent rate," the editorial states, "are considered acceptable costs of doing business."

Maybe so, maybe no. It doesn't seem too likely that any business would consider a $6.8 million loss in a department acceptable. There are other means available to offer retail credit which should certainly be more acceptable than eating a multi-million dollar loss.

As the Pioneer Press Dispatch editorial states, "Retailers such as Dayton's have another option: abandon their credit card operations. Dayton's for instance, could close its credit department and sell its receivables to a bank, perhaps to one located in South Dakota, which has no interest ceiling. If that were to happen, legislation designed to cut credit card interest rates to 10.5 per cent would actually force some consumers to pay about 21 per cent interest on their credit purchases."

An editorial in the Minneapolis Star and Tribune correctly points out that anyone who thinks charge account credit is over-priced is free to pay cash, postpone a purchase until cash is in hand, not make the purchase at all or seek a cheaper lender. Those options properly weighed and considered should make the legislative proposal unnecessary.

Making Good Water Better

Following was written by Jack Hill, editor of the "Buckeye Farm News" and is a basis for some hard thought, even in our own water-rich area:

If agriculture wants to avoid excessive government control of its groundwater, we had better get with it.

I was on a program at Edison College earlier this year. The audience was mixed, 25 per cent farmer-type and 75 per cent other. When the need to protect our groundwater quality was mentioned, the audience broke out in applause. This reinforced the fact there is a real awareness and concern about the quality of our groundwater.

Groundwater is the source for 73 per cent of our drinking water in the U.S., according to Dr. Joseph Rossillion, Freshwater Foundation president. It is no longer a simple environmental issue, but is fast becoming a social issue as well. The question to be debated is — who owns the groundwater? I think the generally accepted answer is — everyone owns it. Recent court rulings in the northeast United States have verified this. But we can't be intimidated by these actions, nor can we be stupid about our management practices that affect water quality.

If agriculture wants to stay in control of this important natural resource, we're going to have to get our act together. Careless use of farm chemicals cannot be condoned. One mistake or act of carelessness by one farmer could jeopardize everyone in a water region.

Although agricultural chemicals get the lion's share of attention they certainly are not the only culprit. Manure, petroleum spills and dead animals need to be added to that list.

A voluntary all-out information campaign led by agricultural interests seems to be called for. If we wait for some other public body to give the leadership, it's all over.

The information/education campaign should have many facets. We should insist our vo-ag teachers teach units on this. County agents should be encouraged to initiate programs on water quality. Private companies should educate users and finance a water quality testing program for their customers.

Every farmer should do some testing to see what the groundwater quality situation is on his farm. Some react to this suggestion with disdain because it costs and because there is little understanding about the adverse implication of "bad" water.

Well, for those in that category, I suggest you think about what the downside is. The headlines could read like a horror movie: "Wells in Podunk, population 31,000, are found contaminated. Source unknown. Farmers suspected. Water to be hauled into community. All landowners to be asessed $2,370."

Fictional as this may be, it is possible and if we don't get concerned, it could be the preview for a real story — let's hope not.

Many myths still exist about our natural resources and especially water. A few of these are: Myth No. 1 — "I (landowner) own and control everything above and below my land." Myth No. 2 — "as water percolates through the soil it is purified." Myth No. 3 — "A little contamination doesn't hurt because no one will ever know."

The bottom line to all of this is — we are, as landowners, going to get out front in leading a campaign to make our good water resources better?

Babies Smoke, Too . . .

According to Dr. C. Everett Koop, U.S. Surgeon General, babies in households where the mothers or other family members smoke are smoking, too. "Tobacco smoke is immediately harmful to babies with breathing problems," Dr. Koop says, "and it can cause illness for all babies later on. No baby should ever be exposed to tobacco smoke."

In the surgeon general's report issued in the past year, three major points are made in regard to the situation:

"(1) Involuntary smoking is a cause of disease, including lung cancer, in healthy nonsmokers;

"(2) The children of parents who smoke, compared with the children of nonsmokers, have more respiratory infections, more respiratory symptoms and slightly smaller rates of increase in lung function;

"(3) The simple separation of smokers and nonsmokers with in the same air space may reduce, but not eliminate, nonsmoker's exposure to tobacco smoke."

"When a baby is exposed to smoke, the baby can, in truth, be said to be 'smoking'," Dr. Koop said. "Nicotine, carbon monoxide and other constituents of smoke are absorbed into the baby's body. Exposure is most likely to occur in babies whose mothers are smokers. The more the mother smokes, the more her baby absorbs the harmful components of tobacco smoke.

"Hospital admissions for bronchitis, pneumonia and other related illnesses can be twice as frequent for babies whose parents smoke. The most damage occurs in infants under two years old. They are especially susceptible because their lungs are immature and their immunity to respiratory infections is not as well developed.

"....Even the healthiest baby suffers from exposure to tobacco smoke. And those with asthma and allergies need special protection because smoke can trigger attacks of coughing and wheezing," he adds.

The surgeon general suggests a no smoking rule which is politely enforced in homes where neither the mother nor father of the baby smokes. In households where either parent does smoke, he suggests the following rules:

(1) Never, ever smoke while holding, bathing or feeding the baby.

(2) Never bring a cigarette or other smoking materials into the baby's room. Friends, relatives and babysitters must abide by this same rule.

(3) Parents should put off smoking when the baby is with them in other parts of the house. If they can't do this, they should make sure there is good ventilation.

(4) They should insist on sitting in no-smoking areas when they visit public places.

"Nobody needs to tell parents they ought to quit smoking," Dr. Koop says, "They already know that. If there is a baby in their house, they should need no additional motivation (to quit)."

Inflation: The state in which instead of having the money you haven't got, you have twice as much, but it's only worth half of what you would have had if you had what you haven't got.

Letters to the Editor

As parents of teenagers we want to say a special thank-you to the Elks Club for their hospitality shown the kids after the prom on Saturday, April 25.

We really appreciate the kindness.

An open letter to the Zehlian group of Thief River Falls:

Can it be that you are merely naive or truly unaware of the state of your city? The sidewalks around town are crumbling or non-existent. By midsummer, the river is stagnant and malodorous from years of neglect. The city parks are used mainly for doggie rest stops or places to throw candy wrappers. A town of this size doesn't even need half the amount of parks it has, and cute little walkways along the river are needed even less. It's like giving yourself a facelift when what you really need is major surgery.

The sidewalks around town are in such ruin as to make it unsafe for the elderly to walk without worry of tripping. My own young son has fallen numerous times on jutting cement, not to mention the hardships of shoveling them in the winter.

After years of neglect, the slow running Red Lake river is slowly filling in with mud and litter. The water becomes smelly and stagnant around midsummer, and that doesn't sound too appealing for a riverside picnic. Numerous dead trees litter the river, making waterskiing unsafe.

Why not put your heads together and do something useful for the city and its residents instead of wasting money on something that will benefit no one?

To The Editor:

A recent letter to your column expounded on the proposed changes to the Farmer-Lender Mediation Act of 1986 (Senate File 89) now before the Minnesota Legislature.

While I must agree that S.F. 89 detracts from the spirit and intent of the mediation process, I disagree with the writer's contention that Mr. Eken and the Farmers Union have not done enough to stop passage. Quite the opposite is true.

Despite the fact that S.F. 89 passed a Minnesota Senate vote, the Chairman and several members of the Senate Agriculture Committee voted against the measure. The bill now goes before the House where it will face staunch opposition.

Mr. Eken, the Farmers Union and Groundswell all deserve praise for working to maintain an excellent mediation law. The writer wrongly blamed Mr. Eken and the Farmers Union for not opposing the measure.

Sincerely,
Minnesota Department of Agriculture

Collision

KITTSON COUNTY ENTERPRISE — A two-vehicle accident April 26 resulted in extensive damage to a 1987 Ford pickup pulling an anhydrous ammonia trailer and a 1974 Ford pickup. Tom Woodard, whose pickup was pulling the tank, was northbound on highway 75 in Hallock, and Arnold Erickson of Langdon was driving south. The Erickson vehicle attempted a left turn onto Second street south in front of the Woodard vehicle. Both pickups were damaged in the accident, but the anhydrous trailer and tank were undamaged. Erickson complained of stomach pains and was charged with DWI.

Theft

BEMIDJI PIONEER — Brian Wayne Holthusen, 21, of Grygla, was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail and payment of a $226 fine for misdemeanor theft and 10 days in the county jail and payment of a $275 fine for driving after revocation of his license before Judge William Kalar in Beltrami County district court recently. Jail sentences were suspended and Holthusen was placed on one year supervised probation on condition of good behavior. Holthusen was charged in connection with the theft of a rototiller from Donald Thomas of Fourtown last September.

Just Couldn't Wait

(CLEARBROOK) FARMERS INDEPENDENT — Two-year-old Aaron Merck took his three-month-old brother, Jamie, for a little drive the other day. While Aaron's mother was busy inside the house, he managed to get the family car in reverse and began a backward jaunt across the street to sideswipe the corner of the neighbor's house and scrunch into a cedar tree, finally coming to rest under an apple tree 150 feet from home. Driver and passenger were fine, but the same couldn't be said for the house and the car, both of which sustained considerable damage in the incident. The Clearbrook police department warns everyone to remove the keys when leaving their vehicle unattended.

3-Wheeler Accident

OKLEE HERALD — Seven-year-old Sonya Carlson of Thief River Falls was injured April 26 when she fell off a three-wheel vehicle driven by her father, Gerald, on the Keith Knutson farm, rural Red Lake Falls. Sonya scraped her back and fractured her scapula in the accident and was treated and released from Northwest Medical center.

Senior Senior Prom

FERTILE JOURNAL — The junior class of the Fertile high school invited members of the Fertile Senior Citizens club and residents of Fair Meadow nursing home to a "Senior Prom" of their own Monday. Amid decorations left from the Saturday school senior prom, senior citizens listened to music provided by Ellef Erlien and the Bergesons of Twin Valley and were treated to prom refreshments by the Senior Citizens club.

The Facts of Life

CROOKSTON DAILY TIMES — Joan Lester, a social studies teacher and counselor at Bigfork high school, invented a new board game after noticing that most board games she saw played at a group home in which she works were unrealistic in the way they portray the facts of life. The new game is called "Face the Facts," and she says it is recreational, educational, therapeutic, and — authentic in its outlook on life. Action centers not on hoarding and losing wealth, but on reading a good book or earning a bad grade, on getting a job or getting pregnant, on making friends who help a person share feelings or friends who help the person taking drugs. Currency isn't colored paper money, it's self-esteem. Girls at the group home tested the game and helped name it and revise it. Lester has sold 700 games, mostly to school special education programs, youth groups and family counselors.

I Remember . . .

Author Returns

(CLEARBROOK) FARMERS INDEPENDENT — Fosston folks are planning the red carpet treatment for a former Fosston high school English teacher turned author who will return to the city May 7. John Hassler is a well-known Minnesota author of seven books. His first novel, "Staggerford," was written in 1977, followed by "The Green Journey," "The Love Hunter," and his newest release, "Grand Opening." Hassler taught for 10 years in high schools in Fosston, Melrose and Park Rapids, when at Bemidji state university and Brainerd community college. He is currently a writer in residence at St. John's University in Collegeville.

"I promise not to raise your taxes in '87."

The difference between responsible legislators and ordinary politicians is the promises they keep.

Candidates made you a solemn promise during the 1986 elections. No tax increases in 1987. But some "politicians" are about to break that promise with a hidden tax. They plan to raise business taxes to cover several hundred million dollars in NEW spending programs. To survive, business must pass those tax costs on to you.

As usual, you pay the price, the "politicians" get expensive NEW programs, and Main Street business takes the blame.

But it doesn't have to happen. This year, thanks to inflation and economic growth, lawmakers already have $540 million more revenue to work with as they set Minnesota's budget. So they don't have to cut a single program. In fact, many programs can grow. But to avoid a tax increase, they must limit total budget growth to $540 million.

That's not unreasonable, especially when you consider that Minnesota government already spends $500 more per capita for government services than the average state.

Responsible legislators are fighting to hold the line on taxes and spending. They need our support.

Ordinary politicians plan to break their campaign promise. Tell them "no tax increase in '87. A promise is a promise."

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Poverty in Minnesota has grown dramatically in recent years. According to most recent estimates, 475,000 Minnesotans now live in poverty — an increase of 100,000 since 1979. But what seems to remain constant are the myths and misconceptions about poor Minnesotans.

People tend to assume, for example, that most poor Minnesotans live in the Twin Cities area. Even though 50 per cent of our state's total population live in the Twin Cities area, only 35 per cent of the poor live there — that is, 65 per cent of Minnesota's poor live outside the seven-county metropolitan area, and the state's 22 poorest counties are all located in rural Minnesota.

It is also believed that people are poor because they refuse to work and that most of the poor live in families headed by single women. The facts are that over 73 per cent of Minnesota's non-elderly households in poverty have income from work. A family of four, with one parent employed full-time at $5.25 per hour, earns an annual income that is still below the poverty line. Overall, poverty among working families has increased 56 per cent since 1979.

Only one-third of those in poverty live in families headed by single women — it is two-parent families that have been the most affected by recent increases in poverty. Married-couple families account for 45 per cent of the increase in poverty since 1979, while single-parent, female-headed families make up only 31.5 per cent of the increase.

Another misconception is that the majority of poor people on public assistance are lifelong welfare recipients. In fact, 56 per cent of Minnesota families living on Aid for Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) participate in the program less than two years, while only seven per cent stay on AFDC longer than seven years.

Because the reasons for poverty are many, we need a comprehensive strategy for alleviating that poverty. The Legislature does have a number of proposals before it which are designed to address poverty in a variety of ways. While none of these proposals have been signed into law yet, they have certainly stimulated our debate on poverty in Minnesota:

(1) Extending the Minnesota employment and economic development (MEED) jobs program. Even in prosperous times, the Minnesota economy is not producing enough jobs for all workers, and this state program provides wage subsidies to small businesses on a temporary basis. Most of these businesses could not afford to hire additional needed workers without that help, and so, MEED not only creates jobs but also assists in small business expansion.

(2) Providing sliding-fee health coverage for uninsured working families. More than 450,000 Minnesotans have no health coverage, most of them living in a household headed by a wage-earner. Because people who are on public assistance receive health care, the cost of health insurance often creates a barrier against going to work. Providing affordable health care coverage would likely result in fewer AFDC cases and give poor working families basic health care coverage.

(3) Reducing the tax burden on low-income Minnesotans. By conforming to the 1986 federal tax law, Minnesota could remove up to 125,000 low-income earners from the state income tax rolls. This would encourage economic independence and the ability for low and moderate-income working people to provide for their families through earnings alone.

(4) Expanding the sliding fee child care program. Lack of child care is one of the major barriers to economic independence for low-income families. Approximately 48,000 low-income families are estimated to be eligible for the sliding-fee child care program, but the program is substantially underfunded. Increasing access to the sliding-fee child care would also help AFDC recipients off the welfare rolls and on to the payrolls.

(5) Increasing the minimum wage. At $3.35 an hour (or an annual full-time wage of $6,968), many families have earnings well below the poverty level. However, a substantial increase in the minimum wage might create a hardship for small businesses, and the Senate and House have agreed to a two-tiered system. If the law is passed, beginning in 1988, the small business minimum wage would increase by 45 cents an hour over a three-year period. In businesses with annual sales over $362,500, it would increase by 60 cents over three years.

If you have questions or comments, please call me at (612) 296-8660, or write to me at 306 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Human Services Expects Increase In Alzheimer's

Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS) is undertaking an initiative aimed at improving the coordination of services for Minnesotans with Alzheimer's Disease, as well as encouraging research about the disease, said DHS Commissioner Sandra S. Gardebring.

"With the aging of our state's population, the number of Minnesotans suffering from Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders is expected to increase dramatically by the year 2000," Gardebring said. "Research and delivery of support services are two critical areas addressed in the initiative."

Estimates are that 10,000 to 13,000 Minnesotans have moderate to severe Alzheimer's Disease, a progressive, irreversible brain disorder affecting primarily elderly people. Symptoms include gradual memory loss, impairment of judgment, disorientation and changes in personality. Alzheimer's Disease is the most common of a group of diseases known as dementia.

The initiative also is aimed at improving the care Alzheimer's victims receive in Minnesota, as well as support programs for their families. Family members provide the bulk of care needed by those with the disease.

The initiative is DHS's response to a report issued by the Governor's Task Force on Alzheimer's Disease. The task force, chaired by DHS Medical Director Frederick Ferron, was created in 1986 by Gov. Perpich to report to him on Alzheimer's Disease issues statewide.

The task force heard from a number of experts in the field, as well as from Minnesotans who are primary caregivers to Alzheimer's Disease victims.

Gardebring said DHS will be receptive to participating in well-designed research studies of Alzheimer's Disease, as well as generally encouraging research of the disease in Minnesota.

The DHS initiative re-establishes the governor's task force as a standing departmental task force with Ferron as chair. It also creates an interagency task force, made up of representatives of the state Departments of Human Services, Health and Education, the Minnesota Medical Association, and the University of Minnesota School of Public Health.

The interagency committee will conduct a statewide review of the education and training of health and social service providers who work with Alzheimer's clients. If the review shows current training isn't adequate, the task force will develop and carry out a plan to improve it, Gardebring said.

Also as part of the initiative, DHS will evaluate whether there are gaps in the services available to Alzheimer's victims and their families in Minnesota. A summary of existing services statewide for those with the disease will be compiled by October.

"The task force also will review efforts in Minnesota to develop long-term care insurance to meet the special needs of persons with Alzheimer's and their families," Gardebring said. Currently, the resources of family members must be depleted before the Alzheimer's Disease victim can qualify for public assistance.

Restrictions On Highways To Be Lifted Wednesday

Weight restriction will be lifted on state highways in the north weight restriction zone on Wednesday, May 6, according to Bob Wolfe, district engineer for the Minnesota department of transportation in Bemidji. The north zone includes all state highways north of trunk highways 10 and 210.

Weight restrictions have already been lifted on state highways in the rest of the state except in special cases where roadways have not yet regained full strength. Weight restriction signs will remain posted on those routes.

Roads that will remain posted in northwest Minnesota include: Highway 11, from highway 72 to highway 71, until July 1; highway 1, from Northome to highway 6, until July 1; highway 71, from Blackduck to highway 1, until further notice; highway 6, from highway 2 to highway 1, until further notice; and highway 1, from highway 219 to highway 89, year around.

Wolfe said that restrictions are being lifted earlier than normal this year because the warm dry weather over the last few weeks has helped the roads dry out and regain their strength sooner than normal. Weight restrictions are usually lifted during the middle of May.

For information about weight restrictions and 10-ton routes call the Mn-DOT permit office in Bemidji (218) 755-2942 or Crookston (218) 281-3502.

Common Science

by Joe Jeffers, Ph.D.

Almost any student past the fourth grade can tell you that leaves are green due to the presence of the green pigment chlorophyll. Perhaps a better question, then, is why do chlorophyll and the leaves that contain it appear green to us. Ordinary light is composed of many colors. By using a prism this white light can be separated by wavelength into the individual colors of the spectrum — red, orange, yellow, green, blue and violet.

When white light strikes a leaf, most of the colors in white light are absorbed; green, however, is reflected. We see the reflected light. If we were to shine red light on a green leaf (in a dark room, of course), it would appear black... The red is absorbed by the leaf.

Colors we see due to pigments like chlorophyll and paints are called subtractive colors. When certain wavelengths of light are absorbed, they are subtracted out of the spectrum. We see what is left. In most cases it is an over simplification to say only one color of light is reflected. Usually several color bands are reflected to some extent, but we see one color predominately.

For example, a blue object absorbs red, orange and yellow while reflecting green, blue and violet. We see it as blue. A yellow object absorbs blue and violet while reflecting red, orange, yellow and green. We see it as yellow. This pattern explains why we can mix pigments and produce another color. If we mix blue and yellow paints, we get green. Why?

Notice above that blue pigments absorb red, orange and yellow; yellow pigments absorb blue and violet. Between them the two pigments absorb everything but green, which is reflected by both pigments. In cases where all the colors are absorbed, an object appears black; in cases where all are reflected, an object appears white.

The three primary colors of paints are red, blue and yellow. If a red paint were mixed with a green paint, a rather mud-like color would result. If, however, a red light is beamed onto the same spot as a green light is beamed, the result is yellow. The lights are additive instead of subtractive. Adding red to green gives an intermediate color, yellow. The primary colors of light are red, blue and green. By proper addition of these wavelengths of light, all of the other colors can be produced. Color television, in fact, works using red, blue and green.

The eyes work this way, too. We see color due to cones present in the retina of the eye. There are three types of cones differing by whether they are sensitive to red light, blue light or green light. If the red cones and the green cones are activated, the brain interprets the color as yellow.

In fact, when we view a painted surface, both the subtractive and additive methods are usually at work. The wavelengths of colors of light absorbed are subtracted from the visible spectrum. Of the various colors reflected to the eyes, we will see a final color due to their addition.

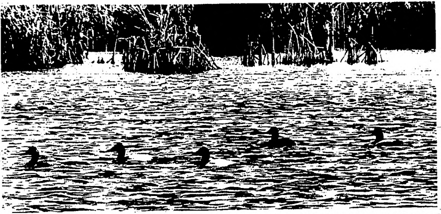
SKIMMING OVER THE MARSH, this airboat at Agassiz national wildlife refuge was the perfect unit for use in a wild celery planting session last week. The airboat carried two volunteer workers plus driver Jim Mattson to a large patch of open water on one of the refuge pools where wild celery tubers were planted. Purpose of the project is to establish plots of the plant which is one of the favorite foods of canvasback ducks. Other waterfowl species also utilize the leaves and seeds of the plant while canvasbacks have a preference for the tubers which grow in the marshy bottom, often six to 10 inches deep in the mud.

ANCHORED IN OPEN WATER, this airboat provided a platform for the planting of wild celery in two patches at Agassiz national wildlife refuge east of Holt late last week. Todd Anderson (left), a natural resources student from Minnetonka at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, assists airboat operator Jim Mattson in the planting operation. Wild celery tubers were placed in weighted cotton mesh bags and planted by randomly tossing them into about four feet of water in quarter-acre quadrants. Two patches of an acre in size each were planted in this manner in hopes of establishing the favorite food for canvasback ducks.



UNKNOWING BENEFICIARIES of a project underway at Agassiz national wildlife refuge east of Holt are these canvasback ducks and others of their species which will be hatched on or visit the refuge in the future. A preferred food of the large diving duck species is wild celery, and part of the refuge program for canvasbacks involves an attempt to establish beds of wild celery in large open water areas. The planting program — conducted Friday with assistance from students in natural resources at the University of Minnesota-Crookston — is part of a much more extensive canvasback study and improvement program at Agassiz. James Mattson of the refuge staff is in charge of the program.

WILD CELERY TUBERS transported in water in an ice chest were used in a planting program at Agassiz national wildlife refuge Friday. The plant is a favorite of canvasback ducks and efforts are being made to establish plots of the plant in open water areas at the refuge. Several of the tubers were placed in each of about 2,000 weighted cotton mesh bags for transplanting in the open water areas. Students from the natural resources class at the University of Minnesota-Crookston assisted refuge personnel in the project.

Chewing Tobacco Poor Substitute For Cigarettes

The warnings read: "this product may cause mouth cancer," "This product may cause gum disease and tooth loss," and "this product is not a safe alternative to cigarettes." The product is chewing tobacco and the users are millions of Americans. Chewing tobacco is dangerous, addictive, and cancer causing, according to the Minnesota Medical association.

Substituting chewing tobacco for cigarettes only substitutes the risk of mouth cancer for the risk of lung cancer. Smokeless tobacco is more addictive than alcohol. If you chew, you absorb nicotine directly into your body and — like any addictive drug — the more you chew the more tolerance you build up. Consequently, the more you chew, the more you want and the more your body needs.

Chewing tobacco can also cause damage and injury to the mucous membranes of your mouth. Sores and lesions can develp which can cause gum decay or gum recession. This, in turn, leads to tooth decay and precedes cancer. The cancer develops from the irritation caused by the tobacco wad between the gum and cheek. Cancer of the mouth usually begins along the side under the surface of the tongue or in the floor of the mouth. It can also begin on the sides of the cheeks, the gums or on the roof of the mouth. This cancer is usually discovered when the victim feels lumps or soreness on the tongue.

By the time most mouth cancers are detected more than half are well advanced and have spread into the lymph glands of the neck. If the cancer has advanced to the lymph glands, immediate, radical treatment is required. These cancers are deadly and not only destroy appearances when the whole side of the face and neck may have to be surgically removed, but also may mean chemotherapy: A treatment to try to prevent death.

There are smaller consequences of chewing tobacco. The tobacco cuts down sense of taste and smell, so those who chew tend to season their food more. Along with more sugar and salt come added health risks.

Remember, chewing tobacco is dangerous, addictive and can cause cancer. If you don't chew, don't start. If you do chew, stop. By stopping, you can reverse a great deal of the damage. Finally, if you are having a difficult time stopping or suspect you may have cancer of the mouth, see your local physician.

COTTON MESH BAGS, weighted with small stones, were prepared for the planting of wild celery at Agassiz national wildlife refuge last week. Wild celery tubers, which are light and would float to the surface, were put into the weighted bags and planted in two locations at the refuge. Students in natural resources from the University of Minnesota-Crookston assisted with the project. Left to right in the photo are Al Benson, St. Cloud; Joe Kotok, Agassiz refuge manager; Kim Lang, Sanborn; and Kathy Walsh, Greenbush.

Tennis Team Wins Northwest Title

Winning has become habit-forming for the Thief River Falls boys high school tennis team. Coach Whitey Olson's Prowlers won their fourth straight decision Thursday, this time taking championship honors in the annual Northwest Quadrangular held at East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls accumulated 14 points, while Bemidji had 11, East Grand Forks 9, and Crookston 8.

After starting the 1987 with a 1-3 dual meet record, Thief River Falls has been on a winning streak. The Prowlers won the East Grand Forks Invitational April 21 to start the ball rolling. Thief River Falls then collected matching 6-1 dual meet victories over Mahnomen-Waubun and Detroit Lakes before winning again in a multiple-team outing Thursday.

It was the 22nd annual Northwest meet, begun in 1966 as the Northwest Conference meet. The event was maintained after the demise of the conference in 1982, with only former league member Fergus Falls no longer taking part.

Crookston was the defending champion, but no team has repeated as the title winner since Thief River Falls won four straight crowns from 1978-81. Bemidji won four straight before that. The 1981 crown was the last for the Prowlers until Thursday's title-winning effort.

Individually, Thief River Falls had first place finishes from Bret Haugen at No. 1 singles; Grant Larson at No. 3 singles; Jay Opdahl and Kevin Holmes at No. 2 doubles; and from Troy Peterson and Tom Brouse at No. 3 doubles.

Other winners included Rick Osmundson of Bemidji at No. 2 singles; Rob Sakkinen and Jerry Campos of East Grand Forks at No. 1 doubles; and from Jon Olson of Crookston at No. 4 singles.

Thief River Falls, after playing the entire April schedule on the road, will finally make its first home appearance Tuesday when the Prowlers host Bemidji at 3:30 p.m. The annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational is scheduled Thursday starting at 9 a.m.

Prowlers Beat Moorhead, Lose To Minot

First-year baseball coach Tracey Wensloff watched two different Thief River Falls teams in action Saturday at the four-team Moorhead Invitational high school baseball tournament as the Prowlers opened with an impressive 4-2 win over the host Spuds, but then fell apart in a 13-3 second-game loss to Minot, ND.

"We went from an absolute high to an absolute low," said Wensloff. "But overall, I guess I was pretty satisfied with what we did. We got the game we wanted."

Chris Nelson turned in a two-hit pitching performance in the opener, surrendering two first inning runs before throwing six shutout frames against Moorhead. Thief River Falls tied it quickly when Joel Swanson hit a two-run second inning home run, went ahead on an RBI single by Tom Knoff in the third, and wrapped it up on an RBI double by Kory Joppru in the seventh.

The Prowlers had five hits and two errors in the opener as Nelson walked only two and struck out seven. Knoff was 2-for-2.

Minot took advantage of 10 walks issued by three Thief River Falls pitchers in the second-game win. The winners were out-hit 8-6 and had three of the game's four errors, but still had a six-run second inning and a four-run fourth to win on a ten-run rule decision.

Knoff was the losing pitcher. He didn't make it out of the second inning. Joppru and Dean DuChamp also saw mound duty. Chris Bjorgaard and Joppru were 2-for-3 at the plate.

Thief River Falls is 4-1 for the year.

Pioneers Win Invitational

Host Northland won its own four-team, round-robin women's slow pitch softball tournament Saturday by sweeping Rainy River 14-7, Vermilion 19-4 and the University of Minnesota-Crookston 16-8.

A 19-0, 19-9 doubleheader sweep over Rainy River Friday afternoon in a Minnesota Community College Conference match-up gave coach Patty Chiodo's Pioneers five wins in two days and hiked their overall season record to 12-5.

"They played very well," reported Chiodo. "They played very consistent. It was a team effort. I was pretty proud of them."

Saturday's tournament started with an 11 a.m. doubleheader as Vermilion beat UMC 12-2 and Northland doubled Rainy River 14-7 as Janelle Lorsung went 3-for-4 at the plate with a triple, and Shari Larson contributed two singles.

In the 1 p.m. second round, UMC out-scored Rainy River 23-11 while Northland stopped Vermilion 19-4 as Becky Knutson hit a grand slam home run; Larson homered, doubled and singled; Tricia Armstrong homered and added two singles; Lorsung homered and singled; and Connie Geatz added a pair of singles.

Round 3 games at 3 p.m. saw Rainy River handle Vermilion 22-2 while Northland defeated UMC 16-8. Lorsung homered and had three singles in that one; Knutson tripled and singled; Leslie Grisanti had three singles; while Geatz, Cheri Diehl, Sheila Jaeger and Elaine Hanson all had two singles.

Northland had an easy time of it in the Friday doubleheader win over Rainy River. Hanson and Annette Kofstad both homered and hit two singles in the 19-0 first-game rout, while Armstrong had a double and two singles, Lorsung tripled an singled, and Larson had a pair of singles.

Armstrong collected four singles in the 19-9 second-game victory. Diehl had a triple and two singles, Lorsung wound up with three singles, and Larson tripled and singled.

Despite the low point total, Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer figured the Prowlers managed to hold their own on an individual basis in several events. "I was pretty impressed with how we did," he said, giving special recognition to Christy Puetz with a third in a close 1-2-3 finish in the 400 meters, and to Cindy Kruta with a strong leg on a 300 meter low hurdle relay where she turned in the second fastest time of the day in the event.

"It was a good meet for us," reported Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson after the Prowlers' highest point production of the 1987 season. "We had a lot of personal bests."

Thief River Falls' Paul Brandt was a winner in the 100 meter dash in 11.69 and had a personal-best 23.5 for a second place in the 200.

The Prowlers also had personal-best efforts from Scott Grove in the 400, Jeremy Sisler in both the 1600 and 3200, the 4-by-100 relay (Brandt, Paul Kezar, Rick Looker, Brian Christianson), and the 4-by-400 relay (Grove, Christianson, Luke Soine, Kyle Kisch).

Northland Drops Doubleheader Games To Itasca On Sunday

Itasca defeated Northland 12-7 and 10-2 Sunday in a Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division baseball doubleheader at Grand Rapids.

Northland led 7-4 with two out and nobody on base in the bottom of the fifth inning in Game 1 before a streak of bad luck struck the Pioneers. The Vikings loaded the bases on an error, a fly ball single that was lost in the outfield sun, and on a sharp two-hop drive that struck an umpire. Moments later a two-run single and a home run put Itasca ahead 10-7.

Grant Grabanski was 3-for-4 at the plate in the opener for the Pioneers, including a school-record sixth home run. Joe Blankenfeld had two doubles as the Pioneers matched the Vikings' 10-hit total. Northland had five errors; Itasca had four. Losing pitcher was Tim Borgen, the winner was Warren Johnson.

Itasca struck for five runs in the first inning of the nightcap, three of them unearned, en route to the doubleheader sweep.

The Vikings doubled the Pioneers 12-6 in the base hit department in Game 2 as Tony Boyce picked up the pitching win. Deon Schmidt took the loss, going five innings before giving way to Dan Cwikla. Northland had three errors; Itasca had two.

"We slipped backwards in the second game," mentioned Northland coach Rick Nelson.

TRF Will Host Holiday High School Hockey Tournament

Mike Lundgren Sports Editor

Thief River Falls will host a four-team invitational high school hockey tournament during the 1987-88 season featuring Aurora-Hoyt Lakes, Fergus Falls, St. Cloud Apollo, and the host Prowlers.

It'll be a three-day, round-robin format as each team plays the other three opponents in a pre-set fashion. Doubleheader games will be played Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 28, 29 and 30, at 6 and 8:30 p.m.

Monday match-ups feature Aurora-Hoyt Lakes vs. Fergus Falls at 6 p.m. and St. Cloud Apollo vs. Thief River Falls at 8:30. Tuesday games include Apollo vs. Fergus Falls at 6 p.m. and Aurora-Hoyt Lakes vs. Apollo at 6 p.m. and Fergus Falls vs. Thief River Falls at 8:30.

Thief River Falls head hockey coach Wendell Grand officially announced the tournament plans Friday following Thursday's vote by the Minnesota State High School League representative assembly that will allow high school hockey teams to play two more games per season.

The assembly's 89 delegates, meeting in St. Louis Park, took the action in voting on 15 amendments recommended earlier. The delegates passed a regulation allowing an in-season hockey tournament to count as one game, putting hockey in line with other sports such as volleyball, basketball and baseball.

The hockey ruling allows teams to play as many as 19 regular season games, plus a tournament that does not exceed three games, meaning 22 possible games. Teams were previously limited to 20 games. Most observers figured the tournament-expanding proposal was going to pass a year ago and a number of teams scheduled tournaments and tournament appearances under that assumption, only to be forced to scratch those plans and scramble to fill their schedules.

Anticipating the passage of the proposal this time around, Grand worked on scheduling a tournament for next winter. The four-team format is a step. An eight-team tournament is a goal for the future. "We felt this was a reasonable way to start," said Grand.

Next year's Thief River Falls hockey schedule will have a distinctively different look. In addition to the tournament, which will bring new teams like Aurora-Hoyt Lakes and St. Cloud Apollo into the Thief River Falls Sports Arena, the Prowlers will also be hosting Duluth Cathedral for the first time on Wednesday, December 23, and will be entertaining Section 8 foe Alexandria on Saturday, January 16.

While hockey backers are excited about the additional in-season tournament, it presents a conflict locally because of the Prowlers' annual high school boys basketball tournament held during the holiday break. The basketball and hockey tournaments will be held on the very same dates — December 28, 29 and 30, 1987.

The eight-team basketball tournament field will include past performers Kennedy, Marshall County Central, Argyle, Fertile-Beltrami, Hallock, and Roseau, along with the Prowlers, of course, plus newcomer Alvarado-Oslo, replacing Middle River.

Thief River Falls girls will continue to play in a holiday tournament hosted by Warren.

Minnesota State High School Basketball League also made a key basketball decision last week when the 16 members of the MSHSL board of directors voted unanimously to drop the no foul-out rule, which had been used on an experimental basis for the past three seasons.

Minnesota was the only state utilizing the rule, which awards two free throws and possession of the ball to the opposing team when a player commits a foul above the limit. Beginning in 1987-88, the old five-fouls-and-you're-out rule will be in effect.

Opponents of the no foul-out rule contended it caused rougher action in games, creating an unfair advantage for key players and took strategy out of the game. Supporters contended that unlimited fouls helped schools with small enrollments and allowed star players to remain in the game.

TRF Tackles No. 1 Bemidji

A long-awaited draw for the Thief River Falls high school baseball team materializes today (Monday) when the Prowlers travel to Bemidji for a 4:30 game against the 7-0 Lumberjacks, the No. 1-rated Class AA team in the state.

Bemidji didn't lose any No. 1 votes last week after drilling Crookston 17-2 Tuesday and then blanking Roseau 14-0 Thursday. Tim Knudson ran his pitching record to 4-0 with four innings of two-hit work against Crookston, and homered in the process. Len Henry also homered in the Lumberjacks' 14-hit attack. They did even better at Roseau, banging out 17 hits as Knudson went 4-for-4 and Corey Boyer was 3-for-3. Boyer and Scott Eichstadt homered, while Tom Kuesel pitched a one-hit shutout.

Thief River Falls and Bemidji will meet again next week, a 2:30 p.m. match-up Tuesday, May 12, at the fairgrounds diamond here.

Health In The Long Run Is Scheduled Here Saturday

Fourth annual Health In The Long Run will be held Saturday, May 9, starting at 9:30 a.m. at the Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

The event will feature both a 10 kilometer (6.2 mile) and 2.1 mile course for walkers, joggers and runners. All finishers will receive an official race T-shirt and free refreshments at the finish line.

Trophies will be awarded to the first place male and female finishers in several age categories for each event. The 2.1 mile age categories are 7-under, 8-12, 13-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60-69, 70-over. The 10K age categories are 19-under, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50-over.

This year's event is being held the day before Mother's Day and special awards will be given to all mothers finishing either course. In addition, awards will be given to the fastest mother and grandmother in both races. There will also be an award for the fastest mother-child finishing together in the 10K event, and the fastest mother-son and mother-daughter finishing together in the 2.1 mile event.

East Grand Forks, Crookston and Marshall County Central-Middle River will join the host Prowlers in the boys' portion of the event. It'll be a triangular arrangement for the girls as East Grand Forks and Marshall County Central-Middle River join the Prowlers in a dwindling field.

It's the only home appearance of the 1987 season for the Thief River Falls boys and girls teams.

Baseball JV Splits Saturday Decisions

Thief River Falls lost a 12-2 game to Moorhead, but bounced back to edge Minot, ND 8-7 in 11 innings Saturday in the junior varsity portion of the four-team Moorhead Invitational high school baseball tournament.

Moorhead led just 3-2 going into the bottom of the fourth inning in Game 1, but came up with a seven-run inning to break it open. Moorhead had a 9-4 base hit edge and Thief River Falls was charged with five of the game's six errors. Jason Kempert was the losing pitcher.

Thief River Falls outlasted Minot in a 3½-hour second-game marathon, out-hitting the North Dakota team 17-7 in the process. Kempert was 4-for-6 at the plate, Hunter Boldt was 4-for-7, including the game-winning RBI in the bottom of the 11th, Jason Sauve went 3-for-4, and John Azure was 2-for-4.

Azure started on the mound in Game 2, going six innings. Boldt finished, pitching five innings of scoreless two-hit ball for the win.

"The kids showed a lot of character," reported Thief River Falls coach Dan Willoughby. "They were really tired, but they never gave up."

Thief River Falls junior varsity, 6-2 for the year, will be in Bemidji for a 4:30 p.m. game today (Monday) and will be in Thompson, ND for a 4 p.m. doubleheader Tuesday.

Northland Twinbill Erased By Rains

Rain washed out a scheduled Northland Community College vs. Bemidji State University baseball doubleheader Thursday in Thief River Falls.

The two teams completed their pregame warm-ups in a light rain and started play, but stopped in the midst of a stronger rain with Bemidji at bat in the top of the first inning.

There will be no make-up date for the games.

Northland is scheduled to host rival University of Minnesota-Crookston Wednesday in a 1 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division twinbill. The Pioneers swept the Trojans 16-4, 7-4 in a match-up of winless teams last week.

SARAH GREEN of Thief River Falls is a member of the softball team at Northwestern College in St. Paul.

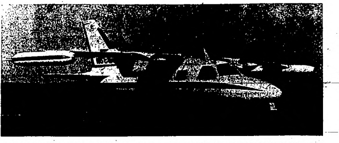
INSTRUMENT PANEL on the Mitsubishi turbo-prop aircraft recently received by the Thief River Falls AVTI is considered particularly useful for the aviation department's instructional program. Resembling the instrument panel of many commercial airliners but miniaturized to fit the available space, the unit can help familiarize students with instrumentation on that type of aircraft.



NEWEST ADDITION to the fleet of airplanes used for instructional purposes in the airframe and powerplant technology program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute is this Mitsubishi Marquise. The plane had a base price of $1,295,000 when it was built in 1968. After about 18 years of corporate use and accumulating 3,296 hours of flying time, the plane was purchased by the AVTI for $74,950.

AVTI Aviation Program Gets Mitsubishi Plane

Aviation program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute has added another airplane to its group of fixed wing aircraft and helicopters, according to Charles W. White, aviation director. The latest acquisition is a Mitsubishi Marquise, the first turbo-prop aircraft available to students at the AVTI.

Built in 1968 with an original list price of $1,295,000, the plane which arrived here last Monday was a corporate aircraft most recently used by JAMCO, International of Oklahoma City, OK, and purchased for $74,950 through a broker in Texas. The plane was flown from Texas to Thief River Falls and test flown after arrival here prior to acceptance.

White, who became director of the aviation program here in February, said the records show the plane had 3,296 hours of service during the 18 years since its manufacture. The Mitsubishi company has since been acquired by Beechcraft, he said, and that purchase adds to the stability of a parts supply for the plane.

According to a specifications and performance sheet on the aircraft, it has a gross weight of 7,650 pounds empty with a useful load, of 3,975 pounds. It carries 404 gallons of jet fuel and has a range of 1,395 miles at recommended power. Its service ceiling is 29,750 feet. Take-off distance (sea level, no wind, standard day) requires a ground run of 1,825 feet, increasing to 2,170 feet to clear a 50-foot obstacle.

Prior to getting the turbo-prop plane, the aviation department had two Cessna 150L models, a Cessna 1-19, 210 and 310A, Beech K-35 Bonanza, Piper PA25 Pawnee (sprayer) UH-1B Bell helicopter, three Hughes 269A helicopters and four Hiller H-23 helicopters. The school also has a number of engines including a jet engine.

Enrollment at the school is now up to 130 students with 60 more applications for fall enrollment, White said. While previous enrollment has been permitted at virtually any time, plans are to adopt a quarterly enrollment system to create greater instructional uniformity and facilitate movement of graduates into the second half of a four-year program at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. The local AVTI is one of only two schools in the nation which has such an arrangement with a four-year program.

White is a native of Connecticut where he was born and raised at Ridgefield. He joined the Coast Guard in 1970 and served for 10 years as an aviation machinist mate, performing all aspects of maintenance on several models of helicopters. From 1980 to 1985 he was an instructor for Rice Aviation, teaching classes of up to 54 students in aircraft maintenance. He also developed curriculum material and coordinated an audio visual library.

AVIATION DIRECTOR at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute is Charles W. White who began work here in February after moving from Texas where he was employed by Rice Aviation. White supervises the department which has 130 students at the present time and a list of 60 to enroll next fall. The local AVTI is one of only two schools in the nation which has an agreement with a four-year institution for transfer of students to complete a four-year degree. The AVTI here offers transfer to the University of North Dakota aviation program.

From 1985 until accepting the position in Thief River Falls he was director of training for Rice Aviation, supervising 13 instructors, clerical and-building-maintenance-staff.

White has an associate of arts degree in business administration from San Jacinto college in Houston, TX, in 1983 and a bachelor of science in technology degree from the University of Houston, TX, in 1985. He and his wife Kathy, a native of Florida, have an 11-year-old daughter, Jennifer, who is a student at Franklin middle school.

Lions Eye Bank At University Collects 643 Eyes

Minnesota Lions Eye Bank at the University of Minnesota helped collect a record number of corneas for transplant in the United States and Canada in 1986, according to figures released by the Eye Bank Association of America (EBAA).

Last year the 103 eye banks in the United States and Canada supplied 31,340 corneas for transplant to help restore sight, the EBAA reported. In addition, 29,089 eyes and corneas (the clear surface at the front of the eye) were used for research and teaching. Another 7,387 corneas were provided for epikeratophakia, a surgical procedure that corrects refractive errors for patients with high degrees of vision loss.

Of the 643 eyes collected last year by the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank, 238 were used in transplants and 405 were used for teaching and research. "We are very pleased with the local and national trends," said Susan M. Rogers, executive director of the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank. "I feel it is due to the generosity of the next-of-kin donors and the wonderful support from the Minnesota Lions, the state patrol and all of our certified enucleators (people trained to remove eyes and corneas from corpses)."

The cornea is the most commonly transplanted human tissue. Each year, more than 30,000 Americans and hundreds of thousands of others worldwide are believed to suffer from corneal blindness, a condition comparable to seeing through steamed glasses. With a 90 per cent success rate in saving the eye and improving vision, transplants have been successful on patients ranging from a nine-day-old infant to a 103-year-old man.

Not all donated eyes can be used for transplant. A donor's medical history or the cornea's degeneration may make a cornea unsuitable for surgery. All eyes not used for transplant are used for research and teaching in such areas as diabetes, glaucoma and retinal disease.

"The number of eye donations in 1986 was a 22 per cent increase over the previous high collected in 1985," said Dr. Jay H. Krachmer, EBAA chair. "However, despite this progress, between 3,500 and 5,000 Americans are still waiting for transplants because of a shortage of donations."

The EBAA, established in 1961 by the American Academy of Ophthalmology, is a non-profit organization of 87 eye banks in the United States and Canada. It is the recognized representative of eye banking quality control and professional development programs, government activity and public and professional media relations.

Donor cards and other information on corneal transplants and eye banking are available through the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank by calling (612) 625-5159.

David Altepeter, Gary Tunheim Get Army Orientation

Minnesota army national guard recruits David Altepeter and Gary Tunheim of Thief River Falls got a small taste of military life when they attended a basic training orientation course (BTOC) at Camp Ripley April 24-26. Nearly 200 young Minneostans attended this two-day course.

BTOC, which is run by the Minnesota military academy, was established in the mid-1970's to reduce the number of guard recruits who fail to complete regular army basic training. This program familiarizes young citizen-soldiers with military procedures, drill and ceremonies, and physical training. BTOC has helped thousands of Minnesota army national guard recruits successfully complete basic training and return to their home units where they help the guard carry out its dual mission of service to the state at the call of the governor and service to the nation in time of emergency.

Wheat Growers Comment About CCC Proposals

Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers has submitted comment to the USDA on the Commodity Credit corporation's (CCC) proposal to include incentives for clean grain in their premium and discount schedules.

According to Minnesota Wheat Growers president Gordon Sonstelie of Winger, the Commodity Credit corporation is unique among grain buying entities in the United States, as it is the nation's largest grain buyer, and the grain it purchases is often stored more than two years. "Therefore," says Sonstelie, "the CCC is not only interested in the marketability of the grain it purchases, but also that this grain retains its value in storage."

In its comments to the USDA, the MAWG expressed its support for efforts to maintain the quality of wheat delivered to the Commodity Credit corporation, indicating that this will assist in maintaining the integrity of quality grain throughout the system, thereby helping to assure quality supplies for the domestic market and improving the United States' competitive position in the international marketplace.

The Wheat Growers expressed concern, however, that "any adjustments in the schedules not place undue financial burdens on wheat producers, or otherwise result in major disruptions in the market," and although changes may be desirable, "establishment of discount schedules for factors such as protein content should be considered carefully."

The USDA will be assembling a report of the results of the public comments received from the Wheat Growers and other organizations on this issue to be submitted to Congress on May 10. Congress will then consider whether a change in the schedule is warranted and feasible.

Initiative Fund Awards Grant To Aid Conservation

Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund has awarded a $23,930 grant to a project which will provide environmental education in-service training and assistance to classroom teachers.

The project is being managed by The International Coalition for Land and Water Stewardship in the Red River Basin, with cooperation from the Agassiz Environmental Education council, and the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon sanctuary.

A resource person will be hired to provide in-service workshops to teaching staffs in Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Norman counties. Elementary teachers in these counties are invited to attend a day-long in-service workshop to be held at or near their school and scheduled at their convenience. Optional graduate credit may be available through local universities.

Participants will receive a wide variety of environmental education material and information about school lyceums and field trip opportunities. A scope and sequence planning process will be used to integrate environmental education into every elementary grade level and subject area.

The in-service instructor will be available throughout the year to provide ongoing help in planning field experiences, locating resource persons for school lyceums, finding audio-visual materials and portable educational equipment. He or she will also offer an additional in-service session or help in planning a follow-up assignment for those who want graduate credit.

Participating schools will receive information about, Project Wild, Project Learning Tree, Ag-Stravaganza, Conservation For Children, Roadsides Are For Wildlife, energy education materials from NSP, Our Great Lakes, Connection, DNR Mini Units, materials from the Minnesota Zoo, Acid Rain foundation, Science Museum of Minnesota, Minnesota Pollution Control agency and others.

A computerized water resource management simulator being developed by the coalition with help from the Lower Red River watershed management board and the North Dakota joint water resources board and a portable ground water model will be demonstrated and will be available for use in the classroom. For more information or to schedule an in-service day, contact Lance Yohe of The International Coalition at 218-233-0292, or Jay Newell in Warren at 218-745-5663.

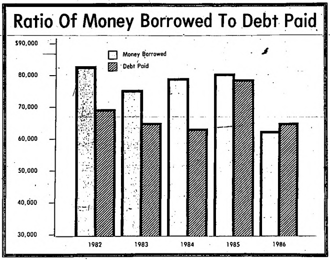
Farm Return To Capital And Labor Improves



Despite reduction in tillable acres per farm and small grain yields on those acres, and the lowest crop prices in several years, farmers in the Northwestern Minnesota farm management program had a slight increase in return to capital and family labor from 1985 to 1986. This unusual circumstance was revealed in a summary report prepared by Verne Spengler, coordinator of the program.

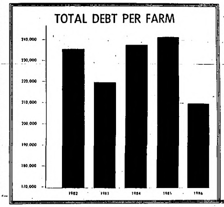
According to records analyzed for a 13-county area, return to capital and family labor in 1986 averaged $16,301 in comparison with $14,656 in 1985. This was the highest figure in the last five years which also included $15,953 in 1984, $12,431 in 1983 and $5,049 in 1982.

Analysis of the local area of Pennington, Red Lake and eastern Marshall counties reflects recovery from disastrous years but not to the level indicated for the 13-county area. For three of the past five years the return to capital and family labor has been a minus figure.

In 1982 farmers in the management program in Pennington, Red Lake and eastern Marshall counties had a minus return of $16,253. In 1983 the loss was $7,284 and in 1984 was $551. Only last year did the return show on the plus side at $6,054 and in 1986 that figure increased to $8,929.

Spengler pointed out several reasons why the slight improvement in earnings showed up in the report despite the negative factors of lower yields, lower prices and smaller acreages.

"There were increased government program payments in 1986 which averaged $25,130 per farm," he said. "While crop prices were down, there were improved prices and earnings from livestock enterprises such as hogs, beef and sheep and, to a lesser extent, from dairy.



"Farmers also had reduced input costs on the average for fuel, feed, fertilizer, chemicals and land rent," Spengler added. "Although small grain yields were down, yields for row crops were generally excellent. And one can't overlook a reduction in

ORIGINAL PAINTINGS, a number of which have been copied in limited edition prints, create a striking corner in the living room of the Marv Espe log home south of Salol in Roseau county. The Roseau area native who spent a dozen years in the art department of Josten's in Owatonna has now been back in the area for about 10 years, developing his artistic talent and sharing it with others. The two large paintings in the center and right-center portion of the above photo are the first in Espe's "Country Kids" series.

Marv Espe Develops As Artist Of The Northland

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Until a fourth grade teacher looked at his art projects in the Wannaska elementary school and exclaimed, "Hey, you're good!", Marv Espe was a self-confessed failure in school. But that spark of encouragement from Mrs. Brandt kindled a fire in a young boy which is burning ever more brightly in the man, now one of the area's more recognized artists.

Marv Espe, one of seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Espe, was raised on the family farm in the general area of what is now Hayes Lake State park. Although the family — like many others in the area — had little more than a meager living, Marv's parents recognized his talent and interest and scraped together about $200 for a correspondence course in art which carried him through his high school years.

Those two things — his teacher's and parents' recognition of his abilities — keyed Espe's interest in a artistic field which is just now beginning to unfold into full bloom. While the interest and enthusiasm have always been there, decisions had to be made along the line which brought Marv and his wife, the former Myrna Peterson of Gatzke, to where they are today.

Where they are is in a substantial log house in a picturesque setting along County Road 13 six miles south of Salol. Between morning and evening routes as a school bus driver — a job he has held for the past nine years — he is working himself more and more into the career of a full-time professional artist. And with the daily application of his skills the quality of his work continues to improve.

Development of technique which is somewhat unusual and has been successful for him is one key to his growth as an artist. He will reveal some of his techniques in pen and ink drawings and acrylic painting in Thief River Falls this weekend. For three hours Friday night he will teach an introduction to pen and ink drawing. Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. he will instruct artists in his acrylic technique. The classes are sponsored by the Northern Prairie Artists association and are filled through advance registration.

Workshop sessions here are among many Espe conducts throughout Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska. This June he will have workshops at Pierre, SD; Bellevue, Gothenburg and Lincoln, NE; and Fort Ransom, ND. He will also show his works at the West Hills art center in Owatonna during that month.

Teaching is not a new field for Espe. Following his graduation from Roseau high school in 1958, he attended the teacher training program in Thief River Falls and was in the next to the last class of Miss Bernice Troumbley's one-year teacher preparation program.

With the provisional certificate to teach elementary school, Marv taught in the Holt elementary school for three years. After a summer of study at the Minneapolis School of Art, he enrolled at Bemidji state university. On Dec. 22, 1962, he was married to Myrna and in the fall of 1963 he took a teaching job at the Viking elementary school which he held for two years.

From Viking he hopped to Owatonna where he found employment at Josten's in the commercial art department. He worked there for more than 12 years, primarily in the design and drawing of greeting cards, logos and letterheads and high school graduation announcements.

While at Josten's, he met Mathilda Nordtvedt, the wife of a pastor at Faribault, and illustrated in watercolor a small book she had written. She told him of a need for good illustrators in Christian publishing and encouraged him to pursue that field. He followed her suggestion and built a good clientele in the publishing area, to the extent that it now provides about a third of his income from art.

Dating back to 1974 and 1975 in some cases, he has been an illustrator for the Church of the Nazarene, Kansas City, MO; Wesleyan church, Marion, IN; Mennonite Publishing House, Scottsdale, PA; and Child Evangelism Fellowship, Warrenton, MO. He has done 179 illustrations for the Salvation Army headquartered in New York City and last year did work for "Decision" magazine published by the Billy Graham organization. The illustrations range from black and white line drawings to full color work.

During the summer of 1961 Marv studied at the American Academy of Art in Chicago, IL, and in 1962 at the Minneapolis School of Art, learning fine and commercial art techniques at both schools. He noticed that his skills improved each summer as he worked steadily but declined during the winter while he was teaching school. He knew he had to be drawing every day to improve his skills.

Espe [credi]ts other artists at Josten's with improvement of his pen and ink technique. He said they were excellent artists who were willing to share what they knew — a situation

ILLUSTRATING for Christian publishing companies still provides about a third of artist Marv Espe's income from art. He began doing illustrating more than a dozen years ago and has done a number of pen and ink and color illustrations for Christian publications, including 179 drawings for the Salvation Army in New York City.

Bicycle Safety Course Saturday At Sports Arena

Bicycle safety course will be sponsored by the Thief River Falls police department and Pepsi-Cola Bottling company of Thief River Falls Saturday from 8 a.m. until all participants have been through the program at the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Assisting with the safety course will be members of the Minnesota state patrol and the Thief River Falls Kiwanis club. There is no charge for youngsters to participate and all will be eligible for a drawing for a 10-speed bicycle donated by Pepsi-Cola Bottling company, which will also provide free Pepsi during the event.

All participants will be required to take a short written test (questions are read to young entrants), a riding skills test and bike safety inspection. Other prizes will be donated by local organizations and businesses.

The police department notes that there is no licensing of bicycles by the city of Thief River Falls. State licensing is available through the license bureau office in the courthouse for a fee. The three-year licenses are intended primarily to assist in identification and recovery of stolen bicycles.

Bicycle owners are encouraged by the police department to record the make, color and serial number of their bicycles so that information can be provided if bicycles are lost or stolen. The department presently has a number of bicycles for which no theft reports have been received and owners are unknown.

Gov. Rudy Perpich has proclaimed the first week of May to be state bicycle week, and he encourages adherence to traffic laws, safe bicycle and motor vehicle driving practices and recognition of the needs of bicyclists in education and enforcement programs.

"I urge all Minnesotans to take decisive action which will help the bicycle fulfill its potential in contributing to the health, safety and welfare of all citizens," the governor said.

Road Restrictions In Pennington Co. Remain In Effect

While roads across the state may be moving off load limits imposed during the spring thaw today, County Engineer Wayne Olson said roads in Pennington county will be kept on the spring load limits.

Olson said while many roads in the state may be ready, frost boils on roads in Pennington county have not healed and any additional load limit would only do more damage. He said he expects the road restrictions in Pennington county will be lifted on Monday.

Bales Of Plastic Catch Fire At Future Fuel, Inc.

A Special Day Set Aside In Honor Of Mothers

Some mothers would argue that every day should be Mother's Day and perhaps rightfully so. Nonetheless, it is but once a year that we shower our mothers with cards, flowers and gifts as tokens of our appreciation for all they are and do.

Just how did we come to set apart a day to revere motherhood? The idea of officially honoring mothers may be less than 100 years old in the United States, but goes back centuries in other parts of the world. According to The World Book Encyclopedia, ancient civilizations — such as the Greeks, Assyrians and Romans — compared nature's creative powers with those of a mother, because they believed a mother is the source of life.

A day for honoring mothers was observed many years ago in England, and in Yugoslavia. In the United States, people began holding their own celebrations in honor of their mothers, but it was Julia Ward Howe in 1872 who made the first known suggestion for an official Mother's Day.

In 1907, Anna Jarvis of Graphton, WV, and Philadelphia, PA, began a campaign for a nationwide observance of Mother's Day. By 1912, a delegate from her church introduced a resolution naming her the founder of Mother's Day and the second Sunday in May as the day of observance.

Finally, on May 19, 1914, President Woodrow Wilson signed a joint resolution of Congress recommending the government's recognition of Mother's Day. This led to the proclamation in 1915 of the national observance of Mother's Day each spring.

This Mother's Day (Sunday), why not take time out to recognize the vital roles mothers play in our lives. There is perhaps no group more deserving of our appreciation.

TRF Arts Council Picks Ladwig As Artist Of Month

This month's artist of the month, sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council, is Cathy Ladwig of Roseau.

Cathy started drawing with a pencil when she was quite small. The painting started later in junior high art classes. A love of horses really got Cathy involved in art. "I would draw every horse picture I could get my hands on. In third and fourth grade I can remember classmates that would beg me to draw a horse on a piece of newsprint paper for them."

Although she doesn't actually have a studio at this time, she tries to complete as much art work as possible. Not having the space to work or the proper lighting makes painting more difficult. However, she still spends quite a bit of time working with her oil paintings, often spending as much as 35-40 hours on each individual piece.

"Once I get started I can't quit," was Cathy's comment. "I often times end up redoing a lot on them if there is something that just doesn't look right to me."

Cathy's inspiration comes from any type of picture publication. She places a special interest in wildlife and horse magazines. Personal photographs also help to inspire ideas for paintings.

In the future, Cathy would like to try sculpturing and pottery. She has done some of this in the past, but would like to develop her skills more. Her involvement with art has caused her to notice the details in everything. More attention is placed on the appearance of an object with more than just an artist's point of view.

Cathy's paintings will be on display at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls throughout the month of May.

CATHY LADWIG of Roseau has been named artist of the month by the Thief River Falls community arts council. Her work will be on display at the library for the month of May.

Thursday Has Been Declared National Day Of Prayer

Thursday, May 7, is National Day of Prayer in Minnesota and across the nation. Sparked by a presidential proclamation and special observances in Washington, the event is being supported locally by churches and proclamations. This year's National Day of Prayer marks the 35th consecutive observance as a special day.

President Reagan has noted that national days of prayer have been observed officially and unofficially since the first one was declared by the Continental Congress in 1775. "Let us join then on this special day as people of many faiths to petition God to show us His mercy and love to heal our weariness and uphold our hope, that we might live ever mindful of His justice and thankful for His blessing," said the President.

Ministries represented on the National Day of Prayer committee include the Salvation Army, World Vision, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Campus Crusade for Christ, Youth With a Mission, United Prayer Ministries, Change the World Ministries and the International Prayer Ministry and Support For Action.

Rev. Lowenberg To Be Guest Speaker At Assembly Of God

Reverend Doug Lowenberg will be guest speaker at the Assembly of God church, 315 North Duluth Ave., Thief River Falls on Sunday night, May 10, 7 p.m. according to Reverend Dan Cole, pastor.

Doug and his wife Corrine are newly appointed Assemblies of God missionaries to Burkina Faso (formerly Upper Volta), West Africa, where they will be ministering among the Muslim population.

Burkina Faso, about the size of Colorado, has a population of nearly seven million people. Most of the people are animists (who worship the spirit world and fetishes), but a large number practice Islam.

The 900 million Muslims of the world comprise 25 per cent of all unreached peoples; yet, only one per cent of all evangelical missionaries are attempting to minister to them. The Center for Ministry to Muslims (CMM) was founded by the Ussemblies of God division of foreign missions in recent years to provide a coordinated worldwide missions effort to reach Muslims scattered around the world. Working together in CMM outreach are missionaries (like the Lowenbergs), national church evangelists and pastors, the International Correspondence Institute, and Assemblies of God Bible schools at home and abroad.

About their future ministry, Mr. Lowenberg comments, "Corrine and I have developed an interest and burden for sharing the gospel with Muslims as a result of our participation in personal evangelism efforts among Muslims in Detroit, MI, and in the countries of Morocco, Spain, Malaysia, and India."

Prior to missionary appointment, Mr. Lowenberg was a member of the missions faculty at North Central Bible College in Minneapolis. He has served as sponsor of several student missions teams who ministered on short-term trips in Central American, Asia, Africa, and Europe.

Mr. Lowenberg holds the master of arts degree in theology from Bethel Theological seminary in St. Paul and Mrs. Lowenberg is a graduate of Evangel college, Springfield, MO.

The Lowenbergs have one daughter, Julia Renee.

Think heart disease only affects the elderly? Think again. Each year almost 200,000 Americans under age 65 die of cardiovascular diseases, according to the American Heart association.

Seek Entries For Miss TRF Pageant Set This Summer

Candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls scholarship pageant are being recruited by the Thief River Falls Women of Today chapter, sponsor for the event this year. Tentative date for the pageant this year is Saturday, August 1.

Eligible to compete are girls between the ages of 17 and 25 (inclusive) who have never been married and are U.S. citizens.

"We want to be as positive as we can about encouraging girls to take part in the program," stated Arlene Novak, pageant chairman. "We encourage all eligible girls who are interested to enter and we hope that parents, other family members and friends will encourage and support them to give that extra boost they may need."

Novak noted that the Miss America program for which the local pageant is a preliminary has awarded more scholarships to young women than any other organization in the world.

"Contestants in the Miss Thief River Falls pageant not only have an opportunity to win a $750 scholarship and advance to the Miss Minnesota pageant in 1988," Novak said, "but all who take part gain self confidence, poise and develop stage personality as well as their special talents."

The Women of Today continue sponsorship of the pageant because they don't want to see a worthwhile tradition of local pageants come to an end. "We have seen the positive changes in participants in the program, often among those who did not win the crown," Novak added, "and believe the experience should continue to be available to young women from the community."

Area businesses as well as civic, social and service organizations are encouraged to enter and sponsor their own candidates or to offer sponsorship of interested girls who have no sponsors. The community has always responded previously and such support has been appreciated by the sponsoring organization and the candidates.

An informational meeting for girls considering pageant entry will be conducted June 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the Crossroads Center (basement of the former Carnegie public library at First and Main). Pepsi-Cola company will provide refreshments and comments will be given by Debbie Erickson, Miss Thief River Falls of 1986. A video tape of last year's pageant will also be shown.

Persons with questions about the local pageant or Miss America program are invited to call Arlene Novak at 964-5346, Betty Srnsky at 681-1648 or Jennifer Clow at 681-7462.

Wildlife Meeting At Grygla Prompts Good Discussion

About 20 people participated in a good question and answer session and an exchange of ideas at the annual wildlife meeting held Tuesday evening, April 28, under sponsorship of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district, according to Cheryl Sistad, district secretary-manager. She provided the following report: Gerald Maertens and Paul Telander, Thief Lake wildlife management area — It is "business as usual," at the refuge. Items discussed included the shearing of 300 to 500 acres northeast of Thief Lake. This land will be for willow regeneration with some prescribed burning. About $100,000 has been received through the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program for sharptail and moose habitat. It was noted this has been a good spring for burning with plans to complete burning this week.

Concerns were brought up about weed problems. The refuge takes care of this when it is brought to their attention. It was noted that townships should also contact the state department of transportation on problem areas.

Ron Bell, Agassiz national wildlife refuge — Bell used a map of the refuge area to point out construction projects, which included a 2.9 mile ditch clean-out on the east boundary, improvements to Tamarac Pool, the Thief River east dike and a new culvert between Kelly Pool and Pool 21. Some work was done in Branch 30 by the county and new pipes were installed in the diversion north of the old goose pen which had washed out.

Bell stated the refuge has no money for construction this year and funding doesn't look much better for fiscal year 1988.

Bell also discussed the potential restoration of Elm Lake which is currently under appeal. He stated they also had a good spring for prescribed burning. They have burned about 7,000 to 8,000 acres this year compared to 3,000 last year. This year there were 1,500 deer and 250 moose counted in the refuge. There will probably be fewer doe permits issued in the refuge deer hunt this year.

The spring run-off was down this year resulting in one-third of the pool area being low. The other two-thirds are O.K. for now, but may not stay. Last year 600 geese were produced in the refuge, their best production year.

Gordon Forester, area game manager — Forester discussed controlled burning, food plots and a foot bridge across CD-27 for hunter access. He also noted they have received funding from the Deer Hunters association for fire breaks and will get another $4,000 for shearing on management units. Forester stated they are also using RIM funds for sharptail and moose habitat improvements. There has been no report of beaver damage yet.

Lowell Enerson, Red Lake watershed district — Enerson showed a number of overlays of the Red Lake watershed district that showed water quality testing sites, rain gauge sites, snow survey sites, stream gauge sites and flood control by water retention. Other potential sites were also discussed.

Hillary Stoltman, Grygla-Fourtown Sportsman Club — Stoltman discussed snowmobile trails and cabins and also trout planting in area ponds.

Good discussions were had by a half dozen farmers and other interested persons during the meeting and over coffee. Thief Lake refuge personnel invited the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district board to tour the refuge to view their projects, which the board hopes to do in the next month or two.

Later in the evening Delray Larson, Marshall county commissioner, also joined the district board to discuss the soil loss limits ordinance and comprehensive water quality planning concerns.

The district board was pleased with the good discussions and orderly procedures followed at the meeting. The annual wildlife meeting is intended to keep the lines of communication open between agency personnel and neighboring landowners.

PROWLER PRESS STARTS UP. Rachael Ness, Rodolfo Elvir and Jennifer Tweet were busy Tuesday night at The Times putting together a school newspaper for Lincoln high school. Many years have passed since the last publication of the school newspaper which, by the way, was called the "Lincoln Log." These three students along with their advisor Gretchen Belto have been instrumental in starting the school paper.

Florian Park To Open May 15 For Full Activities

Marshall County Florian park will open for the 1987 season on May 15 in conjunction with the opening of fishing season May 16.

Robert Dammann of Stephen is once again manager of the park. Diane Dammann will return as the maintenance worker and Janice Borowicz in the office.

Many improvements have been planned such as a large enclosed picnic shelter to be built as well as new swimming docks. Many hundred trees will be planted. The DNR has restocked the lake with walleyes, northerns and other species. Lifeguards are scheduled to start their duties on June 1 and work thru August 23. Swim lessons will be offered in July.

June 7 will be "free gate" day with the gates open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. and all cars admitted free. Activities include horseshoe, volleyball, softball, swimming, boating, fishing and paddle boating. The "Snack Shack" will also be open.

Campers may call the Florian park at 478-3658 to reserve campsites which are equipped with electricity and water, or picnic shelters at any time.

The park is located 11 miles east and one mile south of Stephen or one mile west and one mile south of Florian.

Booklet On Trees Available From Extension Office

A world without trees would be pretty grim, suggests the Pennington county extension service.

"Conservation Trees," a free, 24-page, full-color brochure offers basic information on using shade trees and windbreaks to save energy and attract songbirds and wildlife to the backyard.

The booklet also shows how to save trees during construction, how to manage a woodlot or tree plantation and how to save topsoil and help farm profits with shelterbelts.

"This will be especially interesting to youngsters who want to learn how trees help our environment and adults will appreciate it, too," says Mel Baughman, forester with the University of Minnesota's extension service.

Baughman is distributing 7,500 of the brochures for the National Arbor Day foundation of Nebraska City, NE. The brochure is available in Minnesota at county extension offices or from the department of natural resources (DNR), division of forestry.

The brochure tells how to obtain a free, six-month subscription to the foundation's official publication, "Arbor Day," plus a copy of "The Tree Book," which helps identify trees, discusses pollination requirements for fruit and nut trees, tells which trees are hardy for certain planting areas and how to plant privacy screens and windbreaks.

In its conservation trees program, the foundation encourages planting, managing and preserving trees for soil, energy, water and wildlife conservation.

Bicycle Safety Stressed In TRF Schools This Week

Grade schools in Thief River Falls were visited by law enforcement officials this week. These visits coincided with a push to increase awareness of bicycle safety rules.

Sgt. Jim Haugen, Police officer in Thief River Falls, said he visited the schools with State Patrol Officer Cliff Mattson and Jaycees Representative Kent Johnson. They stressed prescribed safety rules approved by the state. Haugen said the officers were also looking at bikes for safety problems and encouraging students to license their bikes.

In addition, the officers encouraged students and parents to have the children finger printed. Finger printing of children is being done in a nationwide effort to curb the numbers of missing children.

Haugen mentioned that there will also be a bike rodeo 8 a.m. Saturday at the Sports arena in Thief River Falls. At the event, a 10-speed bike will be given away. The bike, provided by Pepsi-Cola, was also taken to the schools for students to see.

Stangeland Gives Support To Plan For Wheat Use

U.S. Rep. Arlan Stangeland, in a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng, strongly urged the United States department of agriculture to release 27,500 bushels of number two or number three hard durum wheat for processing into pasta to help feed the hungry in Minnesota, a project recently proposed by the Rev. Clifford Deeton of the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council in Crookston.

Stangeland also set up a private meeting with Secretary Lyng to personally discuss the merits of this project in further efforts to win USDA approval.

"There is virtually no down side to this project," Stangeland said. "By converting surplus wheat to pasta, we produce a product for Minnesota's hungry with a greater shelf life, we help to reduce the huge wheat surplus currently held by the USDA, and we maintain employment levels at the processing plants that might otherwise be experiencing slowed levels of production."

If the wheat were released, a North Dakota pasta processing plant has agreed to process the pasta at cost. Once processed, the packages would be distributed by area vocational technical institutes with trucking programs.

"The USDA pays 30 cents a bushel to store this wheat each year," Stangeland continued. "Rev. Deeton's proposal would provide food to the foodshelves at a lower cost, it would reduce storage cost to the USDA and it would provide non-perishable food to hungry people in Minnesota and North Dakota. Rev. Deeton has my full support and I'll do whatever I can to gain USDA support."

Cost-Share Funds Still Available In Grygla Office

Time is running out to apply for state cost-share assistance to install conservation practices for this year. Final action on this year's allocation will be approved by the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD board on May 28.

At the present time, two field windbreaks and an erosion control structure have been approved for a total cost of about $890. There is still about $3,670 remaining in the cost share fund and if this money is not encumbered by May 28, it will be returned to the state.

"Allocation for fiscal year 1987-88 won't be received until next fall, so now is the time to apply for cost-share assistance if you have any improvements planned for this summer," notes Cheryl Sistad, district secretary-manager.

The state cost-share program will pay up to 75 per cent toward the costs of installing the following conservation practices: Erosion control structures, stripcropping, diversions, stormwater control systems, animal waste control systems, field windbreaks and critical area plantings.

Applications are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis and the program is open to individuals, groups or units of government. The projects are considered enduring in nature with a life expectancy of at least 10 years and these projects will be recorded on the land at the county recorders office.

"We have a map in our office showing high priority areas and this is where we concentrate our efforts to control erosion problems. If you would like more information, or would like to apply for funding, contact the district office in Grygla," Sistad said.

Body Posture And Mechanics Key To Lower Back Pain

Millions of Americans suffer from low back pain every year. While some back pain is the result of accidents and is unavoidable, the vast majority of back injuries are suffered as a result of poor posture and body mechanics and this back pain can be avoided if you will follow some simple rules and do some simple exercises.

The most important step to preventing low back pain is maintaining the normal flexibility of the back. This can be done with a few easy exercises done on a daily basis. Lie on your back and alternate bringing one knee to the chest at a time 10 times, and then both knees to the chest 10 times. Then stand up and bend backwards 10 times and bend to the side 10 times in each direction. These exercises, done for a few minutes each morning, will go a long way toward preventing back injuries.

The second most important step is to avoid postural stress. Prolonged sitting, standing and working in a round back position can make you extremely prone to injury. To prevent this you should attempt to sit and stand straight and periodically change your position and stretch your back.

The last step is to make sure to use good body mechanics, especially for lifting. When at all possible, lift with your legs rather than your back and hold whatever you're lifting close to your body. Always avoid lifting and twisting at the same time, as this is the type of activity that causes most back injuries. Face what you are lifting squarely, lift it, and then turn.

Perpich Receives Alumnus Of Year Award In Texas

Governor Rudy Perpich says that Minnesota's top high school graduation rate is a major reason that the state has the nation's second lowest incarceration rate. "Our investment in education has spared Minnesota costs in the area of corrections and welfare," Perpich said.

The governor's comments were made in a speech to the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges' commission on the future of community colleges in Dallas, TX, on April 24. While in Dallas, the governor received the 1987 alumnus of the year award from the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges (AACJC).

The alumnus of the year award is made annually to a former community college student who is making a major contribution at the national or international level. Previous recipients have included businessman H. Ross Perot, journalist Jim Lehrer, and former Michigan state university president John Hannah.

In his comments to the community college group, Perpich also praised Minnesota's post-secondary enrollment options program. "This program has proven to be an excellent way to introduce the possibility of higher education to students who never before felt they would have this opportunity," Perpich said.

Perpich also stressed the value of his community college experience at Hibbing community (then junior) college. "Because of my positive experiences in Hibbing and because of the impact education has had on my life, education has been central to the goals of my administration," Perpich said.

"Community colleges will help meet the education needs of a variety of people and thereby secure a future of prosperity for our people," he concluded.

Governor Perpich was nominated for the AACJC alumnus of the year award by Gerald Christenson, chancellor of the Minnesota community college system.

Espe Develops Northland Scenes In Paintings

which he has determined is somewhat of an obligation for artists. The idea has evolved into a sort of philosophy which he applies to his work.

"I feel an artist has a responsibility to the general public to use his or her gift as a means to help others in some way," he said. "I happen to want my work to give people insight into the things around them, to sharpen their interest, to find the extraordinary in the ordinary. I like for others to see things as I visualize them; for them to stop when they see one of my paintings and realize they are seeing something as they have never seen it before."

He is a firm believer that an artist has to paint subjects that are familiar. Marv draws much of his subject matter from his experiences on the farm and in the area where he lives. He often uses local people as sources of reference and models, taking photos of people, scenes and items to use for reference as he works.

"If I had to choose doing just one type of work in art it would have to be portraiture," he said. "It is a real challenge to do portraits. It helps immensely to get to know the person you are characterizing. It is much more difficult to work from photos of those who are deceased, as I sometimes have to do. I would much rather have the opportunity to visit with the subject for a few hours."

He also carries out his desire to teach by revealing much of what he has learned and developed himself over the years. There is no concern about educating the competition, so to speak. "There are really no secrets in art," he explained. "Some people do things that work better for them while others work differently. But if an artist can't keep ahead of the students he or she teaches, then probably he or she has stagnated and should take a good-hard look at personal development and progress."

Espe believes that more people can learn to draw than are drawing today. It probably helps to have some ability, he admits, but an interest which translates into practice, observation and time spent learning is also a major factor. Many people with artistic ability fail to develop it because they lack the interest to devote the time.

Since moving back to Roseau county in 1977 when they purchased the log home south of Salol, Espe has been building his art career. His first public plunge was at Crazy Days in Roseau when he set up an easel on a street corner by the J.C. Penney store and offered caricatures for $1 each.

"I was amazed at the interest," he said. "From nine in the morning until nine at night I turned out 90 drawings," he said. "The next day my arm was so sore I could scarcely move it. But the demand gave me enthusiasm and for a number of years I went to every show and gathering possible in the area, increasing the price but finding willing participants to pose and buy the drawings. Over the years I have done thousands of those drawings in several states."

Now he is concentrating more on developing his detail work and putting more time into his individual paintings and drawings. Most of his public art is done at Ducks Unlimited and Minnesota Deer Hunters association banquets where he creates acrylic paintings on site during the event and they are auctioned at the close of the meeting. He charges a minimum amount to the organization and splits the purchase price above that amount with the sponsoring group.

Espe also gives credit to his wife who he says is not only a strong supporter of his art but also his best critic. "It took me a long time to accept that critic role," he said, "but then I noticed that other people were agreeing with her or making the same comments, so I decided maybe I better do some listening." Myrna also does all the bookkeeping and helps with mat selection for framing.

For about the last four years Espe has been involved in the limited edition print business. He has now had about 10 of his works in full color copied on limited editions of 200 to 500 prints which he markets himself. His first series was entitled "Man's Hand in the Northland" and included six paintings on early days of farming, logging, trapping, blacksmithing and commercial fishing. The originals were commissioned and owned by Citizens State Bank in Roseau and are on display there.

Prints are available from Espe Studio, Route 2, Box 92, Roseau, MN 56751.

Espe has now produced the first two of a series of eight to 10 prints called "Kountry Kids." These depict children with a pair of draft horses and a young girl among a flock of chickens. The rest of the series will be completed over a several year period and all will feature farm children, primarily with farm animals. Persons interested in collecting the series will be able to purchase the same numbered print throughout. The paintings are done in Espe's special technique of pen and ink and acrylic.

"I work about a week to a week and one-half on the pen and ink work," he said, "creating a drawing that would be complete in itself. Then it takes me another several days to put in the color with acrylic paints. I am concentrating on slowing down my production to provide more detail and better quality paintings."

For the Roseau Arena Improvement association Espe created a large (24x21½) painting on the early days of hockey. The arena association had 1,000 prints made to sell as a fund-raiser. Two more paintings are planned in the future, depicting hockey in the 1950's and in current days. The initial painting was also reproduced on the cover of the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament program in 1986.

Espe said his sale of prints and originals now provide about an equal amount of his total sales. He had done quite a lot of commission work, including the large paintings at the Northwest Regional library meeting room in Thief River Falls, a 9x20 mural in the Wikstrom Telephone company building at Karlstad and an 8x16 mural at the Farm Credit Services (formerly PCA) building in Thief River Falls.

The Espes have a daughter Heidi, 22, who attends Apelier LeSueur art school in Excelsior and will marry one of her instructors, Jeff Larson, this fall; and a son Marty, 20, who is in his second year of the biology and chemistry pre-med program at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Marv's brothers include Glenn of Thief River Falls, Duane and Sheldon of Roseau, Milo of Warroad and Edgar of Owatonna. His sister is Mrs. Paul (Evadell) Tangquist of Thief River Falls.

What are the goals of this artist who has northwest Minnesota in his heart and on his paintings?

"I would like to spend one summer doing nothing but painting on location," he said. "I don't know where I would want that to be . . . . maybe just right around here. But I would like to do the work on site and not have to rely on photographs and memory."

Yes, Mrs. Brandt, you were more than a Wannaska teacher who brought her dog to school every day to sit next to the desk. You told a youngster struggling with his studies that he could do something well, and he believed you and learned to believe in himself. Those who appreciate realistic art thank you for helping Marv Espe turn the corner toward a career that many can share and enjoy.

Farm Return To Capital And Labor Improves In Area

interest rates which resulted in considerably lower interest expenses."

For the first time in many years, the average farm included in the program paid more on debt principal ($65,009) than was borrowed ($63,177). Total farm indebtedness on the average farm declined from $213,563 at the beginning of the year to $211,904 at the end of 1986.

Once again there was a wide range in earnings between the high 20 per cent and low 20 per cent of the farms participating in the program. Return to operator's labor and management for the high farms was $56,776 while for the low farms it was minus $27,578.

"The high profit farms carried more debt (an average of $290,399) than the average farm, paid more interest ($27,751 versus $16,942) and made capital improvements ($31,500 versus $16,164)," Spengler noted. "They also showed a substantial gain in net worth of $40,429.

"The low 20 per cent of the farms also carried more debt than the average at $219,615 but paid less interest ($14,073) and made fewer capital improvements ($12,160). They posted an average decline in net worth of $23,402 per farm."

Total cash farm sales averaged $149,322 per farm with crops making up 52 per cent of the sales, livestock 24 per cent, government payments 17 per cent and miscellaneous sales seven per cent. Non-farm income averaged $9,432 per farm, similar to 1985. Family living expense for those farms where complete personal records were kept averaged $22,800 — down three per cent from 1985.

Capital improvements in terms of machinery, land and building purchases continued to decline, averaging $16,164 per farm. The high return farms invested almost twice as much as the average, the low return farms less than half the average.

Owner's equity as a percentage of total assets owned remained at 44 per cent, the same figure as in 1985. Equity for the high return farms was 51 per cent and for the low return farms was up 49 per cent.

Although much below high yields recorded in 1985, the 1986 small grain yields were near the 10-year average. Corn yields were near record levels by contrast, averaging 83.5 bushels per acre. Soybeans at 34.4 bushels per acre exceeded the average wheat yield of 34.1 bushels for the first time. Sunflower yields of 13.9 hundredweight per acre were the highest since 1979.

Despite the high yield, sunflowers showed an average net loss of $27 per acre. Buckwheat growers averaged 370 pounds per acre and lost $43 per acre while oats producers averaged 50.3 bushels and lost $6 per acre.

Profitable crops were barley at 53.4 bushels and $24 per acre, spring wheat at 34.1 bushels and $46 per acre, corn at 83.5 bushels and $40 per acre, soybeans at 34.4 bushels and $28 per acre, legume and grass hay, 2.3 tons and $5 per acre; and timothy seed, 300 pounds and $36 per acre.

Return over costs for all livestock showed improvements over 1985, Spengler said. Weaning pig production showed a net return of $146 per litter, up from $45 in 1985. Beef breeding herds averaged $82 net return per cow in contrast with a loss of $1 per cow in 1985. Return over costs to sheep producers averaged $42 per ewe, nearly doubling the $23 per ewe net return in 1985.

Ninety-two of the 300 farms included in the averages had dairy cattle. Milk production per cow continued to improve, averaging 14,561 pounds. Return over costs per cow averaged $569, up $41 from 1985.

Average farm spending included the following for 1986 with the percentage in parentheses indicating change from 1985:

To agribusiness community for fertilizer, chemical, seed, feeds, fuel and repairs, $67,962 (1 per cent); extra labor, $5,629 (1 per cent); other farmers and business for livestock and custom work, $6,357 (down 14 per cent); support of local government through property taxes, $2,701 (down 24 per cent); utilities, $2,078 (down 2 per cent); and use of other people's capital in interest and cash rent, $29,585 (down 14 per cent);

Also farm equipment, vehicles, power and machinery, $10,985 (down 12 per cent); real estate purchases and improvements, $5,179 (down 32 per cent); household and personal expense, $22,800 (down one per cent); for a total spent in community and service area of $153,276 per farm (down six per cent).

INTERESTING TECHNIQUE is used by artist Marv Espe of the Roseau area who combines pen and ink and acrylics in his finished art works. He is shown above with two limited edition prints from his "Country Kids" series. Espe spends a week to a week and one-half in creating pen and ink drawings which would be complete in themselves. He then spends several more days adding color to the drawings in acrylic paints. Espe will be instructing area artists in his pen and ink an acrylic techniques Friday night and Saturday at workshops in Thief River Falls. Sponsored by the Northern Prairie Artists association, the workshops are limited to 20 people an have been filled by earlier advance registration.

PICTURESQUE SETTING is this random log house which is both home and studio for Marv Espe about six miles south of Salol on County Road 13. Marv and Myrna Espe purchased the property and house when they decided to move back to Roseau county from Owatonna in 1977. Espe has also been driving a school bus for the Roseau school district the past nine years, keeping the bus at his home to start the route from there.

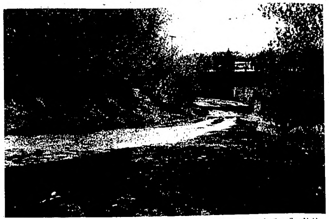
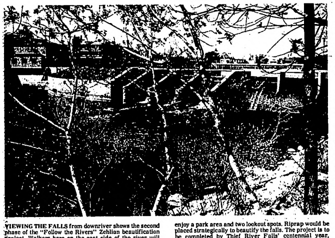
PART OF THE NEW "Follow the Rivers" walkway would include the area pictured here from behind Northwestern hospital. From this site, the walker will be able to enjoy a sculpture commemorating the logging industry placed on the existing piling above the falls. Directly across the river from this walk is the site of the first phase of the project, a walkway from the First Street Bridge to the falls. The Thief River Falls Zehlians hope to complete the First Street Bridge walk by the end of this summer. Plans are to have the new walkways fully completed by 1996, the year of the city's centennial.



THIRD STEP of improvements in the planned "Follow the Rivers" walkway will be in Elks Park area. A walk will extend along the above pictured ambulance emergency route behind the fire hall, under the railroad bridge, into the park area. The park would be beautified and improved with the addition of a fountain and walking paths.



VIEWING THE FALLS from downriver shows the second phase of the "Follow the Rivers" Zehlian beautification project. Walkers here on the east side of the river will enjoy a park area and two lookout spots. Riprap would be placed strategically to beautify the falls. The project is to be completed by Thief River Falls' centennial year, 1996.

MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

The state's higher education financial picture is becoming more focused at the Minnesota House of Representatives.

My colleagues on the powerful House appropriations committee approved a bill this week and sent it to the full House floor for debate. I expect it will come up late this week or early next week.

The bill funds higher education in Minnesota to the tune of $1.65 billion over the next two years, an increase in state support of 10.6 per cent.

We cut about $33 million from higher education last week, after we agreed to cut $203 million from our total budget, responding to voters' concerns regarding potential tax increases. But everything that was funded last year will be funded next year, too. It was mostly new programs that had to be cut.

Commitment to Focus, for example, was cut from $12 million to $3 million by delaying it for a year. That's the controversial plan that streamlines the University of Minnesota with the ultimate aim of making it one of the country's top five public universities.

The bill contains good news for students who need financial aid. State funds for student grants and loans will increase to $62.5 million next year and to $64.4 million in 1989. That's 15.1 per cent more than was available in the last biennium.

We're trying to expand the financial aid program to students who have particularly low incomes, such as those who are on welfare programs, to help them find jobs and improve their literacy. If the higher education bill passes in its present form, thousands more students will be able to get loans or grants for school.

One new program, that did survive last week's budget cuts, provides $2.7 million to students who are parents for their children's daycare costs. That, too, will help make it much easier for non-traditional students to go on with their education.

Our state has always had a strong educational system, including its post-secondary schools. We at the legislature are continuing that tradition with this bill.

THE AREA AND LOCAL LEGISLATIVE CALENDAR

Listing of area and local legislative meetings for the week are provided as a public service. These meetings are open to the public. Any governmental agency is encouraged to place a notice of a meeting on the calendar, however it does not meet legal guidelines for giving public notice.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Our Minnesota Constitution prescribes that, in odd-numbered years, the legislature has about three-and-a-half months to get its work done. Those are our "budget sessions," during which we set most of our spending and taxes for the next two years. In even-numbered years, when there is less work, our sessions usually last about six weeks.

Yet, one of the most predictable things about legislative sessions — regardless of the time we have — is that the final two to three weeks are filled with rushing, scrambling and late-night hours. So, it is quite understandable why some people believe that we do all of our work in the final weeks and get concerned that legislation passes without due consideration and due process. However, for the most part, the very reason things get so hectic at the end of each session is that bills have to go through such a long and careful process before they become law.

At the barest minimum, a bill has to pass at least one committee — at which time the public is given ample opportunity for input. And then, the bill has to be passed twice on the floor, with each bill going through that same process in both the House and Senate. This means that there are at least three opportunities to discuss and debate each bill in both the House and Senate.

However, the more usual case is that bills go through more than one committee, and very often, once a bill has been passed twice by each chamber, there will also be a conference committee to work out the differences between the House and Senate versions. Once the conference committee has ironed out the differences between the two bills, the final version has to be passed again by each body.

Most bills will routinely go through at least two or three committees, but a somewhat extreme case is the rural development act of 1987 (Senate File 1). Because it is so comprehensive, it had to go through a record-setting seven committees. For example, the agriculture committee heard it because of the rural focus of the bill; the education committee looked at the provisions for training and retraining of displaced workers; and the finance committee dealt with the requested appropriation of state funds.

Keeping in mind that, at each committee hearing, the public has an opportunity to testify for or against the bill, and each committee member has an opportunity to amend it, by the time the bill gets to the floor, it has had numerous hours of exposure and scrutiny. And then, the bill will be explained, discussed and often amended, two more times on the floor.

Because of the many hours we spend on each bill and because of the variety of people who have input — including both the public and legislators — our legislative process has many built-in safeguards and protections against carelessness as well as abuse.

Nevertheless, once in awhile, our weary, end-of-session minds do let something get by that perhaps shouldn't pass. But the additional safeguard we have is that, in addition to being open, our process is very fluid — none of our laws are cast in concrete. If we make a mistake, or if we simple change our minds about something we've done, we can always come back next year and modify prior laws. As a matter of fact, very little of what we do involves making new laws; most of our work consists of updating what we've done in the past to make sure that our laws stay in touch and in tune with the changing circumstances of our society.

If you have any questions or comments, please call me at (612) 296-8660, or write to me at 306 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

TRF Girls, EGF Boys Win TRF Track Titles

Poor facilities have reduced the number of teams interested in appearing here, but the opportunity to perform at home still holds a treat for the Prowlers, who played host to their 15th annual Quentin Jones Invitational high school track meet Tuesday.

It was just a three-team field for the girls, and the Prowlers won with 73½ points, followed by East Grand Forks with 44 and Marshall County Central-Middle River with 39½.

Four teams run in the boys' portion of the meet, won by East Grand Forks with 80 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 59, Crookston 51 and Marshall County Central - Middle River 30.

The only home appearance of the season for the Thief River Falls track teams used to attract a bigger field. But the cinder track at Prowler Field is now passed over by area teams in favor of tartan-type running surfaces at places like Warroad, Roseau, Crookston, Bemidji, and Grand Forks.

"The track was incredibly slow," said Tim Olson, coach of the Thief River Falls boys. The facilities, he acknowledged, don't attract area teams, but is still "home" for the Prowlers. "The kids worked hard and had fun," he mentioned. "They (Prowlers) ate it up being at home."

"You can never be satisfied with your times on our track," admitted Tom Schafer, coach of the Thief River Falls girls. "It's not good," he said about the track. "But looking at the season overall, our times are coming down."

Four Thief River Falls girls were double-event winners yesterday. Junior Cindy Kruta won the 300-meter hurdles in 49.92 and took the 200-meter dash in 27.74; junior Christy Puetz won the 440-yard dash in 64.96 and took the 880-yard run in 13:15.18; while seventh grader Jodi 2:39.53; freshman Lynn Mueller won the mile in 6:15 and took the two-mile in 13:15.18; while seventh grader Jodi Kruta emerged a winner in the high jump with a 4-6 effort and in the 100-meter dash in 13.27.

Thief River Falls girls won the 4 x 880 and 4 x 440 relays.

Paul Brandt was a double-event winner for the Thief River Falls boys as he ran the 100-meter dash in 11.5 and covered 200 meters in an impressive 23.37.

Thief River Falls also had winners in Brian Stark with a 15.52 in the 110-meter high hurdles and Scott Grove with a 55.74 in the 440-yard dash.

East Grand Forks' Mark Amundson won three events — the long jump with a leap of 19-2, the triple jump with a 39-4 and the 880-yard run with a 2:11.12.

Lumberjacks Top TRF 10-0

Bemidji completed a perfect 4-0 swing through the North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseline line-up Monday with a 10-0 romp over visiting Thief River Falls.

Ranked No. 1 in the Class AA baseball ratings, Bemidji is firmly entrenched as the top team in North Sub-Region 8AA play following wins over Detroit Lakes 16-2, Moorhead 3-0, Fergus Falls 3-2 and now Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls, after a 4-2 Saturday victory over Moorhead in the first round of the Spuds' four-team invitational tournament, had hoped to be able to challenge the Lumberjacks. But the Prowlers collected just one hit and put only three runners on base against lefthanded Tom Kuesel.

"They're good," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "We faced what is suppose to be their third pitcher, and he's tough."

Kuesel had a one-hit 14-0 shutout in the Lumberjacks' last start at Roseau Thursday.

"We weren't in the game," acknowledged Wensloff. "We just didn't look good at all."

Bemidji scored three times in the first inning, broke it open with a five-run second, tacked on a single third inning run and completed the 10-run rule victory with a run in the fourth.

Thief River Falls' lone base hit was a one-out double off the center field fence by Joel Swanson in the fifth inning. Kuesel walked just one and struck out seven. Losing pitcher Tom Knoff gave up six hits, walked five and struck out three.

Northland At Rochester Meet

Northland Community College golf team will complete its 1987 regular season schedule this week with back-to-back invitational meet appearances at Fergus Falls Thursday and at Brainerd Friday.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Pioneers will participate in the Minnesota Community College Conference and NJCAA Region 13 tournaments May 14 and 15 in Rochester.

Northland was in Rochester Monday for an invitational tournament on the Eastwood Golf Club course — one of two sites for the combined post-season competition.

It was the third Northland outing of the year, and for the third time the Pioneers watched Austin win team honors with a 315, followed by Rochester at 317, Normandale 337, Willmar 342, Brainerd 351, Northland 352, Minneapolis 386, and Worthington 395.

And for the third straight meet, Randy Lenoch of Austin was medalist with a 36-37, 73 on the par-70 lay-out.

Dave Onkka, a freshman from Thief River Falls, led Northland with a 40-41, 81. Rest of the Pioneers' meet-counting scores included Brad Lane with a 43-47, 90; Grant Grabanski 46-44, 90; and Rich Bendickson 44-47, 91. Darrin Abernathy's 51-45, 96 didn't count in the Northland score.

Tri-County Upsets TRF 4-3

Tri-County surrendered the tying run in the top of the seventh, but broke the deadlock in the bottom of the inning for a 4-3 high school baseball win over Thief River Falls Tuesday afternoon at Karlstad.

It was the third straight loss for the Prowlers, who won four straight games in a row to open the 1987 season.

Thief River Falls owned a 1-0 lead in the third inning, but fell behind 3-1 through five frames. It was 3-2 going into the seventh when Dean DuChamp walked, went to third on an over-throw on a pick-off play at first base, and scored on a two-out single by Jason Lane.

Tri-County came right back, though, when a single, a walk and an infield error loaded the bases and brought Chris Bjorgaard on in relief of DuChamp, the starting pitcher. A sacrifice fly to center field promptly ended the contest.

Lane was two of the Prowlers' four base hits in three at-bats, including a home run and two RBI. Tri-County collected nine hits. The Prowlers had four errors; the Rabbits had three.

"You're not going to win a whole lot of ball games with four hits," offered Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "We did not do the job at the plate at all."

Tri-County pitcher Shannon Boen struck out nine and walked just one. "He did a nice job on the mound," noted Wensloff.

Thief River Falls will host International Falls Saturday in a 1 p.m. doubleheader at the fairgrounds diamond. Bemidji will be in Thief River Falls Tuesday for a 2:30 p.m. North Sub-Region 8AA match-up.

JOHN DONDELINGER reached out to return a shot at the net as he played No. 1 doubles with Thief River Falls teammate Troy Hanestad in Tuesday's high school tennis match against Bemidji on the Northland Community College courts. The Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 5-2.

Tennis Win Streak Continues . . .

TRF Beats Bemidji

Come-from-behind wins by junior Bret Haugen at No. 1 singles and by sophomore Kent Holmes at No. 2 singles sparked Thief River Falls to a 5-2 high school tennis win over Bemidji Tuesday.

It was the fifth straight winning outing for the Prowlers, who have won three dual meets and a pair of multiple-team events during that two-week string of wins.

Haugen rallied to beat Scott Wollmering 1-6, 6-2, 6-2, while Holmes managed to overtake Rick Osmundson 2-6, 6-2, 7-5, including a rally from a 5-1 third-set deficit.

The Prowlers, who lost a 4-3 dual meet decision to Bemidji April 14 before starting their current winning streak, also received wins from junior Grant Larson at No. 3 singles, freshmen Kevin Holmes and Jay Opdahl at No. 2 doubles, and from junior Troy Peterson and freshman Tom Brouse at No. 3 doubles.

It was the first home appearance of the 1987 season for the Prowlers, who played their first seven matches on the road in April. They'll try to extend their string of wins Thursday when the Prowlers host their annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational. The 9 a.m. meet will include Park Rapids, East Grand Forks, Moorhead, and Crookston, along with the Prowlers.

MCC-Middle River Is 12-1 Winner Over Bears On Monday

Marshall County Central-Middle River received a strong pitching performance from Darin Rokke and offensive power from Darren Wagner and Tom Blazek Monday in rolling up a 12-1 high school baseball win over Lake of the Woods.

Rokke limited the Bears to just two hits, striking out six and walking only one in the 4½-inning game at Middle River.

Wagner was 3-for-3 at the plate with a double and a triple, while Blazek was 2-for-3 with a double and a home run in the winner's nine-hit attack.

Blazek opened the bottom of the first with a lead-off home run to begin a four-run inning. A seven-run second inning completed the rout in short fashion.

Steve Wehmun was the losing pitcher. Dave Lockman came on in relief in the third.

The one-sided win followed a pair of close decisions for Marshall County Central-Middle River the week before — an 11-10 Tuesday loss to Thief River Falls when the Prowlers came up with a six-run seventh inning rally and a key 4-2 Region 8A win over Warroad the next day.

Rokke was also the winning pitcher against Warroad, scattering four hits. Marshall County Central-Middle River picked up only three hits, but two of them came in the first inning when Rokke had an RBI single and Greg Graham came through with an RBI double. Game-winning hit was supplied by Blazek, who had an RBI single in the fourth.

DNR NEWS

A Public Information Officer has been added to the staff of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in northwestern Minnesota. Jim Reil started work in the newly-created position on April 8 at the Northwest Regional Headquarters office in Bemidji.

Reil is a graduate of Bemidji State University with a BA degree in English and mass communications. He has served the state of Minnesota for 16 years, having previously worked for the Minnesota Department of Education and, most recently, as a program specialist with the Department of Jobs and Training in Bemidji. "As the regional information officer, I hope to improve communications between the DNR and the public on a local level," Reil said. "My job is one of five such positions newly located in DNR regional offices to assist regional administrators in getting information from technical experts within the department out to the media and, in turn, to the general public.

"I view my role in this process as that of a representative of the general public." Reil continued, "I've come to the DNR with very few preconceived notions of what the DNR does or what it ought to do. I intend to learn what goes on in each of the seven major divisions and what the support bureaus do, and interpret that information to the public."

Reil is also interested in discovering what's on the minds of the citizens in the northwest region. "If anyone in the northwest or west-central Minnesota (the 21 counties in DNR Region I) has questions or concerns about any DNR program or policy, I'd like to hear from you. I would also like to hear from the media, schools, sportsman's groups, and other organizations in the region, concerning their needs and ideas for information-and-education projects to which the DNR can contribute."

"The different divisions within the department have been doing a good job for a long time in providing information and educational programs to local communities," Reil said, "but now the regional office can provide additional resources to DNR staff in the field to improve those programs."

Anyone wishing to contact him directly should write to: Jim Reil, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Region I, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; or call 755-3845.

Red Flag Fire Warnings

Red flag fire warnings were issued for much of Minnesota on Easter weekend. A red flag warning is issued by the National Weather Service when conditions indicate an extreme fire danger. The factors used to determine the warning are temperature, wind and relative humidity. In other parts of the U.S., lightning frequencies are also considered.

"In Minnesota, temperatures over 80 degrees, winds in excess of 25 mph and relative humidity less than or equal to 20 per cent constitute red flag conditions," said Alice Pierson, Fire Intelligence Specialist with the Bureau of Land Management in Grand Junction, CO. She was one of several fire staff called in to assist in Minnesota's fire-fighting effort. "We urge everyone, including smokers, welders and people using barbeque grills, to exercise extreme caution since fires started on a red flag day are extremely hard to control," Pierson said.

Dry weather patterns are expected to return and continue, according to the weather service. Below-normal precipitation for the last 6-7 months have created extremely dry conditions and further increased fire potential. It has left little moisture to allow normal green-up. The public is being asked to continue to exercise caution as conditions for fires are predicted to continue or increase until rain arrives in sufficient amounts.

Federal Fish, Wildlife Funds

U.S. Secretary of the Interior announced that Minnesota will receive an estimated $8,006,092 in federal aid funds to be used for sport fish and wildlife restoration in Fiscal Year 1987.

Of this total, funded under the "Dingell-Johnson" sport restoration act, the state will receive a total of $5,152,126 in fish restoration funding and another $2,854,776 in wildlife restoration funds. These are the state's share of the nationwide allotment of more than $108 million paid to states under the federal Pittman-Robertson Program for wildlife restoration, and $140 million for fisheries projects.

Much of the fisheries funding comes form excise taxes on fishing equipment. Legislation approved in 1984 also created the "Wallop-Breaux" expansion program, which increased this funding using a share of motorboat fuel taxes, import taxes on fishing equipment and pleasure boats, and other excise taxes.

Some of the wildlife projects supported by the wildlife funds include restoration of whitetail deer and wild turkey, and several threatened species, such as the wood duck and pronghorn, which once faced extinction. Some of the fisheries projects include development or improvement of public access facilities, acquisition of lakes and other public access areas, fish habitat improvements and fishery research.

Under the Wallop-Breaux Amendment, states are also required to obligate at least 10 per cent of their annual apportionment for motorboat access, and another 10 per cent for aquatic resources education programs.

Under the allotment to Minnesota, $2,370,064 will be earmarked for wildlife restoration and $484,712 for hunter education.

Honor DNR Officials

Minnesota Fish and Wildlife Employees Association recently awarded "Outstanding Achievement Awards" to Jack Skrypek, chief of Ecological Services, and Jerry Maertens, assistant regional wildlife supervisor at Bemidji.

A third award was made to the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance for its efforts in representing fish, wildlife and sporting interests to the legislature. The group was recognized for giving sportsmen a strong, united voice in the legislature.

The alliance has played an important role in coordinating support for the passage of the RIM (Reinvest In Minnesota) legislation.

The gull is fast becoming the number one pest in urban areas around the Great Lakes and throughout the eastern United States and Canada. According to International Wildlife magazine, the birds threaten flight safety at airports, damage crops, create a health hazard with their droppings and generally make a nuisance of themselves at parks and other recreational areas. Controlling the birds will be tough.

Spruce Trees Are Hit By Insects

Foresters often receive calls from landowners asking why their spruce trees are turning brown. One culprit is the pine needle scale, an insect which will attack all species of pine and spruce. Though seldom a problem in forest stands, it is especially injurious on ornamentals and windbreaks.

Scales discolor and weaken trees by sucking sap from needles. Needle scales not only degrade appearance and vitality of the tree but where populations are high, can kill trees. Scale has been identified in the Pencer and Falun area of northwestern Minnesota where there appears to be a high occurrence.

Pine needle scale can be recognized by observing the needles for white oyster-shaped scales about one-tenth of an inch long. This "scale" covers a tiny insect. A symptom first noticed is the yellowish-brown to gray appearance of the needles, due both to the feeding of the insect and subsequent yellowish-brown needle discoloration and the presence of numerous white protective scales.

During the winter, 20 to 30 eggs exist beneath each female scale. The eggs hatch in mid-May to June 1. Newly born scales are called "crawlers" as they crawl about the tree for a few days, then pierce the needles with their beaks and crawl no more. They continue to suck sap and grow the protective wax "scale" around them. Scales reach maturity around August 1 and females begin to lay eggs under themselves, completing the cycle.

Effective control of the pine needle scale consists of spraying with an insecticide such as Malathion or Sevin when scales are in the "crawler" stage. Spray initially around May 15 (when lilacs are in bloom) and again 10 to 14 days later. Once the insects have covered themselves with the waxy scale, contact insecticides such as the above are not effective. Only systemic insecticides, those absorbed by the tree and transmitted to the insect feeding upon it, can be used.

Needle Cast is a fungal problem local landowners have experienced on white and blue spruce. Symptoms include needles which are purple to brown in color. Symptoms usually do not appear until the following winter or spring. The disease tends to be more prevalent on the lower portions of the tree but will work its way up the tree. Infections occur during rainy periods when spores from infected needles are suspended in rain droplets which are splashed or blown about onto young, emerging needles. The current year needles are infected in May and June as the shoots and needles are elongating. Fungicides should be applied to the new foliage to protect the foliage from being infected.

Spraying infected needles will not control the disease.

Tree Seedlings Are Made Available To The General Public

For the first time ever, local DNR offices at Warroad, Wannaska and Grygla will take orders directly from the public for available tree seedlings while supplies last.

Minimum orders will be 500 seedlings and 100 per specie. Orders may be placed by telephone with delivery after May 11, and distribution available for roughly one week. Orders must include the purpose for planting and the legal land description.

Limited quantities of the following species are still available; Norway Pine seedlings, Norway Pine transplants, White Pine seedlings, Jack Pine seedlings, Norway Spruce seedlings, Black Spruce seedlings, Silver Maple seedlings, Ginnala Maple seedlings, Carragana seedlings, and four season wildlife food packets.

This program is designed to serve Lake Of The Woods, Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, northwest Beltrami and Pennington counties. For more information on the special tree order program or planting recommendations for the adaptability of available trees to various soils contact your local DNR-Forestry office.

TRF Splits Two JV Baseball Games At Bemidji, Thompson

Thief River Falls lost an 8-5 game at Bemidji Monday, but won a 22-7 contest at Thompson, ND Tuesday in junior varsity high school baseball action.

Bemidji snapped a 5-5 tie with a three-run burst in the bottom of the sixth inning Monday. Jason Kempert was 3-for-4 at the plate with four RBI for the visitors, who were out-hit 9-8. Errors were even at two-apiece. Hunter Boldt, who pitched the sixth inning in relief of starter John Azure, was the losing pitcher.

Sean Myhrer and Azure both had three hits in the 15-hit Thief River Falls attack at Thompson. Jared Erickson and Todd Brandon both had two hits. Thief River Falls built a 14-7 lead through four innings, then erupted for eight runs in the top of the sixth to wrap it up. Erickson was the winning pitcher, striking out 11 batters in the six-inning contest.

Thief River Falls, 7-3 for the year, will host International Falls Saturday in a 1 p.m. doubleheader that matches the Prowlers' varsity schedule.

MCC-Middle River Winner Tuesday

A ten-run first inning carried Marshall County Central-Middle River past Kennedy-Hallock 13-2 Tuesday in high school baseball action.

National Guard Aids Fire Fight

Three Minnesota Army National Guard UH-1H "Huey" helicopters were called into service by the governor Easter Sunday morning to help the Department of Natural Resources battle forest and grass fires in north central Minnesota.

Darwin Anderson, the DNR's Regional Forestry Supervisor for central Minnesota, said the Guardsmen were performing a broad mission, including aerial observation and transporting fire fighters and equipment to trouble spots.

As the helicopters arrived on station, Anderson said the fires were coming under control and things were relatively quiet.

"Right now, the critical thing the Guard is doing is providing aerial observation. When a fire breaks out, the aircraft will be critical in transporting fire teams to the area quickly," he said.

Chief Warrant Officer Thomas Tesmar, Isle, the officer in charge of the Guard aircraft, said his crews, and their DNR and National Forestry Service passengers, were looking for smoke and using infra-red equipment to find "hot-spots."

"An while we are flying over the fire areas, we are mapping where it has already burned. This helps the forestry people to judge the success of their operations, and to track the fire back to its source," Tesmar explained.

Tesmar praised the civilian pilots who have been working with the DNR, and said that the Guard was not there to replace them, but to augment their activities.

"We have a little better equipment and larger aircraft. We are here to augment the limited assets available in civilian aviation. There are only so many of this larger type of helicopter around," he added.

Maj. Dennis J. Lord, Aviation Officer for the Minnesota Army National Guard's State Area Command, said the pilots assigned to assist the DNR average over 2,000 hours of flying experience. The state is getting full value from the men and equipment the National Guard have assigned to assist the DNR," said Lord, who is from Burnsville.

National Guardsmen at the fire sites were not surprised by the call-up. They had been placed on stand-by two days before the call to duty, and many had been following th fire stories in the news for weeks.

They said they were pleased with the overall operation and are happy to be working with the DNR, even though some were called away from Easter celebrations and civilian jobs.

"We have to fly so many hours to stay qualified," said Chief Warrant Officer Mark Duenow, Afton. It's nice to fly this type of mission for a change of pace." Duenow said he thought using the Gurad's pilots and aircraft to help fight forest fires was "a good use of the state's assets."

"I hope we get to do this more often in the future," he added.

National Guard aircraft and crews will be rotated into the fire areas until released from state active duty by the governor.

Minnesota Army and Air National Guard is the only military force available to perform civil assistance missions in the state. The Guard's 13,000 men and women and all their federally funded equipment, are under the peace-time command of the governor and are available at the call of the state's chief executive for all types of emergencies.

FWS Makes Payment To Marshall County As Part Of Revenue-Sharing Program

A check for $27,500 was presented to Marshall County treasurer Roy G. Swanson recently by administrative technician Beulah Wikstrom as part of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) annual revenue-sharing program.

The program is designed to compensate local units of government for loss of tax revenue on lands owned by the United States Government and administered by the Fish and Wildlife Service. The funds may be used for any governmental purpose. The program is authorized by the Refuge Revenue-Sharing Act of 1964, as amended in 1978. The original Act provided for payments only on lands within the National Wildlife Refuge System. The 1978 amendment provided that payments be made on all lands administered by the FWS. Such lands in the North Central Region include national wildlife refuges, national fish hatcheries, waterfowl production areas and administrative sites.

Check presented to Swanson is this year's revenue-sharing payment for the 61,449-acre Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge located in eastern Marshall County. It is 60 per cent of the full entitled amount due the county to budget restrictions and overall cutbacks in federal funding.

Decreased land values in Marshall County also caused a reduction in the full entitled amount the county is eligible to receive.

Outdoor News

"Home, Sweet Home" may not be so "sweet" after all. According to National Wildlife magazine, studies have found that the air inside homes may be more dangerous to human health than the air outside. In fact, the number of people claiming to be victims of "building sickness" has tripled in this country since the early 1970s. Some of the indoor pollutants include formaldehyde, radon and tobacco smoke.

Yellow-bellied sea snake is the only reptile in the world that spends its whole life in water, according to Ranger Rick magazine. These sea snakes are so suited to water that if they wash up on shore, they can't even crawl.

The tide is turning for the Mediterranean Sea. After serving as a dumpsite for decades, it's now coming clean. International Wildlife magazine reports that, under a multi-nation agreement, treatment plants have been build, and governments have cracked down on dumping of toxics by ships, planes and industries. The latest agreement calls for national governments to create protected areas for some 500 threatened wildlife species.

First home run hit by a member of the Minnesota Twins at Metropolitan Stadium was off the bat of Don Mincher, who homered off Washington's Joe McClain April 21, 1961.

Minnesota Documents Division — part of the State Department of Administration — publishes and sells a variety of state, federal and privately produced publications as well as maps, guides, flags and novelty items. The division also produces the State Register, the official weekly publication of the State of Minnesota, and sells computerized mailing lists of state license and permit holders. The division operates Minnesota's Bookstore, located near the State Capitol in the Ford Building at 117 University Avenue in St. Paul. ## County Board Proceedings

May 6, 1987
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS
PENNINGTON COUNTY
APRIL 14, 1987

Pursuant to adjournment, the Board of Commissioners of Pennington County met in the commissioners' room in the courthouse in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, April 14, 1987 at 10:00 a.m. Members present: Koop, Penning, Swanson, and Hoffman. Commissioner Grabanski was absent.

Welfare Director Gary Erickson appeared before the Board to discuss the tour of the Fergus Falls State Hospital facility on Thursday, April 16. Director Erickson will make the travel arrangements.

The minutes of the meeting held on March 24 were approved as mailed.

Jim Winjum appeared before the Board to bring up the subject of leasing or buying his building known as the Unemployment Office. Mr. Winjum wanted to re-establish communications. Purchase price will be $200,000 with the lease price of approximately $6.50 per sq. ft. No action taken.

Assessor DeHaan presented an application for homestead credit and abatement of value for the following properties: Charles Richards — Tessum's Addn. Old Plat (North Twp) Lots 1, 2 & 3 less South 148' and Lot 10 less South 225' — should remain homestead for 1987; Roger Reuter — Olson's Subdiv. (Rocksbury Twp.) Lots 10, 11 & West 150' Lot 12, less South 1,488' of said lots — error in assessing formula.

Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Koop to reduce the value of Reuter's property from $97,500 to $83,600 upon assessor's recommendation that the land value was set too high. Motion unanimously carried. Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to grant Charles Richards homestead classification. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to rescind the resolution made September 10, 1986, allowing Jake McCullough to repurchase property in St. Hilaire described as Townsite Co. 2nd Addition to St. Hilaire, Lots 4 thru 7, bock 30. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, to allow ICCC to tear down the building on the same site in St. Hilaire. Motion unanimously carried.

Dave Schneider, Midwest Ambulance Systems, was in to advise the Board he had purchased the Life Star Ambulance Service and needed a letter to Quin County Board of Health advising them to transfer the subsidy which the Board had alloted to Life Star. Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Penning to request Quin County Board of Health to transfer the subsidy to Midwest Ambulance Systems. Motion carried.

Attorney Olin read the letter he had sent to the Waste Management Board concerning repayment of the loan.

At 11:00 a.m. bids for regraveling were opened and read aloud as duly advertised. The following bids were received: Thorson, Inc. — $97,200; Davidson Construction — $100,872.00; Rupp Construction Co. — $105,840.00; Rajala Construction Co. — $106,812.00; and Winters' Concrete — $110,016.00. Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to approve the low bid of Thorson, Inc. of Bemidji for regraveling at $97,200 and authorize the Auditor and Chairman to sign such contract. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Koop the following was unanimously adopted:

As owner of property contiguous to Lincoln High School, the Board supports the school's efforts to control the use of tobacco products in the proximity of the schools. We give the school permission to designate our property as a tobacco-free area for students and district staff (during school-work hours). By doing so we assume no liability for enforcement of this school rule.

Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Koop, the 1987 NACO dues of $265 were approved to be paid. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, the purchase of the chair for the court reporter at a cost of $283.96 was approved. Motion carried.

The Board reviewed the reports of the Court Administrator. The Board denied the Court Administrator's request for benches to be placed in the third floor hallways.

Commissioner Grabanski joined the meeting at 11:45 a.m.

Goodridge Area Constitutional Bi-Centennial Committee was in to request $50 for a Memorial Day Service. Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Grabanski, $50 was alloted to the Goodridge Committee for a Memorial Day Service. Motion unanimously carried.

Jeff Dahlen and Lonnie Waine were in to discuss the ditch along CR No. 60. Jeff would like to see the locks on the culverts removed — wanted to know why they had been authorized and by whom. The Board will investigate these locks and will discuss them at the next Board meeting.

The bid letting for overlay of CSAH No. 22 were opened at 2:00 p.m. as advertised and called for. The following bids were received: Bemidji Blacktop, Bemidji — $339,781.40; Boarder State Paving, Fargo — $375,150.00; FM Asphalt, Moorhead — $409,138.35; Mark Sand & Gravel, Fergus Falls — $395,739.54; Northern Paving, Inc., Crookston — $407,016.00; and Thorson, Inc., Bemidji — $326,697.75. Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to accept the bids of Thorson, Inc., Bemidji, of $326,697.75 as the lowest and best bid and authorize the Chairman and Auditor to sign such contract. Motion unanimously carried.

Discussion was held on the VA meeting to be held on May 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Armory in Thief River Falls.

The Board indicated they had no objections to the City, County and Township informational meeting on a low level radio-active waste facility.

Jerome Dokken was in to discuss highway funding.

Commissioner Penning introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, a good transportation system is essential to the economical movement of goods and people through Minnesota, and

WHEREAS, the highway system in Minnesota is deteriorating at an increasing rate, with need for funding beyond current funding levels,

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners supports legislation to increase and stabilize the funding of the Highway User Tax Distribution Fund.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Swanson and upon vote, unanimously adopted.

Dave Forsberg appeared before the Board to discuss the steel cans at the solid waste facility. We could get rid of the pile of cans on the west side of the building for approximately $5,500. Composting was also discussed. Moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Koop to retain Dave Forsberg until April 28 for an additional $1,250 as consultant. Motion carried. Commissioner Penning discussed the educating of the public on the separation of garbage at home.

Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Penning, the Road, Bridge, and Culvert Committee will meet at 8:00 a.m. on April 21 to inspect roads, bridges and culverts. Motion carried.

Discussion was held on SA No. 6. Gary Johnson has not signed the easement — all other landowners have signed. Mr. Johnson wants a 48" pipe to replace the 48" pipe instead of a 42" pipe. The price difference is $700. It was pointed out by Commissioner Swanson that the only person affected downstream from the culvert to the river was in agreement to the 48" culvert instead of the 36" culvert called for by engineer's design. Moved by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Koop to offer Gary Johnson a 42" concrete pipe — if he accepts the offer of a 42" concrete pipe we will proceed with regrading SA No. 6; if he doesn't accept the 42" concrete pipe, Engineer Olson is to ready plans for overlaying SA No. 7. Motion carried with Commissioner Swanson voting nay.

The Board approved the cleaning of CD No. 41 as petitioned. Also approved the cleaning of Ditch No. 51.

Board authorized the County Engineer to use two persons residing in the county jail for highway department labor.

The following bills were read, audited and approved for payment:

Further information is available by calling Bev Rupprecht at 681-2700, extension 341 or Bruce Elseth at 745-5124 or 745-6125 (Warren). # Arthritis Month Time To Learn About Condition

When people find out that they have arthritis, they often feel a sense of disbelief or helplessness, the Arthritis foundation has found. After they learn more about arthritis and its treatment, they may feel overwhelmed or angry. Others become depressed.

Any of these reactions are quite normal, a foundation spokesman pointed out. Being told that you have a condition that is not likely to disappear may be hard to accept.

But having arthritis requires changes in routine ways of living. A good beginning, according to the foundation, is to learn as much as possible about the disease. This means asking your doctor to explain any aspects of your condition that you do not understand. It can mean asking the Arthritis foundation for pamphlets you can read and share with your family. Or it can mean finding out from the foundation whether there are arthritis support or education groups in your community.

During May, which is Arthritis month, the Arthritis foundation has a special message on coming to terms with arthritis that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A free booklet, "Taking Charge: Learning to Live with Arthritis" is available to callers as one of the services of the foundation.

Arden Lundeen Top Pennington DHIA Member In March

Arden Lundeen dairy herd was listed as the top herd in the Pennington county Dairy Herd Improvement association for the month of March, according to Jerry Hamre and Sonia Iverson, supervisors of the Pennington DHIA.

The top herd averaged 63.4 pounds of milk and 2.09 pounds of butterfat. Other dairymen in the top 10 included DKG Lundeen Farms, 63 pounds of milk and 2.16 pounds of butterfat; Lyle Swanson, 61.9 and 2.48; Mark Hanson, 59.9 and 2.13; Pearson Brothers, 55.8 and 1.97; Duane Olson and Sons, 52 and 1.73; Gene Nelson, 51.5 and 1.80; Leonard Geske, 51.5 and 1.76; Don Fulton, 50.5 and 1.98; and Mylo Carlson, 50.2 and 2.14.

Hamre and Iverson noted that herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since the total production is averaged among all cows to give the dairyman a record of his herd's earning power for the month. Many dry cows in the herd will reduce the average although the cattle in milk are high producers.

There were 29 DHIA and two owner-sampler herds on test in March in the Pennington association.

Small Business Week Events Noted

Activities to recognize the importance of small businesses in America begin during National small business week, May 10 through 16. President Ronald Reagan has urged all Americans to join with him in saluting small business men and women by observing that week with appropriate activities.

"They (America's growth industry) create wealth. They develop new products and services, enhance existing ones, offer jobs and opportunities to millions of other Americans, and help fuel our economic expansion for the benefit of all. . . . The creativity, confidence, and skills of small business men and women help ensure that America will continue to grow and prosper in freedom and opportunity. That is a source of great pride to every American," states President Ronald Reagan in his proclamation of small business week.

This announcement has sparked interest in observing small business week across the country. This year's theme, "Small Business: America's growth Industry," represents the importance of continued growth. The nation's 15 million small businesses are responsible for half of private employment, almost 40 per cent of national production and most of the nation's new products and innovations.

In Thief River Falls, a committee has coordinated activities during the week. Those activities include a seminar 7 p.m. Monday at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls featuring Gerald Manning, a former Thief River Falls native. Manning, an author, noted speaker, businessman, educator, and sales and marketing consultant, will present two topics: "Before You Can Move the World, You Must First Move Yourself" and "Achieving Success and Generating Profit in the New Economy." The seminar will cost $20 and tickets are available at Norwest bank or at the door the evening of the seminar.

On Tuesday a workshop entitled "The Care and Feeding of Customers and Visitors" will be presented at the Best Western from 7 to 10 p.m. Registration will cost $5 per person. This session is for business people and employees who have face-to-face or telephone contact with customers and visitors.

The highlight of the week will be the announcement of the first Thief River Falls business of the year award. A committee has selected a business to be honored in Thief River Falls and also nominated for the annual Governor's Entrepreneurship award. The business will be named at a breakfast meeting and press conference on May 12th during small business week.

This program recognizes creative individuals in our state whose innovative approach to their farms and businesses helps assure Minnesota of a strong economy far into the future.

The eight award winners will be announced during small business week, which begins May 11. The criteria are simple: the owners or managers of small businesses and family farms should demonstrate creativity in their work, whether it's product development, marketing, production methods or service delivery. Businesses in all sectors of the economy are eligible, including retail firms, high-tech companies, resorts and farms. These businesses must employ 250 or less.

Not only will entrepreneurs from the state be honored, but the small business person of the year will be chosen from the group of state winners.

The state winners, and the national winner, will be honored during small business week at Washington, D.C., events coordinated by the United States small business administration (SBA). Select men and women chosen for distinguished service as small business advocates will also be honored.

National small business week has been proclaimed annually by the President for the last 23 years.

Studies show that small businesses lead the nation in job creation during both recession and economic upswings. In 1986, employment in in-

Cucumber Growers Appeal Decision By Commissioner

Ray Bohn, commissioner of labor and industry, has issued his final order in the matter of alleged wage and hour violations by John Kokesch and Kevin and Marlyn Maresch.

Kokesch and the Mareschs are cucumber growers in Renville and Kandiyohi counties. Both employ migrant workers, primarily Mexican-Americans, to pick their crop. The growers have appealed the case to the Minnesota court of appeals.

Bohn determined that the workers are employees of the cucumber growers and not independent contractors. Because of his decision, these workers now fall within the protections of the Minnesota fair labor standards act. The growers, like any other employer, are now required to keep records of all hours worked and the amount of compensation paid each employee. Earnings must be equal to or exceed the minimum wage for all hours worked, with overtime payable for all hours worked in excess of 48 in a workweek.

Measles Cases Again Reported In Twin Cities

Five cases of measles have been reported in the Twin City suburb of West St Paul — the first cases of the year in Minnesota.

The first case was diagnosed in a child who had been exposed during late March, on a trip out of state, according to authorities at the Minnesota department of health. Four others have since developed the disease, after being exposed to the first case.

Two of the five cases have been laboratory confirmed as measles.

Health authorities are urging physicians and parents to be alert for signs of measles, in their patients or children. They also emphasized that the current measles vaccine has a failure rate of about five per cent, so even an immunized child can develop the disease.

Although measles is sometimes thought of as a "harmless childhood disease," authorities warn that it can result in severe, life-threatening health problems — including middle ear infection, pneumonia and encephalitis, or inflammation of the brain. In some cases, the disease can be fatal.

The disease can be especially severe in children under the age of two, or young adults over 21.

Also known as "red measles," "rubeola" or "hard measles," the disease typically begins with a fever of more than 101 degrees, lasting for two or three days. Other early symptoms can include cough, runny noise, red and watery eyes and an unusual sensitivity to light. A raised, blotchy red rash usually develops on the third or fourth day and lasts for another four to seven days, starting on the head or face and moving downward until the whole body is affected.

Our Savior's ACA Receives Lift Program Grant

Our Saviour's Christ ACA Thief River Falls has recently received $200 from Lutheran Brotherhood's lift program, which supports Lutheran secondary education. The latest payment covers three gifts of Lutheran Brotherhood members during the first quarter of 1987.

The Lift program matches, on a percentage basis, Lutheran Brotherhood members' gifts of $25 to $100 per year to Lutheran high schools nationwide.

Since the beginning of the Lift program in 1984, $3,150 in Lift matching funds has been received by Our Saviour's Christ ACA. During that same period Lutheran Brotherhood has allocated more than $745,000 on behalf of the 90 participating Lutheran high schools.

Lutheran Brotherhood is a fraternal benefit society with headquarters in Minneapolis. It provides insurance and other financial and fraternal benefits to its 900,000 members and the Lutheran church across the United States.

TREE PLANTING by Thief River Falls city crews was completed for the spring last week following the planting of 104 trees of 11 different species in six public areas around the city. This spruce tree was one of several planted south of the powerplant dam where a beautification project is underway. Alderman Milan Borsheim (right), acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Bob Carlson, assisted with the planting in a ceremonial effort. The spruce trees planted were about three and one-half feet tall and other trees were about 10 feet tall and about two inches in diameter at the base of the trunk. More trees will be planted this fall, including some at the Lions park on Nora street. The planting is part of a replacement project due to the loss of a number of the city's old trees due to Dutch elm disease. City employees (left to right) are Myles Olson, Curt Howe and Doug Martell.

Low Level Radio — Active Waste Site To Get Hearing

Pennington county commissioners have set the stage for discussion of a possible low level hazardous waste site in Pennington county.

At a county commission meeting held last week, County Auditor Ken Olson was instructed to make arrangements with various groups to hold an informational meeting on a project involving hazardous waste. Primarily, the project to be discussed would involve location of a low level radio active waste site which would require 200 acres of land.

No firm date has been set for the meeting. The site location would be for an above ground low level radioactive waste storage facility. Waste to be stored at the site is generated among member states of the Midwest Interstate low-level radioactive waste compact (Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, and Wisconsin).

Low-level radioactive waste is legally defined by what it it not: Low-level waste is not (1) spent nuclear reactor fuel; (2) high level waste from the reprocessing of spent nuclear reactor fuel or nuclear weapons production reactor fuel; (3) transuranic waste (nuclear weapons production by-products with atomic numbers greater than that of uranium); or (4) uranium mining and milling residues. Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Ohio have been selected as possible host states of a low-level radioactive waste site. The fact that Minnesota is one of the states does not mean it will be chosen as the host state.

Dave Forsberg's services as a consultant on problems at Future Fuel, have been hired at $1,250 for another two weeks. Forsberg, representing NOW (No Overly Waste), has been making recommendations as possible solutions to problems at Future Fuel. Forsberg's most recent recommendation has been approved.

Aluminum cans, separated from garbage hauled to Future Fuel, will be transported to a scrap metal facility in Winnipeg. Dale Holton has been awarded a contract to haul the cans at $250 per load. The cost to haul the cans, which have been cited as a cause of much of the smell coming from Future Fuel, will be less than the current solution, which has been to haul the cans to a North Dakota land fill. Forsberg estimated that this method of disposal will reduce the cost of getting rid of the cans by half. Ten tons have been disposed of by this method already.

In another related matter, Rick Nordhagen of Future Fuel, County Engineer Wayne Olson, and Dave Forsberg, will be making a list of problems with equipment at Future Fuel. The list will be presented to the manufacturer of the equipment before the one year warranty on the equipment expires.

Merlin Schroeder, Tom Wang and Kelly Quick, appeared before the commissioners to request that the commission agree to be sponsors on an application for grants. The Snowdrifters club is hoping to receive grant funds to build a snowmobile trail between Thief River Falls and

State-Led Effort Needed To Staunch Economic Wounds

The proposal to form partnerships between state economic development officials and the communities they serve met with across-the-state approval at meetings the state department of energy and economic development held earlier this year.

The more than 1,000 Minnesotans at the meetings agreed that agressive state-led efforts are needed to staunch the economic wounds, especially of Greater Minnesota, many of them citing the difference state help can mean to their communities. They urged continuation of past state programs in addition to strengthening partnerships between government and the business community. More access to programs and program funds was also seen as a critical element of future economic development efforts.

Four themes emerged from the comments of those attending the meetings:

(1) Minnesota faces unprecedented economic challenges, concern for the economic future is especially great in rural areas. It will be extremely difficult to reverse the downward spiral of the depression in farming, lack of income to spend on Main Street, and loss of young people to larger cities.

(2) Partnerships are critical to the state's economic future. Most people agreed that collective action is needed. Addressing failures in information and capital markets, meeting infrastructure needs, and remaining competitive with other states will involve both state and local governments and the business community. (3) Minnesota needs a strong, state-led effort in economic development. Pointing out what they called "positive results" of state programs, people listed the state's tourism programs, loans to businesses or municipalities, the Star Cities program, international trade assistance and the presence of a state agency which can act as an ombudsman.

(4) State reorganization is a concern. Changes, including budget cutbacks, under consideration in the current legislative session were questioned by many officials and individuals who said they feel that existing relationships are sound and that local people are becoming secure with existing state programs and administrators. Representatives of communities with Enterprise Zones said they would feel the loss if the zones' incentives were made less attractive.

Members of the various audiences complained that workers' compensation and other business costs are too high, infrastructure costs are accelerating, a proposed increase in commercial and industrial taxes would not help development, negative comments about Greater Minnesota's economic problems are not helping improve the prospects for economic growth, the possible hike in the minimum wage would create problems, and an emphasis on rural development could lead to a metropolitan area backlash.

Suggestions included the development of a comprehensive statewide approach to economic development involving education, promotion and research; better coordination and linkages among communities, and expanding trade missions.

David Speer, who became commissioner of the Department of Energy and Economic Development in December, says, "When I took this job, I wanted to find out how the people of Minnesota felt about the role of state government in economic development. It is clear to me that there is strong support for our department's activist role. In fact,"

ZEHLIANS and various individuals from throughout the community have formed a committee to study a proposed walkway along the river in Thief River Falls. The group pictured here was working on getting an estimate for the total project and writing grants. They have also created a group of speakers to visit any group interested in the project. ## Mother's Day Again...

...and time for us to tell our Mother all the things we didn't tell her during the past year.

Things like "Thank you," "I love you," and "Here, mom, let me help you." For those of us who are blessed with a close Mother-Child relationship, this day will give us a chance to say, in a very special way, the things we should have said by our words and actions all year long.

Those who are not blessed with this close relationship, should try to accomplish, in this one brief day, all the things they didn't do in the other 364. Sometimes we try so hard that we may seem insincere. But on this Mother's Day, make a conscious effort to repair all the neglect and broken relationship that may exist.

Certainly, you may not be able to erase all bitterness and alienation in one day, but you can make a start. And once you start, continue to mend the fences on a daily basis. Then next year, when it's Mother's Day again, you can both celebrate the joy of having each other.

You can both honestly say, "I love you."

SDA Church Pay Tribute To Seniors

by Marilyne Sayler

Sunday, April 12 at the Seventh-day Adventist Church paid tribute to its senior citizens and their guests by hosting a banquet in their honor. Thirty-two seniors attended the vegetarian repast, a lip-smacking meal of mashed potatoes and gravy, peas, cottage cheese loaf (a vegetarian entree), cranberry sauce, coleslaw, carrot sticks, celery sticks, whole wheat rolls, barley coffee and apple pie and ice cream. The seniors enjoyed table service as they were waited upon by several of the church's junior girls.

Emcee for the program was 80-year-old Vernon Emmerson, a retired minister who lives in Brainerd. Emmerson kept his audience entranced by reciting many lengthy poetic works from memory.

Musical entertainment was provided on the accordian by 80-year-old Gaylord Odegaard from Detroit Lakes. In addition, seven-year-old Luke Nordvick sang, "I'm Too Young To Serve In the Infantry" and a ladies' quartet sang, "The Longer I Serve Him the Sweeter He Grows."

When the guests first arrived at the banquet, they were asked to complete a questionnaire about their own lives. The responses to the questionnaire were tabulated and gifts were awarded in 16 different categories to several of the seniors present.

Ninety-on-year-old Ella Connely was given the Oldest Senior Present award. Eighty-nine-year-old Emma Paulson was a close runner-up and received honorable mention. Helen Simpson of Plummer received an award for having the most brothers and sisters. Commented Dr. Jerome Bray in presenting the award, "We always knew that Helen was a very special lady. Now we know why. Growing up with 11 brothers and sisters most assuredly taught her a lot about unselfishness and giving of herself — two characteristics that describe Helen very well." What Dr. Bray concluded to be character strengths of those raised in large families was further validated when it was later learned that Thelma Dalley of Red Lake Falls grew up with twelve brothers and sisters.

Alvin Farbo, Emma Paulson and Maynard Molskness all had five children of their own, resulting in a three-way tie in that category. The importance of the shrinking size of families, from a dozen children to five or less in one generation, did not miss commentator Dr. Bray.

Emma Paulson placed highest in two categories, largest baby and the most grandchildren. Her fifth child, a twelve pounder was delivered by Emma herself; the baby refused to wait until Emma's husband could get back home after fetching the doctor. As far as grandchildren, Mrs. Paulson boasts 15 of them in all. Guest Inga Geving, who gave birth to two and one-half pound twins, won the smallest baby category.

Dorothy Hanson won the award for having taught the most number of years.

Mae and Eugene Howes brag of 11 great grandchildren — "with one more in the hangar!" They proudly accepted the award for most great grandchildren.

That this group of seniors was well travelled was testified to by the following: the number of different states lived in was awarded to Vera Lundgren, who has lived in six different states. Emcee Vernon Emmerson placed first in two categories, having lived in the most houses (17 in all) and having visited the most states (49). Uncle Sam helped LaVern Johnson win the next category. Serving in the Armed Forces, he spent at least three months living in five different countries. Viola Bray of Detroit Lakes topped the visits to foreign countries section with 11.

Eighty-year-old Eugene Howes has personally visited with four United States presidents — Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson. He narrowly topped the three presidents that Millard Dailey has visited with — Roosevelt, Nixon and Johnson.

There were two couples who tied for being married the longest. Eugene and Mae Howes and Millard and Thelma Dailey will both celebrate 57 years of wedded bliss this year. After this award was presented it seemed fitting that Millard Dailey should also walk away with top honors for his response to the question, "When was the last time you told your spouse, "I love you."' "Just before dinner" was Dailey's answer. And when he was presented with his award I think I detected a little blush in the cheeks of his bride of 57 years.

To those who helped sponsor and prepare the banquet the rewards were many. To see the smiling faces and to hear the happy conversation of the elders, to respond to their comments of appreciation, and to spend time with them reflecting on days gone by made this an afternoon which would be cherished in the minds of both young and old alike.

ALVIN and Nellie Farbo were guests at the Seventh-day Adventist church tribute to senior citizens. The church hosted a banquet in honor of its senior citizens. Many area seniors attended the event, which included poetry readings, music, shared experiences and a meal.

EMMA PAULSON and Inga Geving were guests at the Seventh-day Adventist church tribute to senior citizens. The church hosted a banquet in honor of their senior citizens. Emcee for the program was Vernon Emmerson, retired minister who lives in Brainerd. The program included music poetry, shared experiences and a meal.

The commissioners also: agreed to increase the county engineers salary to $39,000, which is comparable to what engineers in the area are receiving; increased the cost of operation of the motor graders as a service to the public to $40 per hour; and moved on a contract with Midwest Ambulance services, which replaced Life Star ambulance. The contract gives the new ambulance service the right to request a subsidy from Quin County Board of Health, community services. The subsidy per year amounts to $14,183, however, a quarter of it has been used already by the previous ambulance service, Life Star ambulance.

Mother's Day Again...

...and time for us to tell our Mother all the things we didn't tell her during the past year.

Things like "Thank you," "I love you," and "Here, mom, let me help you." For those of us who are blessed with a close Mother-Child relationship, this day will give us a chance to say, in a very special way, the things we should have said by our words and actions all year long.

Those who are not blessed with this close relationship, should try to accomplish, in this one brief day, all the things they didn't do in the other 364. Sometimes we try so hard that we may seem insincere. But on this Mother's Day, make a conscious effort to repair all the neglect and broken relationship that may exist.

Certainly, you may not be able to erase all bitterness and alienation in one day, but you can make a start. And once you start, continue to mend the fences on a daily basis. Then next year, when it's Mother's Day again, you can both celebrate the joy of having each other.

You can both honestly say, "I love you."

SDA Church Pay Tribute To Seniors

by Marilyne Sayler

Sunday, April 12 at the Seventh-day Adventist Church paid tribute to its senior citizens and their guests by hosting a banquet in their honor. Thirty-two seniors attended the vegetarian repast, a lip-smacking meal of mashed potatoes and gravy, peas, cottage cheese loaf (a vegetarian entree), cranberry sauce, coleslaw, carrot sticks, celery sticks, whole wheat rolls, barley coffee and apple pie and ice cream. The seniors enjoyed table service as they were waited upon by several of the church's junior girls.

Emcee for the program was 80-year-old Vernon Emmerson, a retired minister who lives in Brainerd. Emmerson kept his audience entranced by reciting many lengthy poetic works from memory.

Musical entertainment was provided on the accordian by 80-year-old Gaylord Odegaard from Detroit Lakes. In addition, seven-year-old Luke Nordvick sang, "I'm Too Young To Serve In the Infantry" and a ladies' quartet sang, "The Longer I Serve Him the Sweeter He Grows."

When the guests first arrived at the banquet, they were asked to complete a questionnaire about their own lives. The responses to the questionnaire were tabulated and gifts were awarded in 16 different categories to several of the seniors present.

Ninety-on-year-old Ella Connely was given the Oldest Senior Present award. Eighty-nine-year-old Emma Paulson was a close runner-up and received honorable mention. Helen Simpson of Plummer received an award for having the most brothers and sisters. Commented Dr. Jerome Bray in presenting the award, "We always knew that Helen was a very special lady. Now we know why. Growing up with 11 brothers and sisters most assuredly taught her a lot about unselfishness and giving of herself — two characteristics that describe Helen very well." What Dr. Bray concluded to be character strengths of those raised in large families was further validated when it was later learned that Thelma Dailey of Red Lake Falls grew up with twelve brothers and sisters.

Alvin Farbo, Emma Paulson and Maynard Molskness all had five children of their own, resulting in a three-way tie in that category. The importance of the shrinking size of families, from a dozen children to five or less in one generation, did not miss commentator Dr. Bray.

Emma Paulson placed highest in two categories, largest baby and the most grandchildren. Her fifth child, a twelve pounder was delivered by Emma herself; the baby refused to wait until Emma's husband could get back home after fetching the doctor. As far as grandchildren, Mrs. Paulson boasts 15 of them in all. Guest Inga Geving, who gave birth to two and one-half pound twins, won the smallest baby category.

Dorothy Hanson won the award for having taught the most number of years.

Mae and Eugene Howes brag of 11 great grandchildren — "with one more in the hangar!" They proudly accepted the award for most great grandchildren.

That this group of seniors was well travelled was testified to by the following: the number of different states lived in was awarded to Vera Lundgren, who has lived in six different states. Emcee Vernon Emmerson placed first in two categories, having lived in the most houses (17 in all) and having visited the most states (49). Uncle Sam helped LaVern Johnson win the next category. Serving in the Armed Forces, he spent at least three months living in five different countries. Viola Bray of Detroit Lakes topped the visits to foreign countries section with 11.

Eighty-year-old Eugene Howes has personally visited with four United States presidents — Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson. He narrowly topped the three presidents that Millard Dailey has visited with — Roosevelt, Nixon and Johnson.

There were two couples who tied for being married the longest. Eugene and Mae Howes and Millard and Thelma Dailey will both celebrate 57 years of wedded bliss this year. After this award was presented it seemed fitting that Millard Dailey should also walk away with top honors for his response to the question, "When was the last time you told your spouse, "I love you."" "Just before dinner" was Dailey's answer. And when he was presented with his award I think I detected a little blush in the cheeks of his bride of 57 years.

To those who helped sponsor and prepare the banquet the rewards were many. To see the smiling faces and to hear the happy conversation of the elders, to respond to their comments of appreciation, and to spend time with them reflecting on days gone by made this an afternoon which would be cherished in the minds of both young and old alike.

The commissioners also: agreed to increase the county engineers salary to $39,000, which is comparable to what engineers in the area are receiving; increased the cost of operation of the motor graders as a service to the public to $40 per hour; and moved on a contract with Midwest Ambulance services, which replaced Life Star ambulance. The contract gives the new ambulance service the right to request a subsidy from Quin County Board of Health, community services. The subsidy per year amounts to $14,183, however, a quarter of it has been used already by the previous ambulance service, Life Star ambulance.

Centennial Wedding Couple

(EAST GRAND FORKS) EXPONENT — Christine McDonald and John Blaufuss, both of East Grand Forks, have been selected as the first couple to be married in the Granville Community church on the Heritage grounds at the AVTI. The couple will receive a number of prizes from city merchants and have the honor of being the city's centennial wedding couple.

Fire Was Set

(EAST GRAND FORKS) EXPONENT — Investigation by the East Grand Forks Fire Department and the State Fire Marshall's office has determined that the March 8 fire in the Bridge Bar was intentionally set.

How About A Brown Bag?

KITTSON COUNTY ENTERPRISE — Kittson county commissioners are asking for an increase in their meal allowances — the ones they are allowed when they tend to county business, attend county meetings, conventions or such. Their representative, Paul Clay, court administrator, asked that actual expenses be raised to $4 for breakfast, $7 for dinner and $14 for supper. At the most recent county board meeting, commissioner Lindberg stated that he had heard complaints about the increase from various county residents.

I Remember Mama

BAUDETTE REGION — The Baudette Region is promoting Mothers' Day with a special feature in which readers may print a message to and-or a picture of their mother in the issue before Mothers' Day.

Save The Camp

BAUDETTE REGION — The boy scout camp on Lake of the Woods may have to be closed this summer. For years, the Baudette American Legion Post has leased the camp land from the state of Minnesota, with the understanding that they pay for liability insurance on the land. Last year the state doubled its requirements for liability insurance from $100,000 per person and $200,000 per incident to $200,000 per person and $600,000 per incident and the Legion can no longer afford to pay the insurance coverage. In an effort to keep the park open, the county board proposed that they buy the land from the state and then set lower insurance requirements, but that solution is an impossibility under present state law, which says one government subdivision can't buy land from another. The only solution to the problem seems to be a straight exchange of land, which would be allowable. The Lake of the Woods county board took steps toward that exchange at their *recent meeting, proposing to ex*change a 24.05-acre tract of county-owned land at the Northwest Angle for the 10.52 acres on the south shore of the lake where the camp is located. If the exchange does go through, the county would dedicate the land as a county park for the use of the general public, as well as the use of the scouts.

Assault Charges

CROOKSTON DAILY TIMES — Roberto Delvalle of Crookston pleaded not guilty last week in Crookston district court to a charge of assault in the second degree. Trial date is pending. According to the police report, Delvalle, 29, allegedly pointed a knife in a threatening manner towards Sister Justina, director of the Care and Share Center in Crookston. He told Sister Justina that he hates Americans and that he had the knife because he fears for his safety. Delvalle was apprehended without incident.

DWI

CROOKSTON DAILY TIMES — Miles Corneillie, 34, of Thief River Falls, pleaded guilty in Crookston district court to the charge of DWI within five years of a prior conviction. Pre-sentence investigation was ordered and sentencing set for June 1.

Come Fly Here, Please

WARROAD PIONEER — The Warroad city council recently approved issuing a letter of invitation to Bemidji airlines to serve the city of Warroad, after discussing the pros and cons of having an airline stop there.

Fire Loss

NORTH STAR NEWS — A fire in Karlstad that started in the motor of a Dodge Omni spread to the front wall of a nearby mobile home the morning of April 26. Alert firefighters kept the blaze from damaging the home further, but the vehicle was totalled. Both the car and the home are owned by Gary and Paula Johnson. They and their two sons were uninjured.

Whoops — It Slipped

BAUDETTE REGION — Mark Newman of Sprague, Manitoba, or Trapper Export of Winnipeg will be getting a rather sizeable bill from the city of Baudette soon. A trailer owned and driven by Newman, and leased by Trappers Export, was parked on a side street in Baudette while the driver used his tractor to make a quick trip to Rainy River. Shortly after he disappeared from the scene, the front supports holding the trailer upright sank into the pavement, causing the trailer to sink to its frame. Two front end loaders and other assorted equipment were used to lift the laden trailer and place it back on the tractor. The city plans to send the bill for street damage to the owner or renter.

Little Marvin-Mini Mule

GRYGLA EAGLE — Little Marvin, a mini mule, was born April 18 at the Norman Hagen farm near Argyle. The colt weighed 16 pounds, measured 21 inches high and was 20 inches long at birth. His mother is a silver-dappled Shetland pony.

Sunday Morning Devotion

LEADER-RECORD — Clover Chapel, near Clearbrook, will have running water and indoor rest rooms for the first time this year. Carol Reed in "Along Main Street" says that things were a little tough for the hardy souls who worship there, but there will certainly be praises sung as they see the last of the old outhouse.

Artistry In Stone

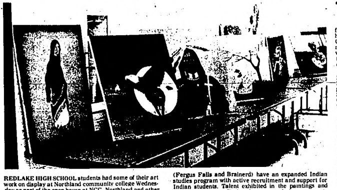
(CLEARBROOK) FARMERS INDEPENDENT — Wes Ellis of Shevlin received a signed thank-you and an autographed picture of President Reagan for a gift he sent to the president. The gift was a stone horse's head tie holder with small boots for the end of the tie. Ellis carved the head and boots himself, using Minnesota stone for the head and slate for its eyes and mane. The boots were made from Irish Connemara marble sent to Ellis from a stone carver in Ireland. Ellis feels a special kinship with President Reagan since they are both Irish. Ellis is a stone carver artist who uses stone from all over the world and an electric drill, a dremel with diamond bits and a circular saw with diamond blades and a water coolant. He began his art work by carving stone with a jack knife. He does not paint his work, but uses different types of stone to create colors in his carvings of elephants, woodpeckers, Canadian geese, owls, bears and loons.



REDLAKE HIGH SCHOOL students had some of their art work on display at Northland community college Wednesday as part of the open house at NCC. Northland and other colleges in the Clearwater community college region (Fergus Falls and Brainerd) have an expanded Indian studies program with active recruitment and support for Indian students. Talent exhibited in the paintings and ceramic works on display drew appreciative comments from many open house visitors.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

They Were Right . . . And Wrong

Paul Harvey, writing for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, prepared the following which was published recently in the "Minnkota Messenger", a quarterly publication of Minnkota Power cooperative in Grand Forks, ND:

When this century was born — 1900 — Tom Edison turned off the dark. But, not for everybody.

In the United States, farm men and women went about their chores much as their ancestors had — milking by lantern light, reading beside an oil lamp, cleaning lamps — and trimming wicks and carrying fuel into the house and ashes out.

Several trips a day brought water from the windmill a bucket at a time. Wash days, many trips. Scrubbing, wringing, rinsing, hanging. And ironing with a stove-heated flatiron.

Wood had to be cut by hand for the house heat and the kitchen stove. Farm men were old young; farm women were stoop shouldered at 30 and dead at 50.

By 1929, 95 per cent of French farmers had electricity. Ninety per cent of Japan's farmers had electricity. Only three per cent of America's farmers had electricity.

Rural electrification was neither cheap nor easy. Stringing lines in rural areas cost $2,000 a mile when $2,000 was what $200,000 is. Many farmers had to pay that cost themselves.

Until 1933, when Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and President Franklin D. Roosevelt authorized the Electric Home and Farm Authority (EHFA), and then with the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) loan to coops, farmers got help.

From the day the lights came on, farm life in the United States was never the same. No more bedtime trips to the outhouse. Plumbing was indoors and water was warm. With radio and then TV, the most remote farmstead had a window as wide as the world.

What took us so long to put electricity to work? Partly the high cost and an untimely depression. Partly because it was admittedly "a dangerous servant."

Most of the early opposition came from well-meaning people who were worried!

"Alternating current could shock you, kill you."

And they were right.

Such were the hazards of electricity that if we did not have it today — and left the choice to the OSHA — we might never have it. Because it is dangerous, it does kill people. And we'd dare not risk that.

But, Americans did accept the calculated risks and did pay the price and still do — it hurts and burns and lives lost — because the benefits so far outweigh potential hazards.

Now, Americans, in 1987, we are asking ourselves about nuclear power, about insecticides, about space flight and fluorocarbons.

And there are paranoid bureaucrats and technocrats warning us that each of these may kill somebody.

And, they are right.

And, they are wrong.

Murphy's Law Of Motherhood

Any parent, not only mothers, will agree with the likelihood of the following "laws" presented by Virginia M. Charles which govern the rearing of children:

- Food left on a child's plate is never enough to keep, but always too much to throw away.
- The time a child spends playing with a toy is inversely proportional to its cost.
- Children wake up earlier Saturday morning than any other morning of the week.
- If you dress your child first when going out, he'll get messed up while you dress. If you dress first, you'll get messed up dressing him.
- The second child will fall asleep for his nap when the first child wakes up from his.
- After your last, vehement warning about spilling milk, the next glass of milk to be spilled will be yours.

Good For Lawmakers . . . Bad For Consumers

Following comments were written by Bob McFarlin Jr., associate director of the Minnesota Petroleum council:

A recent legislative proposal to levy the state's six per cent sales tax on the wholesale price of gasoline should be rejected. The plan would increase taxes on gasoline, but bury those increases in higher retail gasoline prices. That's good for lawmakers but bad news for gasoline consumers.

The sales tax plan has surfaced during debate over how to fund state highway programs. Legislators are trying to replace $230 million in motor vehicle excise tax funds Governor Perpich insists on taking from highways and using in the general fund, and also provide new money for additional highway projects.

Taxpayers, however, have voiced objection to proposals to increase the state gasoline excise tax (currently 17 cents per gallon), the traditional method of raising state highway dollars. So lawmakers are searching for a way to provide more money for highways without looking like they're increasing taxes. Thus, the sales tax plan.

The gasoline sales tax would be levied and collected at the wholesale level and passed on to consumers as an increase in the retail price. For example, if the wholesale price of gasoline were 60 cents per gallon, the sales tax would be 3.6 cents per gallon and the price of gas would be 3.6 cents higher at the retail pump.

Legislators like the gasoline sales tax because, even though taxes would increase, the highly visible gasoline excise tax would stay constant. Consumers would pay a higher price for gasoline, but where the price increase came from would be unclear. It is estimated the current proposal would cost consumers $161 million over two years.

The gasoline sales tax proposal not only shields legislators from tax increase criticism today, but also from tax increase responsibility in the future. A gasoline sales tax automatically raises more money as the cost of fuel increases, relieving legislators of the burden of matching highway funding programs with highway needs. Furthermore, in tight energy times, higher energy prices would provide the state a gasoline sales tax windfall.

Along with the problems faced by taxpayers, a sales tax would be difficult and costly to administer within the complicated gasoline marketing chain. From refinery to retail pump, gasoline can pass through one or several wholesale levels. At which wholesale price level will the tax be levied and from whom will it be collected? How will farmers, municipalities and other tax-exempt gasoline users calculate their exemptions? There are more questions than answers.

To solve the state's highway funding problems, legislators should first not allow the governor to use motor vehicle excise tax funds to balance the general fund. That money should be used for highways.

Next, if the need truly exists for more highway funds, legislators should have the courage to increase the state gasoline excise tax and allow citizen-taxpayers to judge the wisdom of that increase. A wholesale gasoline sales tax is a sleight-of-hand approach that muddles and distorts a simple public policy issue.

If the lull in the next party conversation becomes a little longer than usual, here are a few bits of unusual information that anyone can relate to and should get the ball rolling again:

Borrowed Nonsense:

Old Booze was a coonhound that had the misfortune to chase one of the masked critters across a railroad track just ahead of a train that cut off his tail. His owner was attempting to sew the tail back on when the sheriff came along and arrested him. "You ought to know, Hiram," the sheriff said, "that it's against the law to re-tail Booze without a license."

Two retailers were constant competitors. One day one placed a sign in his window which offered "Electric Mixers—$6.95", knowing he had by far a better price than his competitor. But the other merchant was not to be outdone. The same day a sign went up in his window that stated: "We Repair $6.95 Mixers".

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As long as the attitude of lawmakers at the State Capitol is "spend spend spend," taxpayers will continue to "pay pay pay."

When the 1987 legislative session began in January, Minnesota was already spending $500 more on government services for every man, woman and child than the average state. And now your legislator, Rep. Wally Sparby, wants state spending to go up even more.

On April 29, Representative Sparby voted to increase taxes by more than $500 million dollars! Now he will probably come home and tell you that a tax increase is necessary to prevent "deep cuts" in vital programs. Well, that argument is nonsense. Thanks to inflation and economic growth, lawmakers already have $540 million more to work with this year as they set the state budget . . . with no new taxes. That means Representative Sparby and his colleagues can fully fund every government program, build in up to $540 million growth, and still not raise taxes.

But Representative Sparby doesn't think $540 million of additional spending is enough. So he voted to substantially raise taxes and spending, despite the serious harm those increases will inflict on efforts to generate jobs and economic growth in rural Minnesota.

Let me summarize our position. We can't create jobs in rural Minnesota by increasing taxes. The Minnesota Chamber is not advocating a reduction in actual spending or diminished government services to a single Minnesotan. We are, instead, attempting to restrain the rate of growth in the state budget to $540 million . . . with no tax increases! We have asked Representative Sparby to join us in that effort, but our pleas have fallen on deaf ears. We think the citizens of your community should know about it and discuss the issue with your representative.

Sincerely,
-s- Win Borden
President of the Minnesota
Chamber of Commerce

Manning Presents Seminar During Small Business Week

Gerald L. Manning has been a leading marketing and new product development consultant to inventors and entrepreneurs for the last decade. An author-inventor himself, he has taken his own innovation and developed it into the best-selling product of its kind in the United States. As a seminar leader, successful business person, and educator, Manning has shared his experience and creative insight with thousands of entrepreneurs in every major city in the country.

"I maintain that for the next 15 years the most valued commodity will be the ability to sell things, and interact with other people," he said. "That includes selling ideas and one's self to others, and developing individual potential. Don't ever miss an opportunity to recognize the human being-ness of another person. It only takes a minute," Manning said.

During the past year, Manning has given speeches on Marketing, Motivation, Management and Sales, in Miami, New Orleans, Chicago, Denver, Memphis, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, Los Angeles, Raleigh, Des Moines, and St. Louis. He has a unique blend of personal dynamics, creative insight, caring attitude toward development of his audiences; and broad successful background, ranging from city councilman to race car driver, educator to business person, author to avid reader, salesman to manager, and platform speaker to appearing in a new sales film.

Manning graduated from Lincoln Senior High School and was a student at the local AVTI. He is currently Department Chair of the Management and Marketing Department of Des Moines Area Community college; the author of several Sales and Management books — one of which is the No. 1 selling Sales book used in colleges and universities today.

"Before You Can Move The World, You Must First Move Yourself," and "Achieving Success and Generating a Profit in the New Economy," are the two topics that former Thief River Falls resident, Gerald Manning, will address on Monday, May 11, at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln Senior High School Auditorium.

Tickets are available for $20, in Thief River Falls at Norwest Bank, the Small Business Development Center in the AVTI, PKM Electric in Warren, the Crookston Chamber of Commerce, and also at the door. For further information, call (218) 681-5424 or 1-800-222-AVTI.

Seminar sponsors are the Thief River Falls AVTI Sales and Marketing program, and the Small Business Development Center.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

"I received this morning a telegram from a chamber of commerce in my state, urging me to vote against a bill before us," Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota told his fellow Senators one chilly day in January of 1912: "This afternoon I received a telegram from another business organization, asking me to vote for it. What does business really think?

Senator Nelson's difficulty in ascertaining the true opinion of business was shared by many politicians of his day, including President William Howard Taft. On March 1 of that year, he called for a conference in Washington of commercial and trade organizations and directed Secretary of Commerce and Labor Charles Nagel to arrange it.

Back in those days, our government did things quickly. On April 22, 1912, 700 business delegates from every state in the union and from Alaska, the Philippines, Puerto Rico and the American Chambers of Commerce of Paris, Brussels and Constantinople convened at Washington's Willard hotel in response to the President's call.

"We want your assistance in carrying on the government in reference to those matters that affect the business and the business welfare of the country," the President said, "and we do not wish to limit your discretion in that matter. We wish that your advice should be as free and unrestricted as possible, but we need your assistance and we ask for it."

Secretary Nagel then asked the conference to establish "the basis for a national chamber of commerce that will represent the entire country actively and intelligently." Within 48 hours, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce was a reality.

From that day to the present, the U.S. Chamber has sought to present a unified voice of business in the nation's capital. Our mission is "to advance human progress through an economic, political and social system based on individual freedom, incentive, initiative, opportunity and responsibility."

Of course, bringing a unified voice to business is no simple task. The U.S. Chamber represents tens of thousands of state and local chambers, trade and professional associations and businesses of every size in countless lines of commerce. The secret to our success is our democratic process in which hundreds of people from a cross section of our membership meet to hammer out consensus positions on important issues. When the U.S. Chamber speaks, it does so with credibility and impact.

Down through the years, the U.S. Chamber has exercized a dynamic and positive influence on public affairs. I believe the founders of the U.S. Chamber would be proud of what we have accomplished and that we will continue to honor our proud tradition in years to come.

"When Congress makes a law," Will Rogers said, "it's a joke, and when Congress makes a joke, it's a law."

We all have seen Congress impose jokes on the American people from time to time, though the sense of humor displayed by our elected representatives is not always universally appreciated. In any event, this time the joke is on Congress and it is our turn to laugh.

You see, every time Congress passes one of those ground-breaking laws it is so proud of, such as the Equal Pay Act, the Pregnancy Discrimination Act or the Occupational Safety and Health Act, it always excludes itself from coverage. Thus, while business struggles to fill out all the paperwork required to assure compliance with labor laws or spends billions to comply with job safety and health regulations, Congress goes on its merry way doing as it pleases.

It's not for nothing that they call Congress "The Last Plantation." Employees of Congress have no rights at all. Members of Congress are virtual laws unto themselves, even as they make lofty pronouncements about how the rest of us should live and behave.

But not this time. Last year, when Congress enacted the Immigration Reform Act, it made an itsy-bitsy mistake. It forgot to exempt itself. This time, when employers around the country find themselves knee-deep in confusing regulations and paperwork requirements they will have some company.

This could turn out to be a most educational and beneficial experience for our leaders. Let them try to check the credentials of every new employee. Let them try to verify whether a job applicant's credentials are valid and not forged. Let them try to decipher the confusing regulations put out by the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Let them fork over $1,000 every time they forget to fill out a form, dot every "i," or cross every "t." And let them be subject to antidiscrimination charges if they over-comply with this new law.

I would love to be in one of the Capitol dining rooms the day an INS inspector shows up demanding to see everyone's green card. Some of our most illustrious public servants could find themselves trampled by waiters and busboys fleeing to the four winds. And when our senators and representatives discover that they too may be subject to civil and criminal penalties for hiring undocumented aliens, guess who may join the stampede?

Oh, there will be weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth on Capitol Hill. But be not dismayed, ladies and gentlemen of the House and Senate. As you have been telling us for years, this is the price of progress. The law is the law and applies to everyone. You know this is a good, solid, well thought out piece of legislation. After all, you wrote it. If it causes you a bit of inconvenience, well, that is the price we must all pay for an orderly and just society.

Am I right?

"Titanic" Was Unsinkable Ship Until Meeting With Iceberg

by Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

"So the crash came, it sounded like this to me, like tearing a strip off a piece of calico nothing more only a quiver..." "...the ship rolling over a thousand marbles..." "...as though somebody had drawn a giant finger along the side of the ship..." "An accident in the kitchen" thought Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

It would be hard to guess these accounts described the collision of the world's largest man-made moving object of its day — the R.M.S. Titanic — with a frozen colossus — a giant iceberg. Their fateful meeting on the night of April 14, 1912, sent the ship the press had dubbed "unsinkable" to the depths of the North Atlantic with 1,523 men, women and children aboard. The Titanic would not be seen again for 73 years.

For three-quarters of a century, the lost luxury liner has captivated the public imagination. And since she was found on Sept. 1, 1985, about 350 miles southeast of Newfoundland at 12,500 feet by an American-French team of oceanographers, interest in her past and controversy over her future have been building.

This 75th anniversary year of one of modern history's greatest sea disasters is being marked by new books, lectures, television specials and even a board game with a ship model that can be raised or lowered. Over the years, there have been at least 100 books, 300 songs, movies, plays, an opera, cartoons and macabre synonym for an exercise in futility — rearranging the deck chairs on the Titanic. At the Library of Congress, inquiries about the Titanic are second only to those about the Civil War.

With all of the world's distractions and disasters, why the ongoing fascination with a ship that sank in 1912? "Titanic's story has so many facets — historic, scientific and personal," John Eaton believes. Eaton, who in 1963 was one of the founders of the Titanic Historical Society, likens the tale to a kaleidoscope. "Hold it up to the light, see the design. Give it a quarter turn and you have a new aspect."

Charles Haas, the society's president, who with Eaton has written a new book, Titanic, Triumph and Tragedy (W.W. Northon Co., 1986), thinks the fascination lies in the story's inherent drama. "We admire the great displays of courage and heroism — latent qualities in people not often seen in this hurry-up world," he says. "Modern disasters like air crashes and the Challenger tragedy leave little opportunity to be heroic."

The pride of the White Star Line sailed under British and American Flags when she steamed out of Southampton, England, on her maiden voyage to New York on April 10, 1912. The ship's builders, Harland and Woolf of Belfast, Ireland, and her owners were proud that she had been built to the highest standards of quality and available technology.

Fully-equipped, the liner had cost $7.5 million. Every detail, from the steel-plated hull to the delicate 21-light chandelier that graced the grand staircase, had been carefully planned and executed. The Titanic was equipped with a powerful Marconi wireless apparatus, a special cellular bottom, watertight bulkheads and doors and four more lifeboats than the 16 required by British Board of Trade regulations.

Sixteen lifeboats, it was later calculated, would hold only a quarter of the 3,547-person certified capacity of the ship. Lifeboats for all on board were not thought necessary in an Edwardian world with supreme confidence in its technology. "I cannot imagine any condition which would cause a ship to founder ..Modern shipbuilding has gone beyond that," Capt. Edward J. Smith opined six years before he took command of the Titanic. Smith met a captain's fate when the ship went down.

The Titanic was a post-Edwardian world afloat. The rigid class-structure of life before the First World War was protected aboard by distinct accommodations, spaces and treatment accorded first-, second- and third-class passengers.

First-class had a lounge modeled after a room at Versailles, a palm court, a Parisian cafe, an Arabian-style Turkish bath, a gymnasium, a squash court, 11 styles of staterooms, a lounge for maids and valets and a first-class kennel for the likes of the Astor Airedale, Kitty. A certain Billy Carter of Philadelphia needed space for 60 shirts, 15 pairs of shoes, two sets of tails, 24 polo sticks and his Renault motor car. The most exclusive suites cost $4,350 for one-way passage — the equivalent of about $55,000 today.

Second and third-class one-way passages averaged a mere $65 and $35, respectively. Second-class passengers had spacious staterooms, handsome public rooms and their own promenade. Third-class passengers — most of them immigrants — had far better accomodations aboard the Titanic than such travelers had known before. There were airy and well-lighted public rooms and staterooms with several berths instead of dormitories.

All in all, the ship's company must have been rather content on their fifth night out. The sea was calm and the weather clear but bitingly cold. There had been warnings of icebergs in the area, but the ship steamed confidently ahead at 21.5 knots. High in the crow's nest under a star-encrusted sky, at just a bit before 11:40, the lookout suddenly rang the warning bell three times and reported to the bridge: "Iceberg right ahead." In half a minute, the "safest" and most beautiful ship afloat was doomed.

On her starboard side, about 12 feet above the keel, Titanic's underbelly was struck by a spur jutting from the iceberg's mass. Hard as an icy diamond, the projectile caused a wound that exposed the ship's "watertight" compartments to the onrush of the sea.

In the scant two hours and 40 minutes left to the Titanic and the 2,228 people aboard, there was never, according to accounts of survivors on deck in the last moments, any general panic. And some of the behavior was the stuff of legends.

Mining tycoon Benjamin Guggenheim and his valet Victor Giglio dressed in evening clothes and prepared to go down like gentlemen. Archie Butt, President Taft's military aide, sat down to a last hand of cards with his cronies. Ida Straus refused to leave her husband Isidor, a Macy's partner, and the couple, on deck chairs, awaited the end. John Jacob Astor, one of America's richest men, politely asked to join his 19-year-old wife Madeleine, who was in "delicate condition," in the lifeboat. When refused, he kissed his wife and returned to the deck. The eight bandsmen played ragtime and waltzes to cheer the passengers right to the last. All went down with the ship.

There was nobility and there was human frailty. The cry was "women and children first," but there was poor organization and inconsistent policy in loading the lifeboats. Of first- and second-class women and children, 94 per cent were saved but only 42 per cent of those in third class survived. Of the first and second-class children, only little Lorraine Allison perished with her family, but 52 out of 79 third-class children died.

One who was saved was 10-month-old Frank (Filly) Aks, on his way with his mother to Norfolk, Va., to join his father in a new life. According to family legend, "a man grabbed me from my mother's arms and threw me into a lifeboat right into a woman's lap." Frank and his mother were reunited on board the Carpathia, the rescue ship that began picking up 705 survivors from lifeboats less than two hours after the Titanic sank.

Not so lucky was Marjorie Newell Robb, who today is the only surviving first-class passenger. Marjorie, then 23, and her sister Madeleine lost their adored father. Arthur Newell and his girls were on a world tour. "In those days, it was an honor if your father took you for a Sunday walk," she recalls.

Now that the Titanic has been found in international waters, various groups here and abroad are planning expeditions to salvage artifacts, to produce a television special from 12,500 feet and to attempt raising and end rewriting the ship.

Dr. Robert Ballard, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution scientist and explorer, led the U.S. team that originally found the Titanic with a remote video camera system. Last summer, he and team members explored the site in a three-man submersible called Alvin. In October of 1985, Ballard told a congressional committee: "In short, the great pyramids of the deep are now accessible to man. He can either plunder them like the grave robbers of Egypt or protect them for the countless generations which will follow ours."

In the months before the second Titanic expedition, Ballard and other WHOI officials met with representatives of the Smithsonian Institution to discuss the historical significance of finding the Titanic and the implications of the rapidly developing new technology that did the job. William Withuhn, deputy chairman of the Department of Science and Technology of the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, expressed the Smithsonian's support for a sanctuary principle.

"Physically having artifacts from the Titanic won't add to our knowledge of the ship," Withuhn says "We are excited about the results of the Woods Hole expeditions, but we would not accept artifacts brought up by any group. We shouldn't forget that the Titanic's final resting place is also the final resting place of 1,523 people."

Iowa Group Joins NFO Marketing For That State

A series of 24 informational meetings, conducted last week across the state of Iowa by Iowa Farmers Union and National Farmers Organization officials, kicked off a joint marketing agreement between the two major farm organizations.

The meetings, according to NFO livestock director Walt Hackney, were held for IFU and NFO members to explain how the marketing agreement will work in marketing grain and livestock through NFO collection facilities. "As we begin to block our production together and work as businessmen to price our own production through collective bargaining, we will pull ourselves and all farmers out of this agricultural tailspin," he said.

Hackney added that in addition to IFU and NFO members, the meetings were well attended by bankers, ASCS officials and small businessmen — a cross section of those being affected by the current ag crisis.

Iowa Farmers Union President Gary Lamb added: "We've really been encouraged (about the marketing agreement) from the number of new memberships we have received. Most of those new memberships have been younger farmers who are medium or larger producers. That will create an opportunity to block more volume and that has to be an advantage for the National Farmers Organization and ourselves, at the same time.

"I am certainly willing," he emphasized, "to encourage Iowa Farmers Union members to participate in that marketing tool called collective bargaining."

The joint marketing agreement, which was signed by Lamb and NFO President DeVon Woodland October 16 in Des Moines, allows IFU members — through their Farmers Union membership — to market their grain and livestock commodities through the National Farmers Organization collection points. This marketing effort will increase production volumes moving through NFO and will allow bargainers to negotiate for higher prices.

Nitrite Scare Of 1970's Results In Safer Food Today

Nitrate and nitrite salts, ingredients which impart color and flavor to cured meats and help protect them from botulism, created alarm in the 9170's when they were found to form cancer-causing nitroso compounds.

Sparked by this concern, intensified research over the past 18 years has resulted in two parallel benefits for consumers, according to an in-depth review by an Institute of Food Technologists (IFT) group.

IFT's expert panel on food safety and nutrition reports that research showed how to reduce the use of nitrate and nitrite in foods, and it produced more accurate — and far lower — findings of actual nitroso compounds.

IFT is the professional society of food scientists.

"While some risk theoretically remains, an argument can also be made that without nitrite, consumers might face increased risk from botulism," said Dr. Joanne Slavin of the department of food science and nutrition at the University of Minnesota, IFT regional communicator for Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Other foods besides cured meats contain tiny traces of nitroso compounds (nitrosamines), the food scientists note in IFT's scientific status summary, "Nitrate, Nitrite and Nitroso Compounds in Foods." These include cheeses, beer, dried fish and Scotch whisky.

Consumers are also exposed to nitrosamines from several sources other than foods and beverages, notably cigarette smoke, cosmetics and automobile interiors.

Indeed, extensive research has shown that bacon is the only cured meat product that routinely contains nitrosamines — and only after it has been fried.

According to report co-author, Dr. Joseph Hotchkiss, Cornell University, "human daily exposure to nitrosamines from fried bacon was estimated in 1982 to be only two-fifths as much as from cosmetics and one-hundredth as much as what we get from exposure to cigarette smoke". Beer at that time contained two to five times more nitrosamines than fried bacon.

The status summary reports, however, that adjustment of brewing and meat processing during the past five years make it likely that nitrosamine levels in both beer and fried bacon are considerably lower today.

According to the food scientists, people are also exposed to nitrosamines through normal physiological processes.

Nitrosamines can be formed in the stomach through a reaction between nitrite and digestion products from protein. The nitrite can come from foods which contain nitrite or from conversion of nitrate to nitrite in the body, the scientists point out.

The major source of dietary nitrate is vegetables, the IFT report says. Dietary nitrate is quickly absorbed after ingestion and is circulated in the blood. It is then secreted and concentrated in the saliva, where microorganisms in the mouth convert it to nitrite. The nitrite is swallowed, resulting in the formation of nitrosamines in the stomach.

The bottom line of the IFT report is, bacon lovers and beer drinkers can relax and enjoy their foods. "It is unlikely that any food or beverage contains levels of nitrosamines high enough to cause concern" said Dr. Robert Cassens, of the University of Wisconsin and co-author of the report.

County To Discuss Date For Meeting On Waste Site

Pennington county commissioners will discuss when a public meeting will be held on a proposed low level radio-active waste site Tuesday during its regular commission meeting beginning 10 a.m. Tuesday in commission chambers on the second floor of the county courthouse.

Ken Olson, county auditor, said the public meeting has been tentatively set for May 28 in the Thief River Falls city auditorium. A panel of speakers has also tentatively agreed to speak at the meeting. They include Dagmar Romano of the Minnesota pollution control agency, John Closs of Northern State Power, Dick Anderson of the Minnesota Institute with concern for public health, and Harry Rosefeldt.

The radio-active waste to be stored at the site includes waste generated from states belonging to the Midwest Interstate low-level radioactive waste compact. Those states include Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisoconsin.

It is not certain that a site will be located in Minnesota, but a public hearing has been scheduled to discuss the possibility of a site and the options that go along with that decision.

For the purposes of this site, low-level radio-active waste is defined by what it is not: (1) spent nuclear reactor fuel; (2) high level waste from the reprocessing of spent nuclear reactor fuel or nuclear weapons production reactor fuel; (3) transuranic waste (nuclear weapons production by-products with atomic numbers greater than that of uranium); or (4) uranium mining and milling residues. Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio have been selected as possible host states of a low-level radioactive waste site.

Citizenship Has Special Meaning

Local Resident Caught In Bureaucratic Tangle

by David Hill
Times Reporter

When Irene Fellman of Thief River Falls received her passport from the United States department of state passport agency in Seattle, WA, she was at once pleased and extremely angry.

She was pleased because she would finally be able to visit friends and family she left behind in England nearly 42 years ago, but angry because the only proof her citizenship did not come back and has been missing ever since the day she sent it in March.

"Yes, I'm angry," said Fellman. "My naturalization certificate is extremely important to me."

Irene Fellman came to the United States shortly after World War II — April 7, 1946, to be precise. Irene remembers that she left on a day in late February from a port in Liverpool, England, and sailed for 11 days and 10 nights. She arrived in Nova Scotia, Canada, on Thursday, March 7, 1946. From there she took a train to Winnipeg and then eventually arrived in the United States on April 7.

It took her some time to get used to a number of changes, she said. Money was the most difficult. She didn't learn to understand it until someone sat down with her and made her learn, fearing that others would take advantage of her. Irene said whenever she went to purchase something she just held out a handful of money and asked the clerk to take what was needed.

Irene considers herself Americanized now. She even drinks coffee now and then. But the fact that she's from a different country is still apparent from an accent that calls to mind the green rolling hills of England and white-washed country cottages. She also likes a good strong tea and an occasional taste of treacle pudding, the ingredients for which she can only get in Canada.

Making the adjusment to a new way of life was not easy and neither was it easy for her to become a citizen of a different country. In 1970, after setting aside thoughts of someday returning to her home in England, she decided to adopt America as her home.

Irene believes many Americans have forgotten what it takes to become a citizen. It angers her that IRENE FELLMAN and her husband Winton "Swede" Fellman are trying to understand why Irene's naturalization certificate, which proves her citizenship, was lost. Her certificate was sent in to the passport agency in Seattle, WA, so that she could get a passport. She hasn't seen the certificate since she sent it in in March.

Council Reviews Pay Equity Plan For City Employees

Thief River Falls city council heard a proposal Thursday afternoon by Arthur Young's Human Resources Consulting group to provide the city of Thief River Falls assistance in meeting requirements under the 1984 local government pay equity act.

The city has received a study of job values and resulting job hierarchy as determined by the evaluation points generated from FOCUS. The city has not officially accepted the proposal, known as a comparable worth plan.

Arthur Young consultants proposed to complete the project and bring the city into compliance with the 1984 pay equity act. Scope of the study is such that all of the city's 54 positions in approximately 34 job classifications are included.

John H. Coskey, consultant for Arthur Young and company, described the specific steps involved to conduct the study. The result of the study is to develop a revised salary administration program which reflects integration of the recent job evaluation study with the existing pay system. It will enable the city to move toward the legislative goal to pay equity for all employees.

Coskey described the five steps involved in the study. It will first collect and review all materials relating to the existing pay plan and job evaluation points. Second, the study will review and consolidate current point values. This step involves a review of the current point values assigned to city positions to establish one point value for each classification.

Third, there will be a review of job classes to determine potential inequities. Fourth, labor market data from available surveys will be compiled for select job classes. This analysis will indicate those classes having internal pay levels which differ significantly from the labor market. Fifth, recommendations will be provided regarding changes to the current salary structure to ensure consistency with job evaluation results.

This proposal will be discussed at the next city council meeting (Tuesday, May 12). Coskey estimated in his report that if the city approves the study, the project will take approximately eight to 10 weeks to complete.

Roger DeLap, city financial officer, said some changes were made in the plan Thursday afternoon. Generally the project proposal seemed to have the support of the department heads, he said. DeLap said he believes the city is shooting for an August 1 completion date.

At this point no one is sure what the outcome will be. It isn't known, for instance, whether city pay scales are out of line — up or down.

Schaefer Series Presented In TRF 3 Days Last Week

Dick Schaefer's Aunt Liz once told him, "You sat on the burner, baby . . . you sit on the blisters." In a series of sessions covering three days last week, Schaefer taught parents, youth and professionals how to sit on their own blisters, meaning to take responsibility for their own actions, and told them how to allow youngsters and others they love to do the same.

The presentations were brought to the area by the Thief River Falls Chemical Awareness Task Force, St. Hilaire Lions club and Crookston Coca-Cola Bottling company, in an effort to inform the public about the Tough Love approach to family discipline, general communication problems and chemical abuse.

Schaefer has worked in counseling on youth and family problems for 25 years. He is presently the director of the Touch Love Center in Fargo, ND, an organization providing consultation and services to communities to help them confront their drug and alcohol abuse by prevention, intervention and support after treatment. The center utilizes the Tough Love approach to aid family and friends as well as the drug alcohol abuser.

A grand total of 800 persons attended sessions held afternoons and evenings at the city auditorium, many attending all six of the presentations. Schaeffer also spoke to Chemical Abuse Task Force members and school administrators and personnel, and center outreach worker, Lynde Aalgaarde, gave presentations to high school students. Several area agencies and organizations provided displays relating to drug and alcohol abuse at the arena sessions. All sessions and demonstrations were free to the public.

Bill Stock, director of the Thief River Falls Chemical Awareness Task Force, said he felt the presentations were a definite success. "As long as people came who were able to benefit from it, it didn't matter how many people were there. Success isn't measured by the number of people attending. And the key to success now is how we take the information we have received and identify our problems and follow through."

Schaefer will present a follow-up session at 7:15 p.m. Thursday at the basement meeting room of the city auditorium. The general public is invited to attend this session, which is to follow up on the sessions and identify community problems and decide what to do about them. The Chemical Task Force will be in charge of the meeting, and invites the general public to submit ideas and potential solutions.

Local Resident Frustrated By Bureaucracy

the one item symbolizing her struggle to become a citizen is gone, and maybe because of people who take their status of United States citizen for granted.

What does it take to become a citizen of the United States? First, the individual must apply for and receive a permit for lawful entry into the United States and live in the United States for five years (three years if married to a United States citizen). Next, the individual must complete a biographic information form and send it, along with a fingerprint card, to the nearest office of the Immigration and Naturalization service (INS) or from the clerk of a naturalization court — all of which are federal courts now except for Cottonwood county court in Windom. All of the forms must be filled out and sent to the INS along with two photographs of the individual.

Once the office of immigration and naturalization service receives the information it conducts its own investigation. After that, the office calls for a hearing and personal interview with the applicant. In the past, applicants were required to bring two witnesses with them. Those witnesses had to have known the individual for as much of the five or three-year period as possible. Witnesses are no longer required because the investigation is completed in the interview process.

In addition, every person must pass a test showing that he or she knows something about the history and form of government of the United States. There are no exceptions.

Before being admitted to citizenship (unless a child, and too young to understand), an applicant for naturalization must give up his foreign allegiance and any foreign title he or she has and must promise to obey the Constitution and laws of the United States. Unless it is against his or her religion, he or she must also promise to bear arms or fight for the United States, to perform other types of service in the armed forces of the United States and to do work of importance for the nation when he or she is asked to do so.

On Nov. 13, 1970, Irene Fellman became a naturalized citizen of the United States. The Minnesota historical society notes that she became a citizen with eight other individuals. They were: Conrad Joseph Blom, Aino Krogstead, Clara Metger, Sandra Kenner, Earl Dagg, Jeffrey Wiebe, Jorlean Wiebe and Leslie Seward.

Proof of this all important occasion for Irene was symbolized by an 8 x 10-inch certificate proclaiming Fellman a naturalized citizen. This certificate she kept under glass in a frame beside the many pictures of her children and her grandchildren.

It was with some difficulty that she sent her certificate to the Seattle office at all. It was her only proof of citizenship in a country she now considered her home. She carefully put it in a large envelope (unfolded) and sent it away. It hasn't come back.

When her passport arrived in a legal sized manila envelope it was obvious something was wrong. It was in an envelope much too small to accommodate an unfolded certificate; and, it was damaged. Two strips of tape were used on the flap to keep it closed and one of the strips was broken. The glue on the flap had never been used and there was a three-inch tear in the top of the envelope along the fold.

Irene called her friend Ardith Johnson, court administrator at the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls, almost immediately after she discovered the certificate was missing. When she received her naturalization certificate in 1970, it was not possible to get a duplicate. To her knowledge it is still not possible.

Since then, she has learned that for a fee, a stack of forms to be completed, two more pictures, and a trip to St. Paul for another interview, she could get another copy. This news doesn't have her hopping up and down in excited anticipation. Instead, she's rather put out that the government would require her to pay a fee and fill out more forms when it was somebody else's fault the original was lost — apparently the fault of someone on government payroll.

The long delay without her naturalization certificate has certainly given her time to reflect on the importance of citizenship, something Irene feels a lot of people take for granted. Her passport can be used as proof of her citizenship now, but she believes it can never replace her naturalization certificate or what she had to do to become a citizen.

It could not have happened at a worse time, Irene said. Irene and her husband Winton "Swede" Fellman, are preparing to travel to Europe this summer. It will be Irene's first trip outside of the United States since she came here. She reflected that while it took 11 days and 10 nights to cross the ocean from England to Canada, it will only take six or seven hours on her first plane trip back.

She has spent a great deal of time preparing for the trip which will begin the end of May. Irene and her husband plan to spend four weeks in England visiting her friends, her brother and sister, other relatives and her childhood home and school. It worries her that on top of all the plans she has to make, and the fact that this is her first plane trip, she might have difficulty proving that she is a citizen of the United States if anything goes wrong.

Irene has written or contacted United States Senator Dave Durenberger, United States Representative Arlan Stangeland, and United States Senator Rudy Boschwitz, the United States department of state passport agency in Seattle, the post office in Seattle, and the post office in Thief River Falls.

After receiving acknowledgement that the certificate was missing and having overcome communication problems about whether a tracer was or was not placed on the certificate through the mail, she has received some responses to her inquiries.

In the past two and one-half months, these responses have left her even more confused as to what has to be done or what will be done for that matter. Nevertheless, she doesn't want to appear ungrateful because so many people seem concerned. If anything were to be gained from the experience, Irene hopes the government will review its policy of not allowing copies to be used as proof of naturalized citizenship.

For more specific information about the process of immigration and naturalization, contact the nearest federal office of immigration and naturalization: Immigration and Naturalization Service, 927 Post Office Building, 180 East Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55101.

Hospital Week Theme Reflects Employees' Pride

"May 10-16 marks the 66th observance of National Hospital week and this year's theme We Feel Good Helping You Feel Better' reflects the pride our hospital employees take in their work and the enthusiasm they display in helping community residents maintain healthy, active lifestyles," states Fail Holland, public relations coordinator for the Medical center.

This year Northwest Medical center is sponsoring a special Kid's Day for Thief River Falls and surrounding area second graders.

Feeling good means more than must the absence of illness. It means feeling physically fit and energetic, having a good mental attitude and feeling positive about ourtselves and our friends. On Wednesday, May 13, Northwest Medical center has invited second graders from Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Plummer, Goodridge, Newfolden, Viking and Middle River to attend a special program and learn about "feeling good about handicaps".

There will be three programs for the children to attend. First, the Kids On The Block puppeteers will be here to present their program. From there, the children will get a chance to meet Northwest Medical center's director of occupational therapy, Art Heinze, who will talk to them about his own handicap. To finish up the program, the children will be shown the activity center which will show them a variety of ways a handicapped child may have to overcome his or her condition.

National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital association and its 6,000 member hospitals. Northwest Medical center joins this national observance to strengthen communications and understanding among its patients, employees and the community.

Dear Readers,

Decisions about the sale of property, a change of residence, business and legal decisions should be postponed after bereavement until the emotional bewilderment subsides and one's facilities return to normal. Hasty decisions may be long regretted. As things come into proper focus and the advice of counsellors can be balanced, the right choices can better be made.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home
